Hospital to host farmer's market

A Farmer's Market will be given between the hours of 9 a.m. and 1 p.m., or until vendors sell out starting this Friday, Aug. 29 and continuing through the end of the season at 14634 Park Avenue.

The market is a project of the Community Relations Committee of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation and is not a fund-raiser, but intended to provide the community and vendors with a local shopping spot for fresh produce, perennials, baked goods, cut flowers and other items.

There will be no charge to the vendors for their participation and space is available on a first come basis. Vendors will set up in front of the Foundation office, with additional space available in back if required. The public is encouraged to take this opportunity to support area vendors. Classes resumed for students Tuesday

> "Everything is going great. The building looks good and we didn't have to move anything. It's a lot less hectic than last year."
> Keith Haske,
> Charlevoix Middle School principal

The sound of school bells ringing and screams from Charlevoix students returning to school playgrounds were once again heard Tuesday.

The Charlevoix School district began class Tuesday, Sept. 2, with a less hectic start than last year.

Charlevoix schools superintendent Dr. John Sturock said there were not a lot of overall changes this year, making for a much smoother start to the year.

"Everything is status quo," he said.

Last year principals were met with building changes as the new high school opened its doors for its inaugural school year.

This year students can still expect some minor changes in relation to the new building, but nothing that will be an inconvenience.

High School principal Gary Grundman is glad to begin this year with a less hectic start.

"It was a great summer compared to the last two. This summer was very welcome," Grundman said.

Students returning to the middle school can also expect minor building improvements as well. Construction crews are working to finish the gym quickly, which, as of last Thursday, was still propped up.

Middle School Principal Keith Haske said they hoped to finish pouring the supports last week in preparation for their removal this week.

Haske said crews are running on schedule. He said after the construction this week, the only thing they should have left to finish is outside work.

"They're pretty close to what they hoped to be. It looks worse than it is," Haske said.

It is not imperative that students need the gym this week he said unless bad weather forces gym classes indoors.

The girls' basketball team will not have their first season game until next week. For now, they are practicing in the old middle school.

"Everything's going great. The building looks good, and we didn't have to move anything. It's a lot less hectic than last year," Haske said.

An increased student population at the elementary school may create more hectic times for staff as the preschool and day care programs prepare for their first year.

Charlevoix DDA serves community over 20 years

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

The Downtown Development Authority was created in 1982 with the temporary purpose of helping to economically blossom Charlevoix's downtown area.

And now, over 20 years later, the organization is still going strong.

In the early 1980s, the value of Charlevoix's downtown area was decreasing. In response, former City Manager Bob Hunt called for the creation of a DDA to counteract the slip.

"It was an intergovernmental agreement to make sure downtown stayed whole and valuable," City Treasurer Rick Brandi said.

Almost 21 years after its inception, the DDA has quadrupled the downtown's state equalized valuation (SEV). In 1984 , the DDA had an SEV of $6.7 million, but as of 2003, they have increased their value to over $24 million.

DDA Chairman Hugh Mason said the increase can be attributed to both the DDA's work and inflation.

Brandi said the city uses a tax increment financing plan to take improvements made to the district and put them back into the district in turn making its value grow.

Whenever the taxable value of the land increased, the DDA was able to capture a chunk of those taxes. When the parcels of land downtown increase in value, that rate is multiplied by the current millage rate, which sets the capture amount.

Brandi said the city does not feel a pinch in its budget as a result of funds allotted to the DDA.

"The city doesn't feel the monetary loss because it's nothing that was ever recognized before," Brandi said. "They wanted to make sure there were improvements downtown, and we're willing to give that (money) up."

Brandi said the DDA is a unique entity. Their budget is subject to approval from the city council but they operate within their own confines. This year's DDA budget is roughly $772,600 in proposed revenues and $536,800 in expenditures.

City Manager Mike Weisner said the DDA receives funding from various sources, including the capture amount and tax levy from within the DDA's district.

The DDA's district covers over 12 city blocks and just recently expanded to include the old middle school property. It extends from West Dixon Avenue to West Hurlbut Street, north to south, and from Round Lake to the State Street area. Brandi said it is common, even for smaller cities, to have DDAs.

Mason, who has served at his position since the board's creation, said it is up to the Charlevoix City Council how long the group will exist. It will be in existence until at least the year 2014, due to bond payments on Veterans Park, but could last longer if the council decides to extend its term.

"As long as it can serve a useful purpose, then we'll be around," Mason said.

Brandi was unaware of any time maximum placed on DDAs, but said the organization will be around until their plan is complete.

Since it began the DDA has improved Hoffman Park, walkways under the bridge, street lighting and created a stairway on the channel by the Weathervane. Mason said the DDA's costliest project thus far was Bridge Park.

"We continue to capture money until those bonds are paid off," Brandi said.

But just because the DDA is in the process of paying off bonds, doesn't mean they have halted plans. The DDA has several other projects in the discussion phase including a parking structure in the downtown area and a convention center.

DDA meetings are the last Monday of every month and are temporarily located in the Coast Guard Conference room by the Beaver Island Boat Company.

In a story on page 18 about a cross country meet, Anna Taylor was accidentally left out. She finished ahead of Liz Madison with a time of 24 minutes, 4 seconds.

And in a wedding announcement on page 6, it should have said Laura Stebe was wearing a pale green pantsuit.

Keep an eye out at the school bus stops

EDITORIAL

Summer has come to an end in Charlevoix and with that means the start of another school year.

On Tuesday, students who attend Charlevoix schools returned to their classes for another year of learning, enjoying the camaraderie of classmates and taking part in community events.

With students back in school, this means that another sight that has been missing from the Charlevoix landscape will be returning, school buses. Yes, those large transportation vehicles are back on the roads, picking up groups of students eager to learn something new that day or dropping them off at home after a day filled with scholastic activities.

With the return of buses to our roads, this means drivers have to be extra careful.

Many times buses will be out during the early morning hours, when visibility is sometimes limited due to darkness or weather conditions. With many students waiting for the bus at this time and during these driving conditions, it becomes very important that drivers keep a careful eye on them.

It would be a shame for a student to get hit by a vehicle, just because they were waiting for the bus in the early morning fog.

Also, it is very important that drivers obey the law when it comes to school buses who are stopped.

Charlevoix City Police Chief and school board president Dennis Halverson said vehicles must stop a minimum of 20 feet away from a school bus that is flashing its red lights.

He added, while students have not gotten hit by a vehicle in Charlevoix while getting on a bus, he has received reports of cars passing while the red lights are flashing. In those cases, the school bus driver gets a description of the vehicle and a license plate and officers do follow up on it and write tickets.

"It is a pretty hefty fine," Halverson said.

For safety's sake, keep an eye on the kids at school bus stops and stop when the school bus' lights are flashing. Arriving at work a couple of minutes late is meaningless when compared to hitting a child who is getting on a bus.

America is a secular state

Roger Knutson

'Ear to the ground'

A few months ago I watched, on one of the news channels, an interview with a foreign minister from India.

The reporter asked him about India being a predominantly Hindu state by contrast with next door Pakistan which was predominantly Muslim. The minister chided the reporter for her question and in no uncertain terms made it clear that India was a secular state. The government of India, he declared, was a secular government, not one based on any particular religion.

I have thought often about that interview since it aired. I was proud to think that the United States is also a secular nation, and that our government is a secular government, not onc based on any particular religion.

The First Amendment to our Constitution declares the secular foundation for our government. No one is denied the practice of prayer and no one is forced to practice any particular sort of prayer.

Churches of all kinds are equal under the law. Our money does declare "In God we trust." But it is wonderfully non-specific about just what God might be meant.

Far too often our politicians seem to feel it is necessary to emphasizc that we are a "Christian nation." Every time I hear the phrase I want to point the politicians to the Indian Foreign Minister who understands that a majority of Hindus in India does not make India a Hindu nation. Their constitution makes India a secular country, just as our constitution makes ours a secular country. No one religion or group of religions can makc any legal claim on the government of the United States. We are a secular nation.

A monument listing the 10 commandments from the Old Testament of the Christian church cannot be a part of the decor of a public courthouse in Alabama. In the same way our public schools cannot be required to teach a particular religious doctrine.

The schools can clearly teach about religions in general and about the importance of religion in the founding of our nation.

What some Michigan legislators would attempt to require of our public schools, whether it is called Creation Science of Intelligent Design is still a particular religions doctrine and cannot be supported under our Constitution as part of a publicly financed educational cur-

Staff writer returns to work

Staff writer

On Monday night, while Charlevoix students prepped themselves for another school year, I readied myself to head back to work.

After an eventful summer maternity leave, my bank account has dwindled to $10 and it's time to start bringing home the bacon.

To get ready for my fall back-to-work event, I, like many students, laid my clothes out, packed up my planner and made a sandwich for my brown bag lunch.

The same back-to-school jitters that plagued me when I was a student hit me when I laid down to go to sleep. My mind was racing, only my thoughts weren't focused on teachers, friends and fashion, they wcre on my daughter, Mailie.

She was born May 31, a week past her due date, but as every mom knows there is no baby in this world that operates according to a calendar. She is now a perfect, 3-month-old, bouncing baby that loves life and refuses to sleep through the night.

As I laid in bed Monday night I wondered how the change would affect her and whether she would be angry at me for not being home. These nagging thoughts were interrupted every two hours by my sweet little bundle who demanded a quick snack and a long ride in the rocker.

We watched the sun rise at around 6:30 a.m., wiped the sleep from our tired eyes and got up for the day.

After some priceless morning play time, a handful of diaper changes and a couple short naps, it was time to leave for work. I pulled out of my driveway with confidence and discovered about halfway through my morning commute that I already felt like something was missing.

I did a quick check and found my planner, cell phone and lunch werc right there ready to go, but my back seat was empty. My partner who has been attached to me for a year during the pregnancy and after birth was home sleeping peacefully with her daddy.

The morning soon turned tearful, but I kept in the back of my mind something my mom always says when life throws challenges my way, "This too shall pass."

So, over the next couple of weeks I will learn to adjust to the marriage of my double title, mom and journalist.

During this transition period I ask Courier readers to bear with me, I am sleep deprived and suffering from separation anxiety. But I am also excited to return to my professional love, the news.

Stormwater management

Editor:

The newest buzz in the world of stormwater runoff is "Natural Stormwater Management." Stormwater managers have officially recognized that "Mother Nature" can do for flooding and pollution what tons of concrete and expensive infrastructure have failed to do.

Undisturbed, naturally vegetated land has very little surface runoff. When it rains, water percolates directly into the soil and slowly recharges aquifers, streams, wetlands and lakes. When there is surface runoff from natural lands, it is in the form of a sheet flow across the saturated soil.

The water infiltrates other areas or flows through natural depressions, drainage ways and wetlands into larger streams and rivers. This creates a natural drainage scheme and involves slow input into surface water systems that lessens flooding and erosion to streams and lakes.

With less erosion, sediment in stormwater is less and the water quality of lakes, beaches and streams remains high.

Today, stormwater managers and regulators are encouraged to look at the watershed "big picture," to recognize the importance of natural systems and to protect natural drains, streams and wetlands by preserving buffers, greenbelts and by using common sense "best management practices."

When streams are channeled and wetlands are filled, their natural capacity for absorbing stormwater and filtering pollutants is lost. In order to avoid flooding, erosion and the loss of our fisheries, these natural environmental assets must be protected or replaced with expensive infrastructure. In the past, much of this cost was born by the taxpayer.

Responsible developers are careful to respect the land. Greenbelts along our waterways, pollution prevention, good housekeeping, and public education help us protect the water and land we love and are economically advantageous as well. Fair and equitable County Soil and Sedimentation and Stormwater Ordinances are essential to preserving our quality of life and natural resources.

Deal with it

Editor:

In the latter portion of the fourteenth century, a game emerged into popularity in Europe called Tarrochio. It combined the Muslim cards and the French Triumphs (trump) and became the early version of our present day playing cards. Some of the earliest surviving cards originated in Italy, commissioned by a noble family. As the cards became available to the common folk, the church was concerned that the peasants were occupying themselves with a game (and, possibly...gasp...gambling) and the Tarrochio was declared by the church men as being the work of, and created by, the devil, in much the same spirit as the phrase, "Idle hands do the devil's work." I must emphasize that the Tarrochio was a card game, the mother of all modern card games, and was so for 400 years after it was decreed of the devil.

About this time last year, the Charlevoix Courier did an article on my artwork, my faerie tales and my love for the tarot cards. As a result, I have received anonymous mail, people trying to "save my soul," nasty comments and generally prejudicial treatment by certain unenlightened individuals. I have taken most of this with a grain of salt: my work is prominent locally and I love interacting with people.

I have two ridiculous and absurd statements to make: I am not of the devil and I am not a fortune teller. I read the tarot cards by deciphering the symbology. I love the writings of Carl Jung and his theory of the collective unconscious. He believed, as do I, that all humans respond to simple symbols almost identically across cultural and social boundaries. Art is full of symbolism and so are our dreams. When I interpret a tarot card, it is the same as interpreting a painting or a dream. When I do a reading for someone, I am allowing him or her to access their own subconscious response to the images on the cards. I am not saying that the results are not wondrous and astonishing. I believe people are wondrous and astonishing. Some have credited me with resolving their life issues, repairing relationships, guiding them in professional and personal choices, but the credit is theirs for having the courage and the openness to examine the truth of their very beings to the core and to honestly respond to what they discover.

Maybe my mistake in the interview last year was in saying that this is a journey of the soul to identify its own quest. If so, it is a mistake I willingly make again. So, for the sake of a pun, I ask you all to "deal with it."

Religious freedom a right in America

riculum.

The decision about how to teach biological science in our public schools has little to do with whether evolution is a theory or a fact. Evolution is in any case not the religious doctrine of a particular church.

The framers of our Constitution wisely made it possible for any number of conflicting religious views to coexist in our nation. We should listen to the framers of our Constitution. And just maybe we should occasionally listen to the foreign ministers of other democratic nations where legally founded religious tolerance has been modeled on that in our own nation.

Reactor vessel moved from inside Big Rock

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

After two years of planning, the nuclear reactor vessel at Big Rock was moved to a shipping container and will soon be off of the facility's site and traveling to South Carolina.

Tim Petrosky, director of public relations at Big Rock Point, said the reactor vessel was moved from inside the plant Monday, Aug. 25, and placed in a shipping container. The vessel will be leaving the plant's grounds sometime this fall, when it will be taken by heavy-hauler to a rail-car where it will then be taken to Barnwell, S.C.

Petrosky said the project started about two years ago when the plant contractor, BNFL, started designing and fabricating a reactor vessel shipping container. That container was completed last year and crews started planning for the removal of the reactor vessel.

To get the reactor vessel out of the Big Rock facility, crews cut it out and designed a top cover plate which could be fastened on it so it would be lifted by a specially designed crane. Crews anticipated removing the reactor vessel two weeks ago, but had to wait until more obstructions could be cut out and the vessel would have a free ride.

"We wanted to ensure a nice free path to the top," Petrosky said.

On Aug. 25, it was determined the vessel was free of all obstructions and it was lifted out of its housing cavity, across the reactor deck and onto an awaiting shipping container. The reactor vessel is 235,000 pounds and the process to move it started at 2:30 p.m. and ended at 10:11 p.m., Aug. 25.

"We moved the crane calm and methodically, almost glacier like," Petrosky said.

But, before the reactor vessel could be put in the shipping container, because of the thickness of the shipping container, it had to be heated to 200 degrees in order for crews to weld it shut. It takes 10 days to weld the shipping container shut and 1,200 pounds of welding material.

Once the shipping container is welded, the reactor vessel and all spaces in the shipping container will be filled with a low density concrete. The reactor vessel is classified as low level radioactive waste.

Next on the list of large items to be taken out of Big Rock is the reactor vessel steam drain. This is where steam from the reactor went before it was passed into the turbines and it's about 30 feet long.

Petrosky said that will also be transported by heavy hauler and rail to Utah. It is classified as a low level radioactive waste.

The steam drain is expected to be shipped out this fall, within weeks of the reactor vessel's departure.

"Removing those pieces of equipment will really clear the way for outside structures," Petrosky said.

Work taking down the outer structure will begin next year.

There are currently 280 people employed at Big Rock, of those 80 are from Consumer's Energy. Petrosky, who will be leaving at the end of this year, said employment levels will probably not decrease greatly until next year.

Health care worker allegedly took over $1,500 from woman

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office has arrested a 25-year-old woman for embezzlement of money from an elderly Marion Township resident.

According to Sheriff George T. Lasater, Joline L. Haddrill recently moved to the area and was briefly employed by an area home health care provider service to assist an elderly woman with domestic chores and personal hygiene.

Haddrill allegedly took several checks from the woman and cashed them at an area bank for a total of $1,575 over a three day period in mid-August. The investigation revealed that the woman has a lengthy criminal record in at least two states.

Haddrill has been charged by the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's Office with a five year felony — Embezzlement from a Vulnerable Adult over $1,000. She has appeared before a 90th District Court Magistrate and has been released on a $10,000 surety bond.

Lasater cautions relatives of vulnerable adults to monitor any similar situations with their relatives to help protect the limited assets that these senior citizens may have.

Nursing students to get scholarships

Who: Charlevoix Community Foundation
What it is: A scholarship for nursing students.
Details: The scholarship covers 85 percent of the cost of tuition, textbooks and fees for two years.
For more: More information about the scholarship can be found by calling the community foundation at (231) 536-2440.

Four area students will begin nursing studies at North Central Community College with some financial help this fall, thanks to scholarships awarded by the Charlevoix County Community Foundation.

The four are the first to receive the Edna Brown Nursing Scholarships, which cover 85 percent of the cost of tuition, textbooks and fees for two years.

"In light of the national and regional nursing shortage, we're especially pleased to be able to provide financial assistance to local students who are pursuing a nursing degree right here, at our own local community college," Thomas Hanna, chairman of the board of the community foundation, said.

The Edna Brown Nursing Scholarship Fund was established at the community foundation through a bequest of Ralph McRae, a former Charlevoix major and civic leader who died in 2000. McRae, who had a longtime admiration for the nursing profession, named the scholarship to honor his mother and specified that it help area students enrolled in North Central's nursing program.

According to Robert Tambellini, president of the community foundation, the first four scholarship recipients were selected by a committee, in accordance with the guidelines McRae specified when setting up the fund.

They will continue to receive the full scholarship during the two academic years required for completion of a nursing degree. Next fall, additional students will be awarded Edna Brown scholarships to begin their two-year nursing studies.

"Because of Ralph McRae's generosity, and NCMC's reasonable tuition, we anticipate being able to assist several nursing students each academic year," Tambellini said.

The Edna Brown Nursing Scholarship Fund is just one of 142 funds held by the Charlevoix County Community Foundation-48 of them earmarked expressly for scholarships.

Since it started in 1992, the foundation has built an endowment of more than $8.7 million and distributed more than $4 million in grants to support local education, environmental causes, health and wellness programs, civic improvement projects and recreation in Charlevoix County.

More information about the Edna Brown Nursing Scholarship, or other scholarship funds, is available by calling the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, (231) 536-2440 or writing the foundation at PO Box 718, East Jordan, MI 49727.

Stormwater ordinance not published as required

By STEFANIE CARANO
Staff writer

Last Wednesday, the Charlevoix County Commission voted to publish ordinances regarding member composition of the Stormwater Board of Appeals.

Ordinances that state the required number of members and what would be represented were revised twice from when the board was formed in 1998 and were acted on. However, they were never published by the county commission.

"We're trying to correct that situation," said County Commission Chairman Randolph Frykberg.

In 1998, the Stormwater Board of Appeals was formed by the Charlevoix County Commission to address public concerns about drainage use by developers.

Ordinances at that time required the board to have five members appointed by the county commission and to consist of a county commissioner, a drain commissioner, a Soil and Water Conservation District board member and an Engineering Development representative.

In 1999, the ordinances were changed to a seven-member board that included a road commission representative, a drain commissioner, engineering or development representatives and eliminated a conservation district board member.

This ordinance was never published, yet it was acted upon, which violated the county statute.

In 2001, ordinances were revised again that kept a seven member board, this time including a conservation district representative and an environmental consultant. This ordinance was also never published, which again violated the statute.

Two years later, the county has finally decided to make the revisions official. The commission has stated that they had approved the revisions in both 1999 and 2001 but they were just never published. The commission did not give an official reason as to why this was so.

At the Aug. 27 meeting, a resolution to publish these ordinances was added to the agenda in a last-minute decision by Frykberg. The commission contested that revisions were made to the board of appeals as if they were official and consider it a re-approval of the ordinances.

An unscheduled public comment preceeded the commission's decision.

Drain Commissioner Jo Anne Beemon of the stormwater appeals board was the only person to speak on the decision.

"This is so weird, I feel like 'Alice in Wonderland,'" Beemon said.

She was confused by the way in which the commission handled the ordinances.

Beemon feels that the county commission is misleading the board by not publishing ordinances and stresses the importance of keeping a representative from the conservation district on the board.

"I think it was an oversight. I'm concerned about resistance to making it right. The (board) needs to follow ordinances that were approved by the commission," said Beemon.

Beemon said the discrepancies in the ordinances caused problems when it came to a Stormwater Appeals Board Hearing on the variance grant requested by Performance Engineers for property where the "Appletree" is currently located.

Boardmember Tim Matchett, who represented the conservation district, was absent from the hearing, which is in violation of the original 1998 ordinance on the composition of board members.

Because the 2001 and 1999 ordinances were never published, the 1998 ordinance should've been acted upon.

The publication of the new ordinances will not affect future requests to the appeals board since the revisions were already in place, unofficially.

Tips on avoiding scams given

Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater would like to give a few tips from the National Consumer's Fraud Information Center in reference to buyers clubs.

Buyers clubs promise great deals on products or services, but some consumers discover that they've been charged for membership even if they never agreed to join or that the deals aren't so great after all, Lasater said.

Beware of ads for products at incredibly cheap prices or free if you pay for shipping. They may be designed to lure you into a buyers club membership.

Understand how a "trial offer" works. In many cases, you will automatically be charged for a membership when the free time ends unless you contact the club to cancel.

Watch out for "welcome packages." What looks like an offer to join a buyers club may actually be a notice that you've already enrolled. Read the information carefully and contact the club immediately to cancel if you didn't agree to join or the deal was misrepresented.

Comparison shop for the best deals. Despite its claims, the selection and prices that a buyers club offers may not be as good as you can find yourself.

Don't assume that you won't be charged because you didn't give your account number. The club may already have obtained your bank account or credit card number from another company with whom you've done business. Sometimes consumers are transferred from one salesperson to another during the same call and their payment information may be passed along as well.

Ask for details in writing before you agree to join. The deal may not be as great as it sounds once you see exactly how the club works.

Challenge unauthorized charges or debits immediately. Contact your credit card issuer or bank to explain the problem and ask for your account to be credited. Follow up in writing and keep a copy of your letter.

If you think you've fallen prey to a scam, contact the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office, e-mail National Consumer's Fraud Information Center online at www.fraud.org or call the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Office at 373-1140.

Teen arrested for false report

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office has arrested a 16-year old Eveline Township girl for multiple counts of filing a False Police Report.

The girl's parents had reported her on Aug. 24 as a missing/runaway. She was located later that date in Melrose Township.

She advised deputies that on Aug. 23 an unknown male had entered her parents' residence and forced her to leave the house and stole her parents car. She was then made to smoke marijuana prior to being abandoned in the woods.

The subsequent investigation showed that the girl had made up the story so she could spend time with a 17-year-old boyfriend after having been grounded by her parents.

The girl has been turned over to the Charlevoix County Probate Court and the matter referred to the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's Office for the following charges: False Report of Home Invasion — First Degree, False Report of Kidnapping and False Report of Auto Theft.

If prosecuted as an adult the penalty would be "life or any term of years."

Go! Multimedia hosts local event

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

An idea which began as a simple donation to the Charlevoix Middle School has become an organization that provides students the opportunities to expand their education.

Go! Multimedia is a non-profit organization based out of Charlevoix which forms partnerships with schools to set up media labs. Go! Multimedia President Ken Paul said it was created to give Charlevoix students the chance to learn more about modern sound and light technology using professional equipment.

Paul is a 1978 graduate of Charlevoix High School and currently runs a sound engineering company based out of Chicago. He said opportunities to work with equipment like his were not available when he was growing up in Charlevoix.

"There's not a lot of gigs for people who do what I do up here," Paul said.

He wanted to give Charlevoix students the opportunity to learn on the high tech equipment he uses daily before they were faced with it in the future.

Paul attributes the creation of the seven-year Go! partnership to one random act of kindness — donating his old equipment.

"When I came back for my high school reunion the band room wasn't any different," he said.

It wasn't until a little while later when Paul was getting rid of some of his old equipment, he decided to donate it and called Charlevoix High School Principal Gary Grundman. The two then began formulating the idea for Go!.

"That was it. We just took off from there," Paul said.

Go! Multimedia, which has labs at the Charlevoix Middle School and Northwest Academy, plans to expand its horizons this year to include Boyne City and eventually Charlevoix High School.

In an effort to display the capabilities of Charlevoix High School's auditorium and make Go! more visible in the community, Go! Fest was given Friday, Aug. 22.

"I want people to see this exists in Charlevoix," Paul said.

As well as featuring local talent performances, Paul did a sound and light demonstration, using both the school's and his own equipment. He said the two systems used for the show are valued between $75,000 and $100,000 and are the same caliber of equipment used in several Las Vegas shows and on Broadway.

The first Go! Fest was in 1998. Paul has tried to do it every year since and said he was excited to get in to the high school auditorium this year to show off all the auditorium's capabilities.

"We went into aspects of the lighting board no one ever has even seen," Paul said. "(Go! Fest) is the one time of the year they could really stretch their imaginations."

Grundman said he would like to see Go! Fest next year as a completely student run program that would be a year-long show in the making.

"My suggestion was this should really be a student produced and student operated show. If they have a question, we have an answer, but they do the work," he said.

Grundman said students' reactions to Go! have been positive. He said students are glad to have the opportunity to be involved in this unique program.

"It's all about the kids. The fun and the joy is turning them loose and watching them work," Grundman said.

One student who has taken full advantage of the Go! opportunity is Charlie Durkle, a 2002 Charlevoix High School graduate. He first became interested in sound engineering since he began playing the guitar, bass and drums. When he discovered the school had a studio, Grundman caught wind of his interest and said Durkle should give Go! a try.

Durkle, who has had several audio engineering jobs through Go! since, will begin teaching a weekly audio engineering class at Northwest Academy this year.

Aside from classroom instruction, Paul also lends his equipment to charitable causes. He has released nine CDs in the Charlevoix area beginning with the Charlevoix High School band in 1987. Other recordings have featured the Northwest Academy Jazz Band, Boyne City band and recently the Trimper Benefit.

At the Trimper benefit earlier this summer, Paul taped the orchestra performance lead by fellow GO! board member Fran Tollas. The CDs raised $350 for the Trimpers and are still selling.

While the organization has been successful in raising money for other non-profit groups, Paul said GO! itself takes in very little.

"(Go! Multimedia) is not a money maker. Most money that is made goes back into fixing computers we get. But any money we make we have plenty of uses for," he said.

Paul, who admits he is obsessed with his work, said doing what he does is "a lot of fun on so many levels." He hopes his organization will allow others the same type of opportunities he was given.

"My whole life has been about opportunities. If I hadn't chosen to pursue them, this whole wonderful life might have passed me by," he said.

Summer slow for a few local businesses

By STEFANIE CARANO
Staff writer

The majority of Charlevoix's downtown businesses have reported a decrease in their summer sales from last year over the summer.

Retail business owners contribute a variety of factors to lower sales. Besides the bad economy and high gas prices, many believe cooler summer temperatures kept some tourists down state.

"The (tourist) season was late by two weeks getting started," said Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce President Jacqueline Merta.

Merta reported that August was the highest sales month this summer instead of July, when there are the highest number of people in Charlevoix.

"Generally sales are up in July," she said.

According to Merta lower sales for one business in particular was due to new competition. She said the Subway on the corner of Mason and Bridge street experienced lower sales because of two new delis that opened in town.

Subway manager Terry Amick, however, didn't feel competition was a factor.

"There just wasn't a whole lot of tourists this season," Amick said.

Two exceptions to the decrease in sales was Stafford's Weathervane Restaurant and Charlevoix Wear, both on the west side of Bridge Street.

"We experienced a pretty normal summer," said Dudley Marvin, President of Stafford's Hospitality that oversees the operations at the Weathervane. "We're up five or six percent from last year and we were thankful for the people that came in our door."

Charlevoix Wear owner Kirby Dipert wouldn't give specific numbers, but he did see an improvement from last year.

"It was a pretty good summer," Diapert said.

Dipert isn't sure the exact cause for his increase in sales, but he reported hooded sweatshirts as his most popular sales item.

All business owners hope to see an increase in sales next year.

Harbor Health to build new location

By STEFANIE CARANO
Staff writer

Harbor Health and Fitness Center in downtown Charlevoix will have a new facility and a new location within the next year.

Owners Deborah and Bob Jess intend to purchase property from Christ Episcopal Church on Clinton Street, less than a block away from their current Mason Street location.

"We're trying to get into a building that we will own and not have to rent," Bob said.

They are hoping that low, affordable construction costs and low interest rates will allow them to have a site that they'll own in the long term and allow them to offer better service to the community.

Members of the city of Charlevoix's planning commission have already been consulted for specific site requirements but official plans for the property will go before the commission next Monday. Details of the site plans have been posted at the current location.

Construction for the new facility will be provided by Deborah and Bob's own construction company called "Just Construction."

The new building will attempt to duplicate the current structure as much as possible but with a new exterior facade. Equipment and furniture within the current structure will be moved to the new location and Bob expects the new interior to keep the same layout. He hopes to start construction on Oct.1 and be moved into the new facility by February or March.

The current facility, located on Mason Street in the Beacon Center complex, was built in 1993 and originally housed Charlevoix Fitness Studio.

In 1997, Charlevoix Fitness went out of business and Harbor Health, who was moving into its space, bought its equipment and furniture. Harbor Health been leasing the property for six years.

"We're trying to keep a viable business going in downtown," Bob said. "Every year we see a small, steady increase in our business and we're hoping to continue that."

Harbor Health offers a variety of services including exercise classes, strength and cardio equipment and massage therapy. It will continue all their same services at the new gym.

Bob does not have an estimate of the cost to build at this time, so it is not known if membership fees will increase.

Library workshop two

The Charlevoix Public Library Board of Trustees invites the public to participate in the Pre-funding Design Workshop Two for converting the old middle school site to the new library.

Workshop Two will be at 7:00 p.m. on Wednesday, Sept. 3, in the library basement.

The team of professionals, Bill Williams, architect from Engberg-Anderson Design Partnership; Alyce Riemenschneider, of Riemenschneider Design Associates; and Joe Mendyk, construction estimator from Clark Construction will present the refined drawings designed from the previous public input sessions. Further input will be requested on which direction the library board should take in designing the library.

For further information contact the library at 547-2651.

Charlevoix girl injured in accident Sept. 1

A 13-year-old Charlevoix girl was seriously injured around 9 p.m., Sept. 1 in a three vehicle traffic accident on Ferry Road near Mountain Road in Eveline Township.

According to the Charlevoix County Sheriff's office, a 1986 Chevy Blazer that was disabled, was parked on the shoulder of the south lane, pointed south, a 1993 Chrysler mini van was parked on the shoulder of the south lane headed north with its headlights on.

The occupants were attempting to get the blazer running, when a 1996 Buick station wagon driven by a 77-year-old East Jordan man traveling south on Ferry Road struck the rear of the Blazer, causing it to hit the mini van. The 13-year-old Charlevoix girl was standing between the Blazer and the mini van on impact causing her to be pinned between the two vehicles. A 33-year-old woman from Levering and two men, one 34 from Charlevoix, the other 43 from Harbor Springs, were behind the mini van retrieving tools from the van on impact.

The female was thrown away from the van, the two males were thrown to the ground and the van went on top of them.

Alcohol is believed to have been a factor in this accident. This accident remains under investigation.

The Charlevoix girl was transported to Charlevoix Area Hospital and is in intensive care, being treated for injuries to both legs and a head injury. The 33-year-old woman from Levering refused treatment. The 34-year-old Charlevoix man was transported to the Charlevoix Area Hospital, where he was treated and released for neck and back injuries. The 43-year-old Harbor Springs man refused treatment.

The 35-year-old Charlevoix woman who was the driver of the mini van was transported to Charlevoix Area Hospital and was treated for a neck injury and released.

The 77-year-old driver of the Buick wagon was transported to Northern Michigan Hospital where he was treated for cuts on both arms and released. A 76-year-old woman who was a front seat passenger of the Buick was transported to Northern Michigan Hospital and remains in the hospital for a laceration to her head and a chest injury.

The rear passenger in the Buick, a 76-year-old woman from Bloomfield Hills, was transported to Northern Michigan Hospital and was treated and released for a laceration to her head and leg.

The mini van was also occupied by three children from Charlevoix: a 14-year-old Charlevoix boy who was uninjured, a 9-year-old Charlevoix boy who was uninjured and a 9-year-old Charlevoix girl who received a minor bump on her head.

Soccer teams get big wins

The Charlevoix boys soccer teams won big last week against Boyne City and Suttons Bay.

On Aug. 26 in the junior varsity team's second game of the season against Suttons Bay they took home the win three goals to one.

Coach Marvin Witthoeft said he was very pleased with his team.

"Coming into half-time down by a goal they rallied both offense and defense," he said.

He added that Curtis Petzak not only played well at right wing but also pulled off a "hat trick," scoring all three goals.

He further credited center Ben Scheelk and sweeper Jeremy Yaldo as having played a strong game.

The varsity soccer team handily beat Boyne City by a score of 7 to 3. Charlevoix goals were scored by John DiMartino, Scott Friske, Andrew Mailloux, Nurken Ashenov, Bryce Daly, Ben Scheelk and Jeremy Yaldo.

Girls' basketball team wins its season opener

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

Opening the season on the road against a state finalist from last year wasn't the perfect way to start the season perhaps.

At least that's how it looked as Charlevoix's girls' basketball squad trailed Gaylord St. Mary's, 13-9 at half-time of the season lid-lifter.

The Rayders bounced back with a 36-23 second half, though, including 22 fourth quarter points to pull out a 45-36 victory.

Grace Farrell led all scorers with 20 points. Jamie Pettis added six. Sarah Cross scored five. Shayna Drost had four clutch free throws down the stretch for her four points. Sophomore Shannon Dibble tallied three in her first varsity action.

"We had some first game jitters to start out," coach Jim Parrish said. "But we had a real good second half. Our depth and our press really got to them."

Charlevoix then beat another tough non-conference foe, Gaylord, in the home opener, 62-52.

Gaylord double and triple-teamed Farrell for much of the night and the Rayders responded with seven three-pointers.

Rachel Wyniawskyj connected on four en route to a 16 point night. Farrell added 10. Cross scored nine. Kari Way added eight and Madison McKenzie scored seven.

After playing at Petoskey on Tuesday, Sept. 2, the Rayders host Mancelona on Thursday, Sept. 4.

Football team loses opener

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

It wasn't the start Charlevoix coach Don Jess was hoping for to his high school coaching career as the Rayders fell to non-conference rival St. Ignace, 48-8, Friday.

"I was just as nervous as the kids were before the game started," Jess said.

"But later, I just had to focus on keeping them positive."

Jess said, "Defensively, we just didn't play very well. We didn't tackle well at all. But offensively I thought we played fairly well. We had some costly mistakes and penalties that hurt our field position, but we moved the ball on them."

As bright spots, Jess noted the play of the offensive line and quarterback Cody Crain.

"Crain did a good job for us in his first game as quarterback," Jess said.

"He was a running back on the JVs last year. I also thought the offensive line played well."

Despite the loss, Jess found positive signs for the team's future.

"The guys didn't give up," he said.

"I know a lot of coaches say that but I really mean that. We played hard right up to the end of the game. That's something that we can build on."

Charlevoix will have that opportunity this Friday, Sept. 5 in the home opener against Benzie Central, another tough non-conference test.

"We have a tough schedule," Jess said. "But if you want to be a good team, you have to play good teams."

Nuclear Medicine Department accredited

It's been just three years since Charlevoix Area Hospital launched its nuclear medicine department, but in that short period of time, staff members have perfected their highly specialized diagnostic services and patient care to meet the American College of Radiology's rigorous practice standards.

A recent evaluation by the ACR has resulted in a three-year accreditation of the department — making Charlevoix Area Hospital the only facility in northern Michigan to be so designated.

The American College of Radiology awards accreditation to facilities after a thorough peer review conducted by board-certified physicians and medical physicists who are experts in nuclear medicine.

Michelle Potter, nuclear medical technologist who oversees the hospital's department, says the meticulous accreditation process looks at the skills and training of staff, procedure protocols, scope of services and quality of equipment.

"This ACR accreditation confirms that we're able to provide high quality care, and serves as a measure of excellence for our patients, referring physicians, and health insurers," she said. "It's a challenging process, but one we volunteered to undertake. I'm pleased that we were recognized for our hard work."

The nuclear medicine department uses radioactive tracers to identify various types of conditions—from heart disease and thyroid problems, to bone abnormalities or gall bladder disease. During a diagnostic test, the patient ingests or is injected with a very small amount of radioactive material that travels to the organ or tissue under study. Once introduced, the radioactive isotope gives off gamma rays that can be seen by special imaging equipment called a gamma camera and those images are studied by radiologists to determine a treatment plan. Tests, which are painless and take only a short time, are usually performed on an outpatient basis.

Charlevoix Area Hospital's nuclear medicine accreditation joins the mammography department, which received ACR accreditation in 1992.

More information about the facility's nuclear medicine capabilities is available by calling Charlevoix Area Hospital Nuclear Medicine Department, (231) 547-4024.

Eddi award tickets on sale

In recognition of eddi Offield's personal and positive impact on the quality of life afforded to the people of Emmet and Charlevoix Counties, the Crooked Tree Arts Center is presenting the third annual eddi Awards.

This annual event honors outstanding individuals and organizations for their contributions in the areas of arts and culture in Charlevoix and Emmet counties.

The 2003 nominees represented many talented individuals and organizations.

The selection committee recently met to determine the award recipients, which will be announced at the ceremony. The panel of judges included Bill Aten, Boyne Falls; Russ Bolt and Edith Gilbert, Charlevoix; Candace Fitzsimons and Doug Melvin, Petoskey; Bev Holden, Walloon Lake; Judy Landis and Pat Stedman, Harbor Springs; and Marti Mathers, Boyne City.

JoAnn Dalto of East Jordan and Steve Spencer of Harbor Springs, are co-chairs of the 2003 eddi Awards.

"The jury committee was faced with difficult choices, because so many of the nominees were well deserving and have made tremendous contributions to our community," Spencer said.

Awards will be presented for Visual Artist, Performing Artist, Arts and Cultural Organization, Arts in Education, Arts and Cultural Leadership, Individual Patron Award, Benefactor Award and Lifetime Achievement Award.

Seating is limited and tickets are on sale now.

A new school year starts

to three and four-year-olds for pre-kindergarten programs. There is a waiting list for the four-year-old program with all 17 slots filled but there are still a few spaces open for three-year-olds.

Elementary school principal Richard Swenor is hopeful the program will aid in a smoother transition to kindergarten for both students and parents.

"We're excited because it gives us a good transition for those students. We will have transition meetings with the teachers and know right where those students are," he said.

Sturock said they created the program, which will help feed students into the elementary school, because the community expressed its desire for a preschool program.

"Some agencies in the community dropped out. It was a service we could provide to the community," he said.

"Anything we can do to help our students get an edge makes sense to have us involved in."

The preschool students are not the only new faces to the district. In addition, three teachers and an elementary school counselor are new this year.

They were welcomed in at a breakfast Tuesday morning, Sept. 2, at the high school.

It gave all returning staff a chance to meet the new staff and board members before the students began filing into school a few hours later.

Saint Mary's also made changes in regard to its youngest students Tuesday.

The school has switched from a half day to all day pre-kindergarten program, with the half day option still available.

In talking to other parents and teachers with schools who have an all-day program, the school decided to extend theirs as well.

The pre-kindergarten students will have to become accustomed to mornings as their program has switched from an afternoon to morning running from 9:15 a.m. to 11:15 a.m.

They also have extended the amount of time the day care program runs.

The 4-to 8-year-program will run from 11:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

School officials said they are ready for classes to start.

Appletree business to move

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

The Appletree store will relocate its store temporarily in preparation for the new building to be constructed in its place.

Appletree owner Mike Homes plans to move shortly before construction starts on the new Appletree building.

"We're moving into temporary residence into the winter then into the new building when it's built," he said.

Homes is contemplating several locations, but the move will not be too far from the store's current location at 224 Bridge Street.

"Positively, it has to be downtown," he said.

The Appletree will relocate to a store which would have sat vacant for the winter, but will serve Homes well in his temporary limbo state. He hopes to know within the next couple of weeks where he's moving to.

"We have several choices. We're trying to make a decision," he said.

The Appletree has been located at its current location for 30 years. In that time, the store has accumulated a lot of merchandise which all has to be temporarily relocated. Homes said he is not looking forward to moving.

"It's going to be horrendous. That's why we're having a little sale, so we don't have to move as much," Homes said.

The Appletree is moving so a three story building with a French inspired design, housing both commercial and residential units, can be constructed in its place. The Appletree was sold earlier this summer to Jerry Rutter, an Elk Rapids developer, and his partner Scott Zager from the current owners, Amick Lakeside Realtors.

The builders had originally hoped to begin construction in late August or early September.

Waters off of Charlevoix filled with sunken ships

By STEFANIE CARANO
Staff writer

The waters surrounding Charlevoix contain the remnants of past tragedies and abandoned dreams.

Bodies of many sunken ships lay beneath Lake Charlevoix and Lake Michigan, mostly from Michigan's lumbering boom at the turn of the twentieth century and they continue to be of interest to scientists and historians.

In Oyster Bay is a schooner vessel called the "Jennie Mullen." The ship was named after Mrs. Jennie Mullen, the wife of the original owner, Edward Mullen. It was purchased to haul cargo around the Great Lakes, though it mostly carried wood products between Charlevoix and Chicago.

After many partial sinkings and an accidental collision with another vessel, there was an attempt to make one last voyage to Chicago from Oyster Bay.

But the ship was caught in a summer storm and Captain Thomas D. Smith returned her to the bay in order to salvage the cargo.

When Captain Smith attempted to collect his salvage fee from the owners, they refused to pay and Jennie Mullen became the property of Smith. He stored the ship in various places before it was burned in Oyster Bay along with an abandoned passenger ship the "Joseph Gordon."

Jennie Mullen has been well-documented by reporters and historians. After its burning, the bay became known as the "Port of Dead Ships." It was a convenient dumping ground for vessels that were too expensive to maintain and too old to sell.

According to Charlevoix Historical Society President Dave Miles, the bay was chosen for that purpose.

"The bay wasn't in line of any commercial traffic," he said.

This contradicts earlier reports, quoting the late George Bums as saying the Port of Dead Ships happened "quite by accident," in the 1951 edition of "The Grand Rapids Press." Bums at one time owned all the property surrounding the bay and earlier stories on Jennie Mullen reported in this newspaper were taken from Bums' accounts of its history.

Five other schooner vessels followed Jennie Mullen to a watery grave, the Avery, the Pottawame, the Beaver Queen and the Onekema, as well as later ships such as a water taxi called the "Minnie S."

An exception to these abandoned ships is the rubble of two unidentified vessels. They may have been pounded to pieces around the 1950s. Their history is completely unknown.

Low water levels in recent years have made Jenny Mullen and other ships in Oyster Bay more visible from shore. Coincidentally it was unusually low water levels in 1958 that spurned a story in that year's May edition of "The Michigan Skipper."

According to Miles however, the best way to view the ships is still from a watercraft, which allows for a closer view.

While sunken ships in Lake Charlevoix are essentially underwater junk, they stay preserved by the freshwater that camouflages their remains and they are a part of Charlevoix history.

Like a vacant building, attempts were made to restore an underwater ship named "Keuka," located in Lake Charlevoix near the Foster Boat Works and the Irish Marina.

After expending its use hauling lumber and hay, the ship became a dance hall that towed from Charlevoix to Boyne City and back on Friday and Saturday nights.

Yet, like the Jennie Mullen, it too was eventually abandoned and sunk. Specific reasons for the abandonment remain unclear.

Later on, the ship caught the interest of scientists and city officials. Plans were made to surface Keuka and drain it to convert into a maritime museum. But the plans never panned out and it was rumored that the ship was too fragile to dry.

To this day there has been no official explanation as to why the project was terminated.

In Lake Michigan, many shipwrecks lie like abandoned vehicles leftover from freeway accidents. Collisions and storms usually caused their demise and due to the depth of the waters, currents and water temperatures, the wrecks were never cleaned up.

Off the Charlevoix coast, however, there are two exceptions and both have similar histories to those that lie in Oyster Bay.

A lumber freighter called "the Warrington" was beached in a summer storm and later pounded to pieces, in 1911. Its exact location is unknown.

The "Welcome," a bulk freight, lies two miles west of the Charlevoix harbor entrance. In 1903 it was damaged by boulders and pounded to pieces.

A ship named "Violet" was a commercial fishing vessel that was assaulted by a storm on Christmas Eve of 1910 and sank. Like the "Warrington" its exact whereabouts are unknown.

The most recent shipwreck and the only one in the Charlevoix area for the past 90 years, was that of a fishing vessel called the "Razel Brothers" in 1986. It collided with the Yugoslavian package freighter, the "JablonICA," killing all three of the Razel Brothers' crew. It lies west of Whiskey Island and north of Charlevoix.

Ships in Lake Michigan are not visible from shore and exploration of their remains are generally performed by the Office of State Archaeology.

In early August, State Archaeologist John Halsey made a presentation to a combined Charlevoix and Norwood Historical Societies in which he mentioned the historical importance of the areas abandoned ships.

According to Halsey, in small towns like Norwood the pier, at one time, was the only gateway to the outside world. He believes ships that have sunk around the Charlevoix area tell just as much about Charlevoix as they do about every city they had set port in. He considers each one important.

Underwater ships are easier to view in the lakewater as compared to the ocean. They are also better preserved, as salt water tends to damage their materials.

Appletree plan gets approval from city

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Earl Young's former real estate office found a new home, just in the nick of time.

The late Young is a famous local architect and his over-a-century-old office that sits at 224 Bridge Street will be saved.

"I'm happy someone wants it; I've shopped there (at the Appletree) for years," Jerry Rutter, the new property owner, said.

Charlevoix's city council approved the development plan for the property at its Sept. 2 meeting. The development will replace the office which currently houses the Appletree, a long-time local business, with a three story retail and residential structure.

Earlier this summer the property was purchased by Rutter, an Elk Rapids developer, and his partner Scott Zager, from Charlevoix residents Carol and Ed Amick, owners of Amick Lakeside Realtors.

Rutter and Zager's plan to tear down Young's former office to build their development sparked an outpouring of concern from members of the community who see it as having historic value.

Since then, Charlevoix property owners Steven and Annemarie Roby of Bloomfield Hills have expressed interest in purchasing and relocating the building to their private residence off Auld Street, where they plan to restore it for use as an art studio.

At the Sept. 2 meeting Rutter said council's approval of the development plan was needed before any agreement could be reached with the Robys.

But some council members were concerned to pass any blanket approval that could leave the Appletree building vulnerable.

Third ward council person Shirley Gibson said, "How do we know if we give the approval that it won't be torn down tomor-

Wal-Mart, township officials to meet again

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Work on bringing a Wal-Mart to Charlevoix Township's south side continues as representatives are expected to meet with township officials this month.

Nancy Rajewski, Charlevoix Township trustee and member of the planning commission, said Wal-Mart representatives will be having a preliminary meeting with the planning commission at 7:30 p.m., Sept. 17 at the Charlevoix Township Hall. The representatives are expected to bring their latest plans for a Wal-Mart just south of Marion Center Road on US-31.

"People are welcome to come, but it is not a public hearing," Rajewski said.

She said this meeting is just a way for the representatives to get an idea of what the township officials think of their preliminary plans so far.

Rajewski added she does not know when the company will bring official plans to the township to start the development process.

Corrections

In the Sept. 3 edition of the Charlevoix Courier, a story that appeared on the front page titled, "Classes resumed for students Tuesday," incorrectly stated that Saint Mary School offers a full day pre-kindergarten program. It should have stated the school has a full day kindergarten program and morning pre-kindergarten.

Also, on page 22 in the Aug. 27 edition, Brian James name was misspelled in a cutline.

Five new teachers start school in Charlevoix

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

A new school year at Charlevoix Public Schools brought with it five new teachers.

The five include two natives who have returned to their scholastic stomping grounds, one veteran to the system and two new faces in town.

Kari Boss, 23, a native, accepted a first grade teaching position at Charlevoix Elementary School. This is her second year teaching. Last year, after graduating from Hope College in Holland, she taught second grade at Boyne City Elementary School.

"I am very excited to be working in this community and with the students and staff," she said.

Doug Drenth, 39, echoed Boss' sentiments about returning to his hometown after he spent 13 years teaching in Indiana.

"I've always wanted to come home. I had such a great experience here — there's just something that moves you about the place you grew up," he said.

He and his wife, Tere, returned to the farm where he grew up, just two doors down from his brother, Mark.

While Boss and Drenth reset their roots in town, Kristen Clark, the new counselor at Charlevoix Elementary School and Jill Tabaczka, the new English teacher at Charlevoix High School are getting their feet wet.

Clark, 34, is a Petoskey native who has spent the last five years in Muskegon, where she was also a counselor. She and her family are now living in town. She said she accepted the job in Charlevoix because it is a great place to raise kids.

"I had the benefits of growing up in a small town. It's nice to live in a place where you don't have to freak out if you forget to lock the door," she said.

Clark is looking forward to helping Charlevoix's youngest students steer through the bumps in the road of life.

Tabaczka, 23, will be learning the ropes with Charlevoix's oldest students in her first teaching position. She graduated in May from Central Michigan University with an English major and a speech minor.

She said she is looking forward to a positive first year and to meeting new people at school and in town.

While Clark and Tabaczka adjust to their new positions, Anne Kelly, a veteran in the Charlevoix school system, is breaking in a new classroom.

Kelly taught fourth grade at Charlevoix Elementary School for 14 years. But after over a decade with the fourth grade she opted to make the move to fifth grade at Charlevoix Middle School where she is teaching language arts and science.

Kelly said she is looking forward to the change and to learning with her students.

"It's all new to all of us," she said. "I'm excited to work with the kids on writing. This is an opportunity for me to teach more of what I love to teach."

Fair and balanced, intern update and errors

Jeremy McBain

'Just a thought'

A few thoughts have been simmering in my head at the end of this summer.

Therefore, I thought I would share.

Fair and balanced

In this issue, a letter writer complained about a story the Courier published a few weeks back on whitefish and how they get to our dinner plates. While her arguments about the story were valid and the reporter who wrote the story was informed of her error when it was discovered, the letter writer added one portion to the letter at the end saying we should be like Fox News and provide "fair and balanced" reporting.

This is not the first time I have heard someone compare a 24-hour news channel to newspapers. Therefore, I would like to say if Fox News — or any of the 24 hour news outlets — are really "fair and balanced" then I am the king of England. As I stated in a column a few weeks back, I don't like watching television news — except when it comes to breaking news — because I believe it is biased and does not tell the whole story.

And not just Fox News, it is all of them. Fox News, in my opinion, just happens to be the worst.

Just because a network waves the American flag, slants its stories to take a politically popular side and provides mostly opinionated television personalities to give the news does not make it a "fair and unbiased" bastion of journalism. And I feel for people who fall for that line because they are being fibbed to.

It would be a sad day for the Charlevoix Courier if we started acting like Fox News, CNN, MSNBC or any of the 24-hour riffraff of journalism.

The Charlevoix Courier is already "fair and balanced" because its staff is dedicated to journalism, informing the public, not taking sides or promoting any one group over another and admitting when we make mistakes.

And we don't even have to remind you of that fact with a catchy tag line.

Intern update

We have had a flurry of changes here at the Charlevoix Courier.

It started at the beginning of summer, when our full time reporter Julie Witthoeft took a three month leave of absence to give birth to her baby girl. The changes continued as we took on two interns, Amy Sayre and Stefanie Carano, for the summer to help us keep up with the news during Witthoeft's departure.

Now, Witthoeft is back and the interns are on their way to successful futures.

It is good to have Witthoeft back, but it still was a fun summer that was packed with events and news stories for us to cover. I enjoyed spending time with the interns and teaching them the ways of journalism as I see it and I hope they learned a few things.

I am proud of the way both of our interns grew over the summer into experienced journalists. There was no story they were not willing to go after or subject they were afraid to write about.

I hope you enjoyed that little switch up we had in staffing. Change is what makes this job fun.

To update you on the interns, the last I heard Sayre had accepted a reporting job at the Cadillac News and Carano is taking on some temporary work until classes for her master's degree start in the winter.

I wish them both the best of luck.

Errors

Whenever I make a spelling or grammatical error in the Charlevoix Courier, there is one thing I can count on — being informed of it by several different people.

It bugs me whenever we make a spelling or grammatical error; I tend to be a perfectionist. But, when you put close to 1,000 inches of copy in a publication each week, you are bound to have a few goofs now and then. It's only human.

To make things fair, I have decided to point out some spelling errors I have noticed in the public that I did not make. If you made these goofs, don't take it personally, if I can grin and bear it when someone points out my errors, so can you.

When writing about fun, social events that remind one of the good old days, it is not proper to misspell words to make the event seem more quaint. For example, an old time ice cream social is not spelled, "olde tyme."

"Through" is never spelled "thru."

"Theater" is only spelled "theatre" if that is the proper name of a building, such as Shubert Theatre.

Lastly, only proper nouns and words at the beginning of a sentence are capitalized. For example, the Charlevoix Area Hospital does not get a capital letter if it is just being called the "hospital."

Hey, if I have to get accused of helping lead children down a path of poor grammar and spelling every time I make an error, then others who put written words out in public and make errors can share in this blame with me.

Charlevoix graduate opens new bar, grill in East Jordan

Edith Gilbert

'Behind the news'

Murray's Bar and Grill's logo in East Jordan plainly states "Established in 2003." This touch of humor is not lost on local clientele who drop by to chat with the new young owners, Emily Murray, 23, and Owen Welsh, 26.

You may arrive here by either car or boat. The front of Murray's Bar and Grill faces Main Street while the back deck overlooks Lake Charlevoix.

The place, formerly known as Ansted's, has been completely spruced up, but it still retains the original designed bar area with three televisions, the separate smoke free family porch and an outside deck with umbrellas.

Emily Murray is no stranger to this area. Her great-grandparents, the Lessers, owned their large summer cottage on Dixon Avenue in Charlevoix. She graduated from Charlevoix High School and Michigan State. She first worked as salad girl at the former Parkside Restaurant and has had experience waiting tables at the Charlevoix Country Club. Her partner, Owen Welsh is from Jackson and majored in accounting and has also had restaurant experience. The couple lives upstairs on premises.

They have already survived their first restaurant baptism of fire! On the busy Fourth of July weekend the newly hired chef did not show up for work and hasn't been seen since. Fortunately the staff was able to cope and survive this early emergency.

Many waterfront restaurants seem to think that scenery is enough to please customers. Not so at Murray's. When I went there with a group of friends, the special of the day was chicken ravioli with alfredo sauce. It was so delicious I can't wait to go back again. My friends each had a Murray Burger and a generous chef salad, with ham, turkey, cheese, tomatoes, cucumbers, boiled egg and avocado that were truly appetizing.

The entire menu may be studied on www.murraysbar.com. You will find it innovative, varied and reasonably priced.

The service was friendly and casual. When I ordered a bottle of Heineken beer the pretty young waitress, much to my astonishment, asked me if I would like a glass! Now I have always enjoyed the ritual of pouring beer gently into a tilted glass in order to get just the right amount of foam, but it seems people here occasionally do drink beer straight from the bottle!

"Yes, I would like a glass," I said chuckling and she eagerly obliged.

The new owners of Murray's seem to be on the cusp of an East Jordan revival. Across the street, the newly restored red brick building, now named the Main Street Center will host an extension of the Charlevoix Area Hospital's Physical Therapy Department, the East Jordan Chamber of Commerce and the Charlevoix State Bank and the public school will have a new auditorium. There are more plans for the city in the offing.

Murray's will be open year-round and I for one plan to take the lovely drive along Lake Charlevoix for many return visits.

Letters to the editor

Other resturants should have been mentioned

Editor:

In the Aug. 20 Charlevoix Courier, your article "From the water to the plate — A Fish Tale" piqued my interest. The section on "Cross John Fisheries" should have read "John Cross Fisheries." You dedicated most of the article to a Beaver Island fishing business that is just starting up. Very little interest in the article to Charlevoix fisheries, which in this case is John Cross Fisheries, the oldest family run business in Charlevoix. The article was rather disappointing as it is a business originated and owned by my family.

It was understood that the reporter who called "John Cross Fisheries" for an interview said that she would like to do an article on "The Life of a Fisherman." John Cross III was interviewed, but without his consent, the title of "The Life of a Fisherman" was changed to "A Fish Tale."

I then picked up the Aug. 27 Charlevoix Courier and read Edith Gilbert's column and here we go again. A Charlevoix paper, and like the story on the fishermen, many restaurants are listed, but not one from Charlevoix. I had the feeling that this was a "hometown paper" not Beaver Island, Boyne City, Ellsworth or anywhere else; which is where all the restaurants were listed in both articles.

Charlevoix has a lot of "great restaurants," to name a few, and those I may have left out, please forgive me, such as Terry's Place and The Villager Pub, Argonne, Weathervane, Grey Gables, Whitneys, Charly's, The Country Club, Giuseppe's, Nanny's, Acorn Cafe and Juilleret's. John Cross Fisheries supplies all of these restaurants with fish, and many more places in Boyne City, Petoskey, Walloon Lake, Traverse City and places in between. I have chosen not to mention any of these restaurants because my concern is with the Charlevoix restaurants being left out of the two referenced articles.

The Charlevoix Courier would be wise in doing what Fox News does, in providing "Fair and Balanced reporting."

Jill Picha
Charlevoix

(Editor's response: The Charlevoix Courier not only covers the city of Charlevoix, but also the immediately surrounding area, including Beaver Island. However, most of our stories directly relate to the city of Charlevoix. The Beaver Island fishermen interviewed for the story are not just starting up and have been commercially fishing the waters around the island for generations. When reporters are writing stories, it is not uncommon for the angle of the story to change, but the reporter should have told those whom she had spoken with that it had. The reporter was informed of this error and we apologize for it. Lastly, Edith Gilbert's column is her opinion, not the opinion of the Charlevoix Courier.)

Disappointed with walk

Editor:

I was extremely disappointed in the behavior of some of the participants in the Charlevoix Bridge Walk on Labor Day.

What I thought was to be a fun event and a fund-raiser for the community pool, turned out to be simply a time for trashing the "fudgies." Some "adults" showed up with squirt guns and ran around saying they were going to shoot them at the "fudgies," especially those in convertibles. Another person led a group sing which proclaimed how happy we are that the "fudgies," who do many stupid things in our town, are gone.

I think that a fund-raising event for the pool should welcome everyone in town, year-round residents, summer residents and visitors. We should not be raising money for a community facility by ridiculing any one group.

The Bridge Walk is a great idea, but let's set a better tone next year.

Thank you

Editor:

A special thank you goes out to Clare Martin and Tim Whippo for returning my wallet and money, I lost on my visit to Charlevoix a few weeks ago. It restores my faith in people. I thought it justified a public thank you to let everyone know there are still a lot of good people out there.

Auditions announced for new jazz ensemble

Who: Crooked Tree Arts Center
What it is: Auditions for The Crooked Tree Jazz Voices
When: 1 to 3 p.m., Sept. 13
Where: At the arts center in Petoskey

The Crooked Tree Arts Center has announced a new musical ensemble, The Crooked Tree Jazz Voices.

This ensemble is a 16 member, audition-only jazz vocal group, under the direction of Jim Owen.

Auditions will be from 1 to 3 p.m., Saturday, Sept. 13 at the Crooked Tree Arts Center.

Voice students from Charlevoix and Emmet counties, ages 14-18, are invited to audition and must bring sheet music or a back-up CD or tape. Accompaniment will be provided.

The Crooked Tree Jazz Voices will meet weekly and rehearse music for the jazz repertoire arranged for three to six part harmony in the style of vocal groups such as Manhattan Transfer and Take 6.

Singers will learn jazz and contemporary vocal styles, with continual instruction on proper vocal technique, elements of harmony and choral blend and jazz vocal soloing and improvisation.

The academic year will be divided into two terms, each culminating in short concert, highlighting the group's accomplishments.

This is a high energy, high visibility ensemble featuring the enthusiastic participation of young singers from throughout the two county-area, working together to create musical excellence in an educational and supportive environment.

Crooked Tree Jazz Voices director Jim Owen, grew up in Petoskey, studying music privately and participating in Petoskey High School's award winning choir and band programs.

After graduating from the University of Miami, with a degree in Studio Music and Jazz Voice, he spent five years in California as a solo artist and as a member of a small jazz vocal ensemble throughout the San Francisco Bay Area.

Upon returning to northern Michigan, Owen immediately established himself as one of the Crooked Tree Arts Center's music instructors teaching jazz, classical and musical theater techniques to voice students of all ages.Support for the Crooked Tree Jazz Voices is provided by the Crooked Tree Arts Center's Gerber Music Education Program.

For more information, please contact the Crooked Tree Arts Center at 347-4337 or www.crookedtree.org.

The arts center is located in downtown Petoskey at 461 East Mitchell Street.

Brock family celebrates reunion

Whiting Park was the setting for the reunion of the Aaron and Lulla Brock family on Aug. 31.

Aaron and Lulla Brock, lifelong residents of Charlevoix, raised their four children on the family dairy farm.

Aaron, who operated the dairy farm passed away in 1993. Lulla worked for Charlevoix County for a short period, but spent most of her time teaching at Phelps, Walloon Lake and Charlevoix.

This is the first time all the children were able to attend such a gathering with Ralph (Mary) from Stephenson; Dagmar Muma from Hudsonville; Peter (Cindy) from Hillman; and Aaron (Kim) from Charlevoix.

Thirteen of the 16 grandchildren of Lulla Brock were also able to attend as well as 19 of the 22 great-grandchildren. Families attended from several locations in Michigan as well as Iowa and Ohio.

A golf outing was the previous day with prizes awarded at the reunion. Games were for the great-grandchildren with the grandchildren enjoying the visitation.

A highlight for the event was having Lulla's four children sing a favorite gospel song for the family and a special family giftatory.

Money raised for lighthouse study

The Charlevoix Historical Society has announced that it has raised $5,390 to meet the 50 percent match required by the grant the society received from the State of Michigan.

The Historical Structures Report will be completed by Oct. 24. The report will outline the repairs needed, give an estimate of costs for the specified repairs and prioritize them.

The board will review the report and provide the city of Charlevoix with a copy for their review. Once the review process is complete, the city council will be approached with a request asking them to agree to take ownership of the lighthouse and allow the society to lease the right to maintain the structure.

The society wants to thank everyone who donated money to this project.

Further donations received will be earmarked for the lighthouse project and used to help meet matching requirements for future grants the Society receives to complete repairs to the structure.

Library getting closer to picking design

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

The community is closing in on a final design plan for the new Charlevoix Public Library.

The second design meeting that took place Sept. 3 included review of two possible library layouts and ended with a clear direction where the community wants to take the project.

According to library director Valerie Meyerson, the overall consensus is to build a library with almost all the major functions on the first floor including computer and study areas, a Michigan room, adult, children's and teen sections and a quiet reading area. The second floor will house staff offices and a maintenance room.

Library Building Committee Chairman Alvin Ranger said, "There is a tremendous advantage in keeping everything on one level."

To fit everything in this single floor model, two small additions are needed. The library program, which predicts the library's growth for the next 20 years, calls for a 22,000 square foot building and the old middle school's ground level is roughly 18,000 square feet.

The additions total just under 4,000 square feet of space and house the program room and a children's activity room. The program room is a large meeting area which may include storage space and a kitchen.

At the design meeting discussion of the program room prompted some to question whether the library needs a meeting space in lieu of the city of Charlevoix's planning for a possible convention center.

Meyerson said, "A convention center has a very different mission than the library does."

The design that was deemed less attractive for a number of reasons, located the program room on the second floor.

Locating this room on the second floor worked well in terms of layout, but caused serious operational problems like limited access and difficulty maintaining security. The second floor use also required major high cost floor reconstruction. The floor work brought this option to just under $100,000 more than the single floor model.

Representatives from Clark Construction explained that the single floor plan offers more square footage for less money.

Aside from the money and space, Bill Williams, the project's lead architect with Engberg-Anderson Design Partnerships, said the single floor design will fit the library's needs and function more efficiently.

Now that the general design has been established Meyerson said another set of design workshops will begin in two to three weeks to further develop the library's layout.

"The hard work is really beginning now as we make the vision a reality," Williams said at the meeting.

After the meeting which will likely take place in early October, a final meeting will be scheduled. At the final meeting the design of Charlevoix's future library will be revealed and cost estimates will be discussed.

Meyerson said if the process continues to move forward, the library's capital campaign will begin in two months followed by a millage/ bond issue election in the fall of 2004 and the development of the project's blueprints. Construction is expected to take between one and two years.

"We could be open by the spring of 2006 if all goes well," she said.

Charlevoix, Boyne City trail being discussed

Residents of Charlevoix County are invited to attend a public meeting regarding a proposed non-motorized recreational trail from Boyne City to the City of Charlevoix at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Sept. 17 at the Community Room of the Boyne District Library, 201 Main Street in Boyne City.

The purpose of the meeting is to obtain public input on proposed routes for the trail between Boyne City and Charlevoix.

The Boyne City to Charlevoix Trail Committee is a local citizens' committee composed of members residing in Boyne City, City of Charlevoix, Evangeline, Bay, Hayes and Charlevoix townships.

This committee, formed under the umbrella of the Top of Michigan Trails Council, has been working in conjunction with Charlevoix County to identify viable routes for this trail that will implement a long-term goal of the Charlevoix County Recreation Plan. That goal is to develop a network of non-motorized trails to connect all of the communities in the county.

Input and resolutions of support for the proposed trail have been received from the planning commission in Boyne City and the townships through which the trail would pass — Evangeline, Bay and Hayes townships. The trail, which would start at the northwest city limits of Boyne City, would connect with the recently completed Charlevoix County portion of the Little Traverse Wheelway at some location in Hayes Township and then into the city of Charlevoix.

The trail would also serve as one link in what is hoped to be an eventual trail around Lake Charlevoix.

Test well being drilled for McSauba, city course

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Charlevoix skiers and golfers won't have to rely on snow and rain dances anymore.

City of Charlevoix administrators are hoping to strike water on the north side of town to improve snowmaking at Mount McSauba and sprinkling capabilities at the municipal golf course.

This week a test well on the north side of the golf course is being installed. If a plentiful water source is discovered, this well will provide water to both the ski hill and the golf course.

The water will be used to keep things green for golfers and will be used in conjunction with some other new equipment at the ski hill to make snowmaking more efficient and cheaper.

Bo Boss, head of operations at McSauba, said for the last couple of years his staff has been running a half mile of three inch fire hose around the ski hill to supply the snow guns with water.

"That's a tough job," he said.

This was necessary because the plastic underground lines which were installed in the late 1970s have degraded and can no longer be used. City council approved installation of new electrical pedestals and steel snow-making line at its meeting Sept. 2.

Boss said, to work to capacity, the new snow guns the city has purchased from Nub's Nob require higher water pressure, which can't be supplied by the city supply currently being used, but can be provided if the water supply at the new test well is adequate.

He said the combination of the new water supply, lines and guns will cut snow making time in half and will guarantee that the hill will be open at Christmas. He said Mount McSauba brings in 25 percent of a full season's revenue from Christmas break, so an early opening is imperative.

If the test well finds water it will also serve as a needed water sprinkling source for the golf course.

Currently the golf course is watered by a test well located on the south side of the course that was drilled in the early 1980s. Right now this well is experiencing a failure and is not pulling out the capacity the course needs.

Director of golf at the municipal course, Tom Heid, said the new well will help the city reach the demands for irrigating the course. At its meeting last week city council also approved funds to fix the existing well.

Heid said if both the existing well and the test well are operating, irrigation needs will be met and an expanded area, including roughs that are not watered now, may be sprinkled.

He said the improvement will also help control costs at the course as it will reduce the frequency of watering.

"We'll get more bang for our buck," he said.

If enough of a water source to serve both McSauba and the golf course is not found this week, the city will explore other options, like separate wells or use of domestic water.

These infrastructure improvements will cost the city $243,175 which is $30,000 more than what was budgeted for this year.

On Sept. 2 when the financing was before council for approval, first ward councilman Bill Haggard questioned why the city puts so much money into both recreation facilities that draw on the city's budget.

"It seems we are putting a lot of money into the ski hill and golf course. We subsidize them every year and now it's a quarter of a million dollars in there," he said.

City manager Mike Wiesner said the benefits provided by the facilities outweigh the cost.

"The feeling in the community is that it is always a popular resource that the community values. This is a long-term fix and hopefully the well will operate 20 years from now," he said. "It's a lot of money, but if there is a commitment to the community it's a wise expenditure."

Third ward councilman Sherm Chamberlain said he expects there would be outcry from the community if the recreation facilities were neglected.

Haggard said he agrees that they serve the community well, but that they also serve the extended community including outlying townships.

"City taxpayers are paying for what people in the townships use too," he said.

In spite of the expanded service area, Chamberlain said this is just part of what the city does for the community.

Council ultimately voted unanimously in favor of moving forward with the improvements.

St. Mary has new programs, new teacher

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

St. Mary School is responding to the community's needs by offering new programs.

Heather Sape

"We are trying to answer the needs of the community — those of both parents and children," school principal Janet Troppman said.

In the school administrators quest to respond to the need for easy transitions it has formed two new programs, all day kindergarten and an extended day program.

After visiting Boyne Falls Public Schools last year, Troppman and kindergarten teacher Renée Golovich-Keie became aware of the many benefits to an all day kindergarten classroom.

Troppman said that through research she found that students are coming in more ready now.

"First grade teachers in Boyne Falls whose students have been through the all day program can't believe the difference in the reading ability," she said.

Troppman said the idea behind the extended day is to give students more time to absorb what they are taught, not to saturate them with academics. In the classroom Golovich-Keie teaches core academics in the morning followed by interactive learning after lunch.

With the split, Troppman said students who are not ready for an all day program can still take advantage of the half day.

While the kindergarten classroom has seen some changes to meet the needs of students, the pre-kindergarten has swapped times in response to requests by parents. It was offered last year in the afternoon, but has moved to mornings from 9:15 to 11:15 a.m., Monday through Friday.

The class is available to students who are 4-years-old by Dec. 1.

The pre-K class is lead by a new teacher this year.

Heather Sape replaced Golovich-Keie who now has her hands full with her all day Kindergarten class.

Sape, 28, is a Charlevoix native and a Central Michigan University graduate.

She said she is looking forward to her time in the classroom and is also excited about steering the school's new extended day program.

The extended day will follow morning preschool and will run from 11:15 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday during the school year. It is open to all children ages 4 through 8. The school charges $15 per full day for the program and $10 if the child is there less than three hours.

Troppman said the extended day helps eliminate the transition from school to day care for parents. The school is licensed as a day care facility so the school bus can drop students off. The program is also flexible for parents who don't need consistent care, but find themselves in a pinch.

Sape said children who attend the extended day program will reap the rewards of the school setting as they use the facility's amenities like classroom tools, a library, playground, gymnasium and kitchen. Troppman added that another real advantage is having Sape, a teacher, run the program.

For more information about these programs call St. Mary School at (231) 547-9441.

Pack 11 seeking new members

Pack 11, operated by the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club, invites you and your son to become a part of the group.

Cub Scouting is a valuable resource that can help families accomplish worthy goals while building and strengthening relationships within the family.

Cub Scouting combines fun with educational activities and lifelong values.

It also helps parents to help their boys strengthen character, develop good citizenship, and enhances both mental and physical fitness.

In addition, the program provides boys with positive peer groups and tools to shape their future.

In Cub Scouting, boys learn ideals like honesty, bravery and respect.

These values help boys make constructive decisions throughout their lifetimes and give them the confidence they need to grow and develop.

Pack 11 will be hosting a round-up where boys and parents can find out more about Cub Scouting at 7 p.m., Sept. 15 in the Charlevoix Elementary School Gym.

Carlson resigns, candidate appointed to seat

Some vote against Novotny's appointment

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Charlevoix city council members revealed who they support to fill the open first ward seat in the upcoming November election.

In November Bob Timms and Dave Novotny are running for the seat which was to be vacated at election time by first ward councilman and deputy mayor Norm "Boogie" Carlson, Jr. who has moved into the third ward.

But on Sept. 2 Carlson took an early leave, resigning from council for personal reasons unrelated to his residency.

Carlson served two terms on city council, but found he could no longer give it the time it requires. However, his leave from council isn't a permanent leave from city government — he said he would like to serve the city in the future.

At the council meeting the night Carlson resigned, Novotny was appointed by the majority of council, but was not the unanimous choice.

An initial motion was made by third ward council person Shirley Gibson to appoint former councilman Timms to the vacant seat.

Timms, 69, has lived in Charlevoix since 1957 and has served on and off council for 18 years. He currently serves on the city board of review, a position he would resign if elected to council.

Gibson received support from second ward council person Karen Campbell, but was ultimately shot down by first ward councilman Bill Haggard, second ward councilman Bill Bellows and third ward councilman Sherm Chamberlain.

Chamberlain then entered a motion to appoint Novotny, a former Charlevoix mayor, to the seat. Novotny's appointment received majority support with Bellows and Haggard backing Chamberlain. Gibson and Campbell did not support the appointment.

Norm Carlson

Gibson said she voted against the appointment because Timms is the better man for the position.

"He (Timms) has gone to every single meeting for four years and he was on council for many years. Novotny just started going to meetings," she said.

Novotny said he is happy to be on council and is looking forward to helping make sure everything "goes the way it should in the city."

Dave Novotny

"I want to get through some of the stuff we have on our plate right now like the golf course, the ski hill, the airport and the East Park project that is coming up," he said.

Over the next two months, while Novotny makes decisions as a councilman, voters will have to make their decision as to who the best man is for the seat, Timms or Novotny. The city election will take place Nov. 4.

Man arrested for multiple counts of contributing to minors

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office has arrested a 20-year old Illinois man for multiple counts of Contributing to the Delinquency of Minor children and Possession of Alcohol.

Marc Allen Bennet of Manteno, Ill. was arrested by deputies assigned to the Beaver Island Sheriff's Sub-station on Aug. 30 and flown off Beaver Island.

Deputies began their investigation after the parents of a 14-year-old girl reported she had not come home by 2:30 a.m. on Aug. 30.

The investigation revealed that Bennett allegedly had furnished six minor children, ages 13 - 16 years old, with alcoholic beverages.

Bennett had recently moved to Beaver Island. The investigation further showed that Bennett is a convicted Sex Offender of minor children and is on probation in Illinois for that offense.

The sheriff's office stated Illinois authorities were not aware of his leaving their state and he has pending charges for violation of his sex offender registry in Kankakee County, Ill.

Bennet has been arraigned in 90th District Court and remains lodged in the Charlevoix County Jail in lieu of $10,000 bond.

21 compete in mud run

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix cross country runners left the field Saturday and headed straight for the showers after the annual Charlevoix Classic Mud Run.

The Charlevoix boys' team placed sixth out of 21 teams at the run, losing to four class A teams and Harbor Springs.

Coach Ken Plude said the ninth and tenth grade boys dominated their portion of the meet by placing four runners in the top eight finishers.

Medal winners for the boys were Scott Plude in fifth with a time of 18 minutes, 27 seconds; Brandon Stevens in sixth with a time of 18 minutes, 28 seconds; and Jacob Wimmer in seventh with a time of 18 minutes, 29 seconds. Zach Scharenbroch finished eighth, one place out, with a time of 18 minutes, 43 seconds.

Jerod Hunt was the top runner in the eleventh and twelfth grade race with a twentieth place finish in 18 minutes, 18 seconds.

As for the girls' team, coach Mary Plude said they ran in several small groups, which helped improve some times for a few runners. Anna Taylor, Mallory Mahoney and Jacky Heckendorn finished the course with a faster time than last week's Benzie meet — which was a flat course compared to this.

Charlevoix finished tenth out of 21 teams.

There were no medal winners on the girls' team.

The top five runners for the girls' team were: Caitlin Taylor in thirty-eight, with a time of 25 minutes, 7 seconds; Emily Westenbroek in forty-eighth, with a time of 25 minutes, 35 seconds; Brenna Bergmann in fifty-first, with a time of 24 minutes, 25 seconds; Theresa Martin in fifty-second, with a time of 24 minutes, 25 seconds; and Sonya Plude in fifty-sixth, with a time of 24 minutes, 31 seconds.

Northwest soccer team beats Paradise in tourney

The second time around was much sweater for Charlevoix's Northwest Academy as it avenged a 3-1 loss to Paradise in the Northwest Tournament in August.

Trevor Londgren started the scoring 13 minutes into the first half and would add three more goals that half and the lone goal of the second half.

Alanna Leslie and Josh Kitson both scored their first goals of the year while Jin Han had two assists for the Navigators.

Junior keeper Andy Riley had 15 saves in the shutout.

"We missed a bunch of close shots early and then it started to click," coach Eric Richardson said. "(Northwest) graduated a lot of seasoned players last year, so much of what we are doing is rebuilding."

Richardson praised the hard work of his young team.

"I think a fifth of our school is on the team. Being a smaller school means a lot of younger athletes in varsity roles. Many of these kids are just 13 or 14," he said.

Northwest Academy will travel to Beaver Island for a game to take place at 5 p.m., Sept. 12.

Golf team beats Traverse

The Charlevoix High School varsity golf team beat Traverse City St. Francis in a nine hole match Sept. 4 at the Belvedere Golf Course, 168-173.

Jordan Nystrom was the medalist with a score of 39.

"It was a nice win for us in a non league match," coach Jim Glynn said.

Other scores were: York Smith with a 43, Ryan DeYong with a 44, Chris Wyniawskyj with a 42, Adam Wager with a 48 and Matt Novotny with a 57.

Also competing that day was the Charlevoix High School Junior Varsity team in a tri-match against Traverse City St. Francis and Mancelona. Charlevoix finished second with a score of 206, behind Traverse City's score of 196.

"We have a fine young team that is working hard," Glynn said.

"Coach Bruce Beadoin has done an outstanding job."

Football team loses close game to Benzie Central Friday night

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

A great fourth quarter comeback by Charlevoix came up just short as the Rayders fell to Benzie Central, 21-19 last Friday night at Kipke Field.

Charlevoix trailed 21-7 heading into the fourth quarter and 21-13 when they received a Benzie punt with less than two minutes to go and seventy yards to the Benzie end zone.

Cody Crain engineered the drive, scrambling away from the rush, completing passes moving the Rayders down the field and using the clock wisely. Crain passed to Mitchell Klooster for a 25-yard touchdown strike with six seconds left in the game.

The two-point conversion came up just short as the ball carrier's knees hit the ground just shy of the end zone. Benzie covered Charlevoix's onside kick attempt to preserve the victory.

"We worked on the no huddle offense last week, so we were prepared for that situation," coach Don Jess said. "We moved the ball on them but costly mistakes hurt us."

That combination was never more evident than the Rayders' opening drive when they marched the ball right down the field only to turn it over on a fumble on the Benzie five-yard line.

Benzie scored on a touchdown run later in the first quarter. Charlevoix answered on a 34-yard touchdown pass from Crain to Ben Bergmann to tie the game at 7-7.

On the ensuing kickoff, Benzie had a 80-yard kickoff return for a touchdown to put Benzie back in the lead. The Rayders couldn't move the ball and were forced to punt and Benzie blocked the punt attempt and returned it for a touchdown for a quick 21-7 lead which they held at the half.

In the second half, the Rayder defense stiffened and didn't allow a point.

The only other scoring in the game was a two-yard run by Crain in the fourth period. The extra point conversion failed.

"There were a lot of positives," Jess said. "The team is still positive. We hate to lose and we go into every game expecting to win so we didn't reach our goal."

This week is a key matchup for Charlevoix as they not only open Lake Michigan Conference play but they do so on the road against rival Boyne City who is 2-0.

Basketball team gets two more wins

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

The Charlevoix Rayders kept rolling along with two more wins last week in girls basketball play, defeating Petoskey, 56-35 and Mancelona, 73-21.

Charlevoix is 4-0 on the young season.

Against the Northmen, the Rayders jumped out to a 13-4 first quarter advantage and the game was never seriously in doubt.

Grace Farrell led the way with 19 points on eight for 11 shooting from the floor. She also grabbed six rebounds.

Sarah Cross had 10 points, six rebounds and four assists. Jamie Pettis scored nine points, had four rebounds, three assists and six steals. Kari Way had nine points and five rebounds.

In the game against Mancelona, Charlevoix led 51-16 at the half and only allowed five points in the second half. The Rayders pilfered 19 steals, but only had nine turnovers.

Farrell again was the leading scorer with 12 points. She also had four rebounds and three steals. Rachel Wyniawskyj scored nine points on three for four shooting behind the three-point arc.

Pettis scored seven points on perfect three-for-three shooting, including a three-pointer. Betsy Dennis had seven points and three rebounds. Becca Kanine added six points, three steals and three assists.

Alyssia McDonough and Kari Way also scored six points. Way led the rebounders with seven boards.

At 10 a.m., Dr. Brad Grassmick will demonstrate dissection of a heart and the electrical activity of the organ. The demonstration will include discussion of how diet, exercise and factors like smoking can impact the heart.

An Automated Defibrillator will also be demonstrated during the fair.

Woman prosecuted for identity theft

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office has concluded a ten-month investigation into identity theft in which a suspect obtained five credit cards in the name of an 83-year-old acquaintance and charged approximately $16,000 to them.

The joint investigation by sheriff's detectives and an inspector with the U.S. Postal Service resulted in the successful prosecution of a 45-year-old Charlevoix woman.

Carol Lynn Bruske has been convicted of a felony in 33rd Circuit Court and was sentenced on Sept. 5.

Bruske initially obtained the first credit card in early 2001 while a resident of Leelanau County and then moved through several other northern Michigan counties while using them.

Bruske would make minimal payments on the account balance and finally abandon it when the card would be shut down for being over limit.

She would then apply for a new card from another company.

She established a U.S. Post Office box address in Charlevoix using the assumed name.

Bruske conducted "estate sales" in the Traverse City area using the assumed name and selling some of the fraudulently obtained items.

While executing one of many search warrants issued during this investigation investigators were at Bruske's Charlevoix apartment when a UPS delivered an item which was purchased with one of the fraudulent cards.

The victim's daughter noticed bills from several credit card collection agencies while visiting her mother who was residing in an assisted living facility in Grand Rapids in December 2002 and notified D/Sgt. Don Sproul.

Bruske was in violation of multiple state and federal laws for her activity. Her case was handled through the state court system.

Sheriff George T. Lasater complimented the work of Sproul in following up on this investigation.

Burn ordinance to be discussed

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Charlevoix City Council will look at the city's burn ordinance at its upcoming meeting.

According to city mayor Gabe Campbell the current ordinance should allow for burning of paper within the city limits.

"I burn every day," Campbell said.

And as he remembers it from his time as a city councilman, in 2000 council revised the ordinance to allow for burning of paper.

But city police chief Dennis Halverson said the ordinance on the books that was adopted in 2000 bans all burning of household refuse, including paper. Under the ordinance campfire burns are permitted.

Complaints received by the city police department this summer prompted the discussion as to what the ordinance allows.

Halverson said burning is not an overriding issue or even something he gets weekly complaints about, but because it is summer and windows are open complaints generally do increase.

He said complaints are generally attached to the nuisance odors and in some cases are related to health concerns.

Council will review the issue at its meeting scheduled to take place at 7 p.m., Sept. 14 in the Coast Guard training room located at 109 Bridge Park Drive in Charlevoix.

Charlevoix graduate, author signing his new book Sept. 13

A Charlevoix graduate and renowned author and editor will be in Charlevoix signing copies of his book, "Beyond Glory: Medal of Honor Heroes in Their Own Words."

Larry Smith, a 1958 graduate of Charlevoix High School, a veteran editor formerly with the New York Times and Parade magazine and author of the aforementioned book will be in town celebrating his forty-fifth class reunion.

He plans to sign copies of his work from 1 to 4 p.m., Sept. 13 at the Bridge Street Book Shop located at 407 Bridge Street in Charlevoix.

The book presents the first oral history of living Medal of Honor recipients. It tells the emotional and stirring accounts of extraordinary battlefield courage displayed by 24 recipients of the Medal who served in World War II, the Korean Conflict and the Vietnam War.

With their stories Smith does more than simply recount their inspiring tales of bravery — he captures the very essence of these men who unwittingly became heroes.

In their own words readers see their humanity, passion, nobility, honor and integrity. Their gripping and astonishing tales are told with complete candor exposing the harsh realities of war while also revealing the true nature of patriotic valor.

The book's forward was written by General Norman Schwarzkopf.

Summer residents want old building

row?"

Rutter assured council that the sale of the building to the Robys was a "win-win situation" and that he does plan to sell them the building.

"We are excited to work with him," he said.

However to have the building placed on the Roby lot they will need a variance from the city zoning board of appeals and Robys' attorney Dan Barron said for his clients to apply for the variance they need a contract.

But, without council's development plan approval, Rutter said no contract could be reached.

Council grappled with how it could give Rutter the approval he needed without jeopardizing the building.

Discussion included granting approval with the condition that the building not be demolished until Oct. 15. This buys the Robys some time, but stepped on the toes of the Amicks.

Ed Amick said this condition is a violation of his property rights.

"If we can't get it done by then I don't want the project to be in jeopardy, which I feel meets city code," he said.

In spite of Amick's concern about the violation of his rights, council approved the development plan with the Oct. 15 deadline.

The Robys now have just over a month to reach a contract with Rutter and Zager, to obtain a variance and to move the building. Rutter was working all day Sept. 3 to draw up a contract with the Robys.

In a previous interview Barron said stabilizing the decaying building so that it can be moved without significant damage could take 30 days.

Rutter said he hopes to see construction start by the end of October.

Mike Holmes, owner of the Appletree business, plans to move back into the new building this spring when Rutter said he hopes construction will be complete. Holmes will relocate to another vacant Bridge Street business until then.

Rutter is happy to see the outcome is a "win, win, win" for his development, the historic building and the community.

The possibility of losing this historic building has served as a wake up call in Charlevoix. At last week's meeting, council voted unanimously to establish a historical ad hoc committee.

First ward councilman Bill Haggard said the committee came just in the nick of time — a historical home on Park Avenue was recently demolished.

"It was just as old if not older than this building. The ad hoc committee better get on it," he said.

The committee will study the feasibility of creating a historic district in the downtown area in an effort to preserve buildings and homes like the Young office.

Thank you

Editor:

The Lou Orlowski Memorial Golf Tourney was a great success. This momentous event wouldn't have happened without the thoughtfulness of Ed Holm and the continued support of Grand Knight, Steve Seeley. They certainly worked hard to put it all together.

Lou McKenzie solicited all the prizes. Ed Linse, Mel Morrison, Paul Hoeldere and Bill Bellows withstood the hot sun acting as "Rangers."

All the sponsors were so very generous, and most likely there were some people working behind the scenes. The golf participants made the day and some even walked away with a few awards.

Bill Stevens and his Grange crew served a delicious Swiss Steak dinner, which topped off the day.

Many, many thanks to all of you, we certainly have some fine, fine people living in Charlevoix.

No doubt Lou is giving each of you a smile and a "thumbs-up!"

Editor:

I want to acknowledge and thank Bethany Lutheran Church in Charlevoix for hosting an American Red Cross blood drive for donors with "O" type blood. The blood drive was on July 10. Edith Dale did a first-rate job of coordinating the event.

The members of Bethany Lutheran supplied great refreshments and volunteered their time to work at the drive in several capacities.

Since late spring, the blood supply has been extremely low. The 34 pints collected on July 10 filled a critical need.

On July 24 an American Red Cross Community blood drive in Charlevoix was sponsored by the Venetian Festival.

It was at the Community Reformed Church.

I want to thank Marilyn Boss for distributing the posters around town.

I also want to express my appreciation for the Lions Club members who worked double duty that day at Venetian Festival events and the blood drive.

The volunteer bakers came through again with delicious treats. Many volunteers spent working at the blood drive on such a beautiful summer day. Thank you! I truly admire their dedication!

The Red Cross collected 50 pints on July 24 from 59 donors. A big thanks to all of the donors.

The blood supply continues to be dangerously low.

I want to encourage people to call (800) GIVE-LIFE for information on location and time for the next opportunity to donate blood.

The next community American Red Cross blood drive in Charlevoix is from noon until 5:45 p.m. on Sept. 18 at the Community Reformed Church.

Please mark your calendars. Let's make the results outstanding.

Help band students

Editor:

I was recently at our new, absolutely beautiful, state-of-the-art high school and was amazed at how not "state-of-the-art" or beautiful or furnished or carpeted the new band room is! There is absolutely nothing in the room — no storage cabinets for instruments, no storage facilities for music, no shelving, basically no place to put anything except on the floor.

The sound in the band room bounces off the walls, ceiling and floor.

The director has found some old furniture for her office.

It does seem to me that in this community we should be able to do better than that. I realize that the school funding is meager, at best, right now, but I am also aware that the auditorium and gym are not lacking in any significant way.

Why is the music program the one that takes the hits?

I would hope there are some in our town who would and could come to the aid of the band room. I have personally (with Gail Baldridge) spent the last two years rescuing and organizing all of the middle school, high school and city band music and will be putting in whatever time it takes to repair and paint all of the music stands for the middle school. Help!

I know we can do something about this!

Supercenter in the plans south of Charlevoix

ground is at the site.

These tests are expected to be done later this week.

Representatives from Wal-Mart met with the township planning commission last March to show them preliminary plans for a proposed supercenter. At the time, Rajewski said the meeting was just a way for the representatives to learn what the township officials thoughts were on the development.

According to those preliminary plans, Wal-Mart is considering a 157,400 square foot supercenter, that takes up about 24 acres of land and has 780 parking spaces. The plans also show an area set aside for a possible gas station in the future along US-31, located near the Flight Deck Bar.

Included in their preliminary designs are two entrances and exits on US-31 and Marion Center. On US-31, Wal-Mart indicated it would add an additional lane to the road and put up a traffic signal.

Preliminary plans also showed Wal-Mart would like to relocate a portion of Stover Creek to make room for their development. But township officials were not happy with that part of the development and told Wal-Mart to change it.

Rajewski said at the time there really is nothing the township can do to stop this development from coming into the area. She said in a previous interview that the area Wal-Mart is considering is already zoned commercial.

Celebrant singers to give concert

Jon Stemkowski's Celebrant Singers, an internationally known Christian music ministry, will present a community-wide concert at 6:30 p.m., Oct. 8 at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Charlevoix.

The concert is free of charge and a free-will offering will be taken.

Concert attendees will be treated to contemporary Christian music, praise and worship, personal testimony and ministry.

"Celebrants is not 'just another music group.' Our objective is to share the love of Christ," founder, Jon Stemkowski, said. "It's powerful ministry, and it will touch your heart. Bring your family and friends — it's an experience you won't soon forget."

In their 25 year history, Celebrants have ministered in all 50 states, throughout Canada and in more than 92 nations around the world. They have sung to more than six million people in live concerts and countless others via broadcast media.

During 2002, five teams of Celebrant Singers presented over 1,000 concerts in 15 nations, seven Canadian provinces and the United States.

Stemkowski's Celebrant Singers recently embarked on their fifth ministry tour in Cuba, holding public religious meetings in cities across the country. Other recent international outreaches have included: Middle Eastern nations of Turkey, Armenia, Bahrain, Kuwait and the United Arab Emirates, as well as Korea, Australia, India, Estonia, Hungary and Slovenia.

In 1984, Celebrants ministered in St. Peter's Square before an Easter Week crowd of over 120,000 people. Stemkowski and Celebrants were also honored by a private audience with Pope John Paul II. Celebrants participated in Denver's World Youth Day and Toronto's World Youth Day.

In addition to live appearances, Celebrant Singers have released 13 recordings to date, including cassettes and CD's in Spanish and French.

Celebrant Singers is an outreach of Stone Ministries, Inc., a non-profit Christian corporation ministering to the needs of people through music and the arts.

SCRAPBOOK

Writer shares more harrowing tales of her family

Marilyn Boss

'Days gone by'

The following stories are more of the incidents we have had through the years.

One day, about six years ago, Dale — my husband — took one of our small cars to Traverse City and had four brand new tires installed on it. On the way home he was coming up the long grade this side of Eastport, and met a man attempting to pass a whole line of cars, heading right for him.

It was obvious that there was no room for both of them on the road. The man had nowhere to go, as he was halfway around the string of cars. Dale started to turn right to avoid him and the man began to turn left. Dale locked the brakes up so hard that there were still black streaks on the highway 30 days later.

The guy missed Dale's car by about 8 inches, as he went down through the ditch on his left, right in front of our car. He avoided rolling over, and kept right on going, never stopping to come back to the scene.

The four new tires had flat spots on them as our car slid on the black pavement. Any driver's normal reaction would be to go to the right in a situation like this and thank goodness for the new tires which gripped as well as they did or Dale wouldn't be here today.

Another close call was when our son was building a house across the street. The first floor had just been installed and the basement cement floor had been poured late in the afternoon. Since it was late fall, the crew was troweling cement late at night, because the floor wouldn't dry any faster due to the cold weather. The outside of the cement blocks had been tarred to make them waterproof, but the basement had not yet been back filled.

It was 11 p.m. and very dark and Dale thought he would go across the street and see how the men were doing on the floor. It was so dark he couldn't see anything. Not being able to see that the gap between the ground and the basement wall was forded by a plank, he stepped off into the hole and fell headfirst into the abyss, hands outstretched and landed by the fresh tarred wall next to the footings.

The guys inside heard a thud and raised the canvas which they were working under to see what happened. There was Dale, with tar on him from one end to the other, feeling as foolish as could be.

His neck was a little sore for awhile, and we had to burn his clothes, but other than that, he escaped with not much more than embarrassment.

Our daughters, Sharon and Diane, were little girls when I found an ad in the Courier for swimming lessons which were offered at Depot Beach. The two girls and their sisters, Kay and Kathy went to the beach. Kay and Kathy were placed in the advanced swimmers class and Sharon and Diane were standing there when the instructor asked them if anyone was left whose name wasn't called and they raised their hands.

They actually belonged in the beginners class, but were put in the advanced class. Then, one day, the instructor informed the class that they must swim toward the dock where she was standing. They raised their arms and looked like professional swimmers, but they actually had their feet on the bottom as they "swam" toward the instructor.

The water was cold that summer and when they came home I told them to run around the house 10 times. It warmed them up, but they didn't want to take lessons ever again. The next season, they looked through the paper and saw the ad about lessons and hid the paper. They ended up not having to go as they convinced me of the cold water and the fact that they didn't want to have lessons again.

Then, there's the story of the time our son Bo, his uncle Ike, Leroy Buchanan and Butch Wagner were playing golf by Boyne City. They got in Ike's van and headed for home and found that the Ironton Ferry wasn't running because of a bad storm approaching.

Bo knew of another way to get to East Jordan, and when they came to the road, it was under construction. The detour was very sandy and Ike stepped on it to keep the van moving. Once they started in they had to keep going as there was no place to turn around.

A terrible storm was heading toward them and the fellows were hollering at Ike to keep moving. They made it through. By that time, they were pretty frantic. It was getting pitch black out and as they came to East Jordan they couldn't see any further than 10 to 15 feet ahead of them. All three fellows in the back yelled for Ike to slow down as he was still traveling fast.

It was like a scene out of "twister" with debris blowing by them. The main street was flooded with a great deal of water and beds, appliances and trash were floating by them. Light poles on the bridge were falling down. It only lasted about five minutes and had passed through when they reached the other side of the bridge.

The same storm also hit Gaylord and blew down trees and buildings.

So, these are some of the stories we tell when we get together, enjoying old times and feeling grateful that we survive some of these experiences.

CONCERTS IN THE PARK WERE VERY SUCCESSFUL

The Chamber has had numerous "positive" comments about our City Band on Tuesdays and our Concerts in the Park on Thursdays. It's always good to hear so many great comments about our beautiful town.

CAR RAFFLE PARTY COMING UP FRIDAY, SEPT. 12

Don't forget this year's Chamber of Commerce fund-raising raffle party coming up on September 12 at the Belvedere Club from 6-10pm. Sponsors are Belvedere Club, Blue Cross Blue Shield and Northern Preferred Title. The party will be catered by Terry Left and music will be by Chris Martin. This should be a fun time for all.

8TH ANNUAL GOLF OUTING WAS A SUCCESS

The Charlevoix Chamber began hosting a golf outing in 1996 as a way to thank chamber members and their associates for their support.

Jim Ledahl, Chairman of the 2003 golf outing, did an excellent job in making all the arrangements for this year's Golf Outing and Dinner Extravaganza that was held at the Charlevoix Country Club on August 28. It was a beautiful sunny day and great fun for Chamber members, and their guests. Thank you to everyone who participated. A special thank you to the sponsors and the following volunteers: Jim and Igne Ledahl, and Jerry and Judy Corley, who made the event possible.

There were some great "hole-in-one" prizes this year. Corporate Title Agency sponsored the following hole-in-one prizes: cash prize of $10,000, a Carnival Cruise, a Scottish Golf Vacation, and a $500 Pro Shop Gift Certificate. Crown Motors sponsored: a 2 year lease of a Chrysler Pacifica, tickets to fly to Germany, and a Puerto Rico Vacation.

A big thank you to this year's Golf Outing sponsors:

Football team looking forward to good year

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

With a new coach at the helm and a group of fired up players, the Charlevoix High School varsity football team is gearing up for what it hopes will be a great season.

"They have been doing everything we asked," new coach Don Jess said. "We have some great senior leadership."

Jess came to the team this year after helping former coach Todd Klinger out for a couple of years in the past. He is also a former quarterback for the Charlevoix Rayders — he graduated from Charlevoix in 1994 — and a former wide receiver for Alma College's football team.

Jess also was a player/coach in Norway for a season.

He came back to Charlevoix to work in the family business, Jess Construction. He is married to Jen, a teacher in East Jordan.

The 10 seniors on the team have been doing a great job in getting the other players to work hard and prepare for the season, including off season weight training, Jess said. Over the summer, he said he had 27 guys in the gym lifting.

While Jess would not say who his standout players are, because the Rayders are a team, he did list this year's captains. They are: Troy Coen, Jeff Urban and Josh Carter.

Jess said defensively the team is looking very strong, with a big and fast defensive line.

"We are definitely going to try to stop the run," Jess said. "We are going to see a lot of good running backs."

On the offense, Jess said he would like to try to put the ball up more and has last year's running back, Cody Crain, as his quarterback. Crain will be protected by what Jess calls, "One of the biggest offensive lines of all the teams we face."

While the line is big, Jess stressed they are quick. And they have to be, most of the teams the Rayders will face will have quick defensive linemen.

The bottom line for the team this year is to not get into a slump.

"We have to stay positive. They were 2-7 last year, so the thing is to not let them accept losing," Jess said.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

Girls' basketball season should be exciting in 2003

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

With five seniors and 11 returning varsity players, Charlevoix High School girls' basketball coach Jim Parrish is excited for this season.

"I'm looking forward to a real fun year. I am getting anxious, I want to play ball," Parrish said. "We've got the height and size for rebounds. We have shooters who have confidence in scoring and some speed and depth."

Parrish's seniors this year are Rachel Wyniawskyj, Alyssia McDonough, Rebecca Kanine, Brooke Blanchard and Shayna Drost.

"We have a good group of seniors," he said.

Captains for the team are Blanchard, McDonough and Kanine.

Parrish will also be returning 6 footer Grace Farrell, who combined with Sara Cross — another 6 footer — will really add some great height to the team.

To further roundout his team, Parrish said he has brought up sophomore Shannon Dibble. He said she has done a lot of good things on the court this summer and loves to learn more about the game.

"We want to be there (the regionals) again," Parrish said of one of the team's goals. The Rayders were knocked out of the tournament in the regionals last year.

"Last year I thought we were so young. It was a free year," he said. "We are prepared for this year. Let them bring it to us."

But, Parrish and his Rayders will have some tough competition.

Parrish said Traverse City St. Francis has picked up a real good player from Flint, Kalkaska is still a tough team and East Jordan is "scary," with good players and a good coach.

"We have got to be consistent. We have got to keep them (the Rayders) up and motivated to play. That is the rule," Parrish said.

Parrish said this year he feels like he really has a chance to go far in the tournament.

"Let's start some playing," he said before the season.

CROSS COUNTRY

Cross country filled with talent

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

It should be a good year for the Charlevoix High School girls' and boys' cross country teams, due to both of them having experienced and able runners in their lineups.

Ken Plude, boys' coach, said his team is "young and experienced." He has three freshmen on the varsity team of seven and all of them can run fast.

"Three of them are under 18 minutes, 45 seconds already," he said. "They are looking like they have a good chance of going to state."

Ken has five seniors on the team. They are: Bryan Christiansen, Kyle Kramer, Mike Flowers, John Wilkinson and Josh Fassett.

The seniors have provided a lot of leadership for the team, Ken said, especially Kramer and Christiansen. But, currently, Kramer is out sick, leaving Christiansen as point man for the team.

Plude said the team is running very tight, with less than a minute between the front man and number nine.

"The numbers are going to be the key," he said. "When Kyle (Kramer) gets back, we will be 10, 11 or 12 deep."

Ken is referring to the number of runners he will have to choose from for the varsity team at each meet. With the amount of depth and talent he has, this means he will have a lot of choices for each meet.

"They are all hard workers. They come to practice focused and ready to go," he said. "If I talk too long, they get agitated, they want to run."

Ken added, there are no real egos on the team.

"They work well together," he said.

Mary Plude, girls' coach, said her team has a real good blend of talented runners. There are experienced returners and upstart freshmen.

Mary also has four returning runners who have experience in state meets. They are Brenna Bergmann, Theresa Martin, Sonya Plude and Liz Madison.

Added to this experience, Mary has 10 freshmen coming in who are talented, driven and full of experience from middle school cross country.

"They are a young group, but they have no problem with work ethic," she said. "They are all very tight."

With the youth and experience that she has on the team, Mary said she has 12 solid runners to pick from for the varsity team. And, the difference in their running is only 1 minute from the number one runner to number 12.

"Our goal is to return to state," Mary said.

But first, they will have to go through some tough local teams.

Mary said Elk Rapids has got three "awesome" freshmen on top of talent it already had. Added to that are the tough teams of Harbor Springs, Traverse City St. Francis and Benzie.

Golf team looking good mid-way through season

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The Charlevoix High School varsity golf team is already about a third of the way through its season and they are looking good.

Coach Jim Glynn said the team is playing real well and is a very good team with three solid seniors. They are: Jordan Nystrom, York Smith and Ryan DeYoung.

There area 14 students who have come out for the golf team this year, meaning Glynn has seven on varsity and seven on junior varsity.

"The strength of the team is we are young and have a good nucleus," he said. "We have a big future coming."

In the number one spot for varsity is Nystrom, who Glynn said is shooting real well.

"I think he has an all around game. That is a big advantage to him," he said.

Number two is York Smith, who Glynn also said is playing real well.

"He is improving daily," Glynn said. "Smith is an all around real smart player. He has good course management."

Number three is Ryan DeYoung. Glynn said DeYoung is a steady scorer.

"He has a nice tempo or rhythm to the game," Glynn said.

Plus, all three of his top golfers are all around good athletes. Glynn pointed out Nystrom is a great hockey goalie. Smith is an all state skier and DeYoung is a starting basketball player for the Charlevoix High School varsity team.

Glynn said originally his number four golfer was Chris Golski, but due to the natural competition of the team, Golski was recently beaten out for the spot by Kyle DeYoung.

"I have four or five (golfers) that are pushing for these spots. I am still jiggling positions," he said.

In the fifth spot is Chris Wyniawskyj. Glynn said he has a good, solid work ethic.

And in the last spot is Adam Wager, who Glynn said is a "real quiet, easy-going kid."

"He has a nice demeanor for the game," Glynn said.

There are eight teams in the Lake Michigan Conference, including Charlevoix, with the recently added Grayling. Grayling is currently on top of the conference with Charlevoix, Traverse City St. Francis and Harbor Springs in a three way battle for second.

Soccer team has large turnout, good depth

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix High School varsity soccer coach Josh Block has got a lot of help creating a strong boys' team this year.

With 36 students on the team, one can certainly say Block has got a good amount of depth to turn to.

"We have the most kids we have ever had," he said.

Of those, 16 are returning players and five are returning seniors.

Block said in the past, low numbers of players have hurt the team by not allowing them the chance to put experienced players on the field for the varsity team.

"The problem is in the past we have been on the border of a full junior varsity team. But we have had a middle school program for a few years now and that has made a tremendous difference. We will be able to consistently turn out a full junior varsity squad," Block said.

As for this year's varsity team, Block said the midfield is probably the strongest part of the team. They are: Scott Friske, Bryce Daly, John Dimartino and Mike Dupuis.

Block said Friske is really playing every bit of his size and using his physical strength on the field.

Dupuis, Daly and Dimartino can run the whole field, Block said.

"They really have great ball control. They can pass and work the field," he said.

Added to a strong midfield, Block has a strong goaltender with returner Jake Pace.

"Jake has been one of the best goalies I have ever had. He is big, strong and very smart," Block said.

> "We are still moving kids around to find out where they belong. I think as the season progresses, we will continue to get stronger and stronger."
> Josh Block,
> Varsity soccer coach

Block added, "We are still moving kids around to find out where they belong. I think as the season progresses, we will continue to get stronger and stronger."

Block will need all the strength and skill from his players that he can get, as he is facing two of the top teams in the entire state — Elk Rapids and Chehoygan. Plus, Rayder fans can always expect a good game against Harhor Springs.

GOOD LUCK!

Castle plans expansion

Conference center talk prompts plan

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

After the first season with the Castle Farms up and running, owners Linda and Richard Mueller, Jr. are ready for more.

In 2000, the Muellers bought the Castle Farms, a dairy farm located off M-66 in Charlevoix that was originally constructed in 1917, from the Reibel family.

Since then, they have invested over $2.5 million — roofing buildings, restoring windows and doors, fixing drainage issues, installing new floors, fencing the property, constructing parking lots and working on landscaping and lighting.

This year the facility served as the magical, medieval site for three high school proms, a 2,500 person open house, the Trimper Family Charity Benefit, 15 wedding and reception events, four concerts, tours, children and adult workshops and storytelling activities.

While many would stop here and catch their breath, the Muellers are forging ahead with big plans for 2004.

The Muellers had originally planned to hold off on further renovation until they detected demand for more event space. But Richard said he's seen enough and is ready to invest another $3 million.

Parents question education cuts

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

The budget crunch facing Charlevoix Public Schools is making things a little less cushy for students.

"Cuts across the hoard are affecting extracurricular activities and academics," Superintendent of Charlevoix Puhlic Schools, Dr. John Sturock, said. "You can't cut $900,000 (from the budget) and have the same programs you had a year ago."

As the school year gets underway, parents are noticing the change and many attended the Sept. 8 school board meeting to complain.

At the meeting, parents of students who run cross-country voiced concerns about cramped quarters on the school bus that transports the athletes to away meets.

Currently 54 athletes and four coaches are riding one bus and in some cases are sitting three to a seat.

Athletic director Jim Kanine explained that the decision to only run one bus to away events was made to save the district money.

Vera Keic, a parent of a runner, asked if parents could fund an additional bus.

"Can we fund a bus to make it more comfortable for these kids who work very hard for the school?" she asked.

Board president Dennis Halverson said there is currently no policy that addresses parent funding for school transportation and the board would have to look into that.

While cramped quarters on the cross country bus is on the minds of some parents, seams being stretched in fifth grade classrooms are bothering others.

"There are a growing number of parents talking about fifth grade class size. The new middle school can accommodate large class sizes without cram-

New owner takes helm of Shop of the Gulls

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

A new face has taken over the reins at Charlevoix's Shop of the Gulls.

Charlevoix resident Patricia Blanchard bought the store name and the business from Jeannine Wallace in late August.

"I am delighted and pleased to have the changing of the guard be to someone who will make the shop bigger and better than I did. I really do feel I'm leaving it in good hands and after 39-and-a half years that's important to me," Wallace said.

Blanchard has never worked in retail and is looking forward to learning about customers, shopping and vendors.

She is currently the vice-president of administration at LexaLite International, where she has been employed for 25 years.

Over the last 15 years, owning a store has been part of Blanchard's retirement plan. She said she chose Shop of the Gulls because of its long-standing in the community and its reputation.

"It's a full-time retirement," she said. "Owning a shop is a totally different pace."

She is currently pulling double duty at the store and at LexaLite and plans to continue doing both for a number of years.

"I'm starting to get used to long days," she said.

Her daughter, Nicole Harbison, runs the day-to-day operations at the store.

As she settles in, Wallace is providing her with consulting and easing her into the wonderful world of buying. She and Wallace already went on a buying trip to Traverse City together for next summer's clothing.

Blanchard is looking forward to trips to the big retail markets in Atlanta, Ga., Chicago, Ill. and New York City.

"Jeannine is invaluable to me with her knowledge and experience," Blanchard said.

Other than some technological updates, like the addition of a computer and cash register, Blanchard said she isn't planning any major changes.

"I hope to carry on the traditions she started here," she said.

Wallace retires after 39 years of business

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

A fixture in Charlevoix's business community has retired.

After just under four decades as a Charlevoix merchant, local resident Jeannine Wallace has turned over the keys to 205 Bridge Street, Shop of the Gulls, to new owner Patricia Blanchard.

"It was time. I had knee surgery that prevented me from doing the physical things at a two-story shop," Wallace said.

Over the last 39-and-a-half years Wallace has watched over 100 businesses come and go in downtown Charlevoix, all the while maintaining her vital store.

The secret to her success Wallace said is simple, "Try to do the best you can for your customers so they appreciate what you do and want to come back and see you. Give them quality."

Wallace's business ethic has been with her since 1964 when she was a 20-something getting her feet wet as a new store owner. That year she purchased Shop of the Gulls from Virginia Olsen.

At that time the shop was a little seasonal store located in the current bar area of the Weathervane Inn Restaurant. But in 1969, after five years there, Wallace knew she was missing out on foot traffic and was ready to make her move to Bridge Street's business strip. So she went building shopping and found she had her pick of seven vacant buildings.

She quickly settled in and found business boomed on Bridge Street which enabled her to open her doors year-round — a status she maintained throughout her ownership of the shop.

A long-time fixture of Charlevoix's downtown district has left the scene.

No, this editorial is not about the Appletree building, Appletree business, Wharfside building or any other non-living landmark that stands or stood in the downtown district. This editorial is about a woman who was a landmark of Charlevoix business for over 39 years — Jeannine Wallace.

Wallace has decided to retire from her business, Shop of the Gulls, in downtown Charlevoix after many years of service to the downtown shoppers and visitors.

Wallace first went into business in Charlevoix in 1964, when she bought the Shop of the Gulls from Charlevoix resident Virginia Olsen. At the time, the shop was located in the current bar area of the Weathervane Inn Restaurant and it was seasonal.

But Wallace made the little business bloom. In 1969, she moved into a vacant building on Bridge Street and soon opened her doors year-round. While several Charlevoix businesses close for the winter, Wallace has remained open to serve the needs of visitors and locals alike.

Over the years, Wallace has watched her business pick up, as well as that of many other businesses in the downtown district. And Wallace has helped the community along throughout this time by being a member of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Board, member of the Shade Tree Commission, former member of the city council, member of the Downtown Development Authority (DDA) and member of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce.

And, while she is headed off to retirement, Wallace does not want to leave her beloved Shop of the Gulls or Charlevoix in need. She is planning on staying with the DDA and will consult the new owner of the Shop of the Gulls.

Wallace's dedication to the city of Charlevoix and local businesses over the past 39 years have been commendable. She is truly an icon of Charlevoix and a face that will be missed in the years to come.

Charlevoix writer names new 'disease'

Roger Knutson

'Ear to the ground'

Being creatures of language as we are, the naming of something new in our lives is of the greatest importance.

The modern twenty-first century world is faced with almost innumerable objects, diseases, processes and even creatures that are new to humanity and need names. When words fail us or are too complicated we most commonly resort to acronyms, using the first letters of a series of words to refer to the whole of something new.

Diseases are among the new things we refer to with acronyms. SARS, AIDS and many other acronyms can substitute for a string of words much more difficult to remember or for an idea too uncomfortable to talk about directly. I believe that the makers of acronyms for diseases are beginning to take advantage of us, especially those that work for pharmaceutical companies.

ADHD or to spell it out, attention deficit hyperactivity disorder, can be and sometimes is a serious condition that interferes with a child's ability to learn and interact socially. But nearly every child has some of the symptoms at some time and medication is available.

I consider that in many situations a diagnosis of ADHD becomes a reason to sell a medication. Now we even have AADHD or the adult form of the disease or disorder which dramatically increases the potential users of a medication best prescribed for only the most serious and debilitating forms of the condition.

Heartburn is something of a way of life. I recall the old-time comic Buddy Hackett explaining that when he entered the military and had a lower fat diet, he initially thought that he was dying because his internal fire had gone out.

Hundreds of millions of people have heartburn which is temporary and not harmful. But there are powerful medications available, with and without prescription that will positively prevent any of the symptoms.

We don't talk about heartburn anymore; now it is GERD (Gastroesophageal reflux disease). The millions of people with food-induced heartburn are encouraged to think that they might have a disease which is harming their esophagus. They are urged toward powerful medications that in many cases are at least unnecessary.

We seem to believe that if something is called a disease it needs a cure or a relief of some sort. And it often happens that such relief is very actively advertised by pharmaceutical companies. Once a medication has been approved for even the most obscure and infrequent disease, it can be prescribed or purchased over the counter for any condition.

I am not suggesting that people who are genuinely ill or diseased do not need medication, only that if a disease has a catchy acronym and approved medication, it is potentially overdiagnosed and overmedicated.

In addition to GERD we have GAD, FM, DVT, PMDD, FSD, RLS, ETS, PTSD, ED (Bob Dole disease) along with dozens of others and we have each probably had a few of the symptoms of many of them at some time.

All this is prelude to the announcement of my discovery of a new acronymed disease. It appeared in Charlevoix this summer and continues its devastation.

It is FDD, Fish Deprivation Disease. I have had a bad case for most of the summer and I have spoken to many with the same symptoms. One of the first things the general public needs to know about a new disease is whether it contagious.

FDD is not catching, in fact the major symptom is not catching. Now and then a fish caught will temporarily alleviate the symptoms.

We fortunately have a treatment available locally.

Cross Fisheries, at much lower cost than for most medications does provide us with the means to relieve the symptoms even if not to cure the disease. Sometimes buying a medication is the best solution, but not all of what are called diseases respond so readily.

We don't all have the new diseases and we don't all need the much touted medications.

Letter to the editor

Thank you

Editor:

My mother and I were visiting family when she became extremely ill. We are now back home and she is doing great. We would like to thank the wonderful staff at the Charlevoix Hospital, including the ambulance staff, ER physician and nurses, and the floor nursing staff, who gave my mother the best care ever. Our family sends a special thanks to Dr. Boss and Dr. Wonski, without whom we may have lost my mother.

I would be remiss in not thanking our wonderful family, Lawrence and Jeanette Boss, Harold DeYoung, Jan Boss, Bud and Judy Boss and their children, for all the love, support, food, among others that you gave to me during my mother's hospitalization. We can never thank you enough.

Sheriff: Be careful of buyers clubs

Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater would like to give a few tips from the National Consumer's Fraud Information Center in reference to buyers clubs.

Buyers clubs promise great deals on products or services, but some consumers discover that they've been charged for membership even if they never agreed to join or that the deals aren't so great after all, Lasater said.

Beware of ads for products at incredibly cheap prices or free if you pay for shipping. They may be designed to lure you into a buyers club membership.

Understand how a "trial offer" works. In many cases, you will automatically be charged for a membership when the free time ends unless you contact the club to cancel.

Watch out for "welcome packages." What looks like an offer to join a buyers club may actually be a notice that you've already enrolled. Read the information carefully and contact the club immediately to cancel if you didn't agree to join or the deal was misrepresented.

Comparison shop for the best deals. Despite its claims, the selection and prices that a buyers club offers may not be as good as you can find yourself.

Don't assume that you won't be charged because you didn't give your account number. The club may already have obtained your bank account or credit card number from another company with whom you've done business. Sometimes consumers are transferred from one salesperson to another during the same call and their payment information may be passed along as well.

Ask for details in writing before you agree to join. The deal may not be as great as it sounds once you see exactly how the club works.

Challenge unauthorized charges or debits immediately. Contact your credit card issuer or bank to explain the problem and ask for your account to be credited. Follow up in writing and keep a copy of your letter.

If you think you've fallen prey to a scam, contact the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office, e-mail National Consumer's Fraud Information Center online at www.fraud.org or call the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Office at 373-1140.

Tips on avoiding telephone scams

Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater warns older consumers they are the age group most often targeted by telemarketing cons.

The best defense against consumer fraud is to recognize the danger signs. The following is a list of the "Top 10 Telemarketing Frauds:"

1) Credit card offers
2) Work-at-Home Plans
3) Prizes/sweepstakes
4) Advance fee loans
5) Magazine sales
6) Buyers Clubs
7) Nigerian money offers
8) Telephone slamming
9) Travel/vacations
10) Credit card loss protection plans.

Sheriff Lasater offers these simple tips to protect yourself from fraud:

- Resist pressure to act immediately; don't succumb to scare tactics.
- Don't believe promises of easy ways to win, borrow or earn money.
- Only provide your credit card or banking information when you are using that account to make a purchase.
- Be aware that crooks often ask for payment by wire or courier to get their victim's money quickly and avoid detection.
- Check out unfamiliar sellers and charities with your state or local consumer protection agency, Better Business Bureau or local law enforcement.

City gets award

On Aug. 13, 2003, the city of Charlevoix was formally recognized for having its written investment policy certified by the Association of Public Treasurers of the United States and Canada.

Earlier this year, the city's policy was reviewed and certified as meeting the standards set forth by the group. The city was honored at the group's Thirty-eighth Annual Conference in Washington, D.C.

The city of Charlevoix is one of only 41 governments to have its investment policy certified by the Association's Investment Policy Certification Program, which was developed in 1990. The program was instituted in an effort to assist state and local governments interested in drafting or improving upon an existing investment policy.

As part of the program, the association has created a "model" investment policy. The model includes sample language and rational for those 18 sections that the association deems as critical elements included in the model: liquidity; selection and review of suitable investment instruments; internal controls; reporting; portfolio diversification; custody and safekeeping; selection of investment institution criteria; ethics and conflicts of interest.

A written investment policy is only certified when the Association's Investment Policy Review Team acknowledges that the policy has met all criteria set forth in the program. Of the policies received each year for review, only two-thirds of the policies reviewed are accepted on their first submission.

Those not initially approved are encouraged to amend their policies and resubmit for certification.

For further information or a copy of the Model Investment Policy and Application, contact the group at (202) 737-0660 or on the Internet at www.aptusc.org.

Seventy-seven awarded scholarships

This fall, college tuition will be a little easier on the pockets of area families, thanks to scholarships totaling over $80,000 recently awarded through the Charlevoix County Community Foundation.

There were seventy-seven Charlevoix County graduates chosen to receive scholarships from special funds held by the community foundation. All funds were established by local citizens — to honor family members, civic leaders and educators. Among the Charlevoix High School students receiving scholarships are:

COMMUNITY

Grant deadlines approaching for foundations

Once again, it's time to put local charitable dollars to work on behalf of the community.

The Petoskey-Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation and the Charlevoix County Community Foundation are inviting nonprofit organizations, educational institutions and municipalities who are in need of funding to submit grant requests in support of their projects.

During the next few months, the community foundations and their Youth Advisory Committees (YACs) will review grant proposals to help fund health initiatives, community development projects, education, the arts and cultural events, environmental efforts and human service programs. The committees, which are made up of representatives from high schools throughout Charlevoix and Emmet counties will award grants to programs that serve children and teens.

Programs chosen for funding must serve residents of Emmet County or Charlevoix County, meet an urgent need, or enrich life for local residents in some way. The deadline for grant requests is Oct. 1, 2003.

Grant applications are available by calling the appropriate community foundation office. All applicants must call and discuss their proposals in advance. Foundation staff is available to offer advice and assistance to organizations interested in applying for funds.

Both community foundations are grassroots charitable organizations made up of various funds — all of them established by local donors. Some funds are earmarked for specific causes, and others are open-ended to meet changing needs. The funds are held in permanent endowment, so they can continue to grow and generate income to enhance the quality of life in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties, now and for generations to come.

Together, the community foundations grant-making total amounts to more than $7.5 million.

For more information about the local community foundations grant-making process, establishing a fund or making a gift, please contact the Petoskey-Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation at 616 Petoskey Street, Petoskey, MI, 49770, by phone at (231) 348-5820, or the Charlevoix County Community Foundation at P.O. Lake Charlevoix Mariners sailing school season ends

The fifteenth season of the Lake Charlevoix Mariners 4-H Sailing School season ended Aug. 15.

More than 450 youth were part of the program this summer. Safety on the water and the fun of leaning to sail were stressed again this summer.

The nine week daily program began in Boyne City on June 9 then moved to Charlevoix from July 7 to Aug. 15.

In Boyne City, the program was at the Boyne City marina and in Charlevoix at Depot Beach. A family picnic and area open house were given at each location on June 10 and July 18.

Parents were able to spend each Friday morning or afternoon on the water in a 30' sailboat to observe and photograph their child sailing. The students were able to earn awards for ability levels as they progressed.

These ranged from Seaman third through first class, mate third up to first class and ultimately skipper certification. Ribbons and certificates were awarded each Friday to those who earned a new rank and other special achievements.

The program was especially proud to begin the season with eight new boats and a new six boat trailer. The boats used by the program include nine JY-15s, 5 Optimist Dinghies, a J-22 and three instructor power boats.

All instructors are trained by very specific guidelines for teaching and sailing expertise set up by US Sailing, the governing body of the sport.

Five junior leaders were also trained this summer in the four day long US SAILING certification class. They all hold Red Cross certification as well.

The instructors this year were Laura Schira, Margaret Lindholm, with head instructor Tom Kelly and Tom Orlow as program director, all having returned from last year. The program regrets to lose Tom Kelly, a junior at Boston College, who has done an outstanding job with the program for four seasons. He will pursue his future medical career next summer.

The students also had several opportunities to race, either during racing clinics given every Tuesday and Friday evening or crewing in Wednesday night Charlevoix Yacht Club races or Tuesday night Boyne City Yacht Club races.

The program kept the enrollment fees reasonable and make sailing affordable to all through scholarships available as a result of area business, organization and individual support as well as the boat auction and volunteer help.

Three sessions (six classes each) of adult classes were given this summer, one in Boyne City and two in Charlevoix with a total of 41 participating on Monday and Thursday evenings throughout the season. These sessions were organized through Boyne City Community Education.

The annual Boat Auction, which is the only fund-raiser of the program, was on Saturday, Aug. 9 on Ferry Avenue. This year's auction was extremely successful with 41 boats, various equipment and marine related items sold.

The profits are used for the maintenance of the boats, motors and equipment, purchasing additional boats for the fleet, dock and storage improvements, scholarships and others.

The Lake Charlevoix Mariners Board members include Dick Schaible as president; Tom Barnes -'treasurer; Steve Weber - secretary; Jeff Glenny - auction chair; Keith Attee - technical advice. The 4-H office in Boyne City, under the leadership of Sue Shenk, are a valued part of the youth sailing school program and its operation.

If you would like to receive a brochure for the 2004 season call 582-6232. If you would like to donate a boat, equipment or others now for the 2004 auction call Jeff Glenny at 547-9967.

Dental Clinics North will not accept any new patients

Effective Oct. 1, Dental Clinics North will not accept any new adult dental patents except those who require emergency assistance because of pain or infection.

Services for such patients will be limited to an examination, x-rays and the extraction of teeth, if required.

The clinic will continue to treat adult Medicaid patients who have prior authorization for oral health services from the Michigan Medicaid Program until the authorized treatment is completed. All such prior authorizations expire March 31, 2004.

The operating schedule of the clinic locations are being reduced according to Gerald Chase, Health Office for the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, the local health department that administers Dental Clinics North's 10 locations. Over 30 employees have been notified of a reduction in their work schedules as a result of the cuts.

Further reductions will be implemented as the full impact of the elimination of Medicaid Adult Oral Health benefits becomes clear, he said.

Charlevoix woman injured in two vehicle accident Sept. 14

A 33-year-old Charlevoix woman was injured in a automobile accident around 4 p.m., Sept. 14 in Charlevoix Township on Boyne City/Charlevoix Road, near US-31 North.

A 19-year-old Charlevoix man was traveling west in a 1991 Ford Explorer on the Boyne City Charlevoix Road when he crossed the center-line at the curve near US-31 North, striking the side of a 1991 Ford Lincoln traveling east driven by the Charlevoix woman.

The Charlevoix woman was transported to Charlevoix Area Hospital where she was treated and released for lacerations to her face and arms from broken glass.

The man from Charlevoix was traveling too fast for the wet road conditions. Both vehicles were a total loss.

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department was assisted at the scene by the City of Charlevoix EMS.

Charlevoix gears up for another Crop Walk

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Charlevoix County residents are gearing up to fight world hunger by lacing up their sneakers and walking six miles in the upcoming Twentieth Annual CROP Walk.

The Charlevoix County Crop Walk is one of over 2,000 interfaith, community CROP Walks taking place around the country this year under the theme, "You can make a difference."

The walk will take place from 9 a.m. to noon, Sept. 27. Charlevoix participants will begin at the Charlevoix Middle School and will end in Ironton. Walkers are asked to arrive at 8:30 a.m. to register and turn in their sponsorship sheets.

Refreshments provided by the Boyne Valley Lions Club will be served at the Ironton Congregational Church after the walk. Transportation will then be provided back to the middle school.

While the walk is business as usual for many veteran walkers and coordinators, one familiar face has taken a step back.

Charlevoix's coordinator for the past 13 years Kay Smith has decided to retire her sneakers.

"It's been wonderful over the years and it's hard to give it up. But I don't have the energy to do it. I'm 79 and it's just too much," she said.

Even though she will be working behind the scenes this year, Smith urges all members of the community to come out and join this worthy cause.

"It's one way to help people who are needy and it only takes energy. It's just such a worthwhile thing," she said.

John Young, a member of Charlevoix's First Congregational Church, one of the walk's sponsoring churches, is taking over for Smith.

Young met with CROP Walk coordinators from Boyne City and East Jordan and with Johanna Balzer assistant director of Church World Service to set goals for this year's walk. A goal of $20,000 was set with the hope that 150 walkers from the three cities would each raise $100 or more. Walkers earning $150 or more will be rewarded with a special pin.

Funds raised by Charlevoix, East Jordan and Boyne City walkers are pooled and divided with one quarter of the earnings split three ways. The remaining 75 percent is then distributed globally to those in need.

In the 20 years the walk has been a Charlevoix staple, walkers have raised over $14,000 for the local food pantry.

"That money helps pay for groceries. That really helps us," Maxine Bergmann, food pantry coordinator, said.

Official: Contamination may be under field

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Groundwater and soil at Charlevoix Middle School may have been contaminated by a gasoline system leak that occurred at the neighboring Shell station.

At its meeting Sept. 8 the Charlevoix School Board voted to give Alpena Oil Company access to the school site to install test wells that will sample the groundwater to see if contamination from the nearby gas station has migrated onto school property.

Superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools Dr. John Sturock, said, "They are going to sink monitoring wells to see if anything is coming off of their site. It's nothing to be alarmed about. They're responsible for anything that comes out of it."

Craig Oakley, senior environmental quality analyst with the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality (MDEQ), said soil and groundwater contamination at the gas station, located at 1308 Bridge Street in Charlevoix, was confirmed in March of 1995. The source of the petroleum product contaminant was pinpointed as an underground storage tank system.

As part of the reporting process required by the MDEQ, Alpena Oil must define the extent of the contamination in the soil and the groundwater.

In April of 1997, the company submitted a final assessment report that defined the contaminated area, but were told their definition was inadequate and should include the school property.

Oakley said water in that area moves northeast toward the football field where the company will look now.

In the next couple of months, test wells will be installed underground on the school property between the track and the Shell station. Oakley said samples from those wells should take a couple of weeks to collect.

He said petroleum products float so the tests will look at concentrations of the contaminant and the extent of contamination in the water table first and then in the aquifer.

Depending on the results, more wells may be needed in different locations around the school property.

"We need to know the extent of contamination and the concentration down gradient to make sure there is no risk to people in the area," Oakley said.

He added that because homes and the school operate using city water, the groundwater contamination poses no immediate risk to people around the gas station.

However, he said exposure may occur on the field if concentrations are high enough to filter through the soil and grass to be inhaled.

"But the chances of that aren't good," he said. "It would have to be a really high concentration for it to be a risk factor."

Jere Johnston, president of Alpena Oil Company said he expects to discover very low concentration at the middle school.

"We really don't expect to find anything," he said.

After the contamination has been fully defined in the soil and groundwater, Alpena Oil and the MDEQ will look at possible avenues to reach closure.

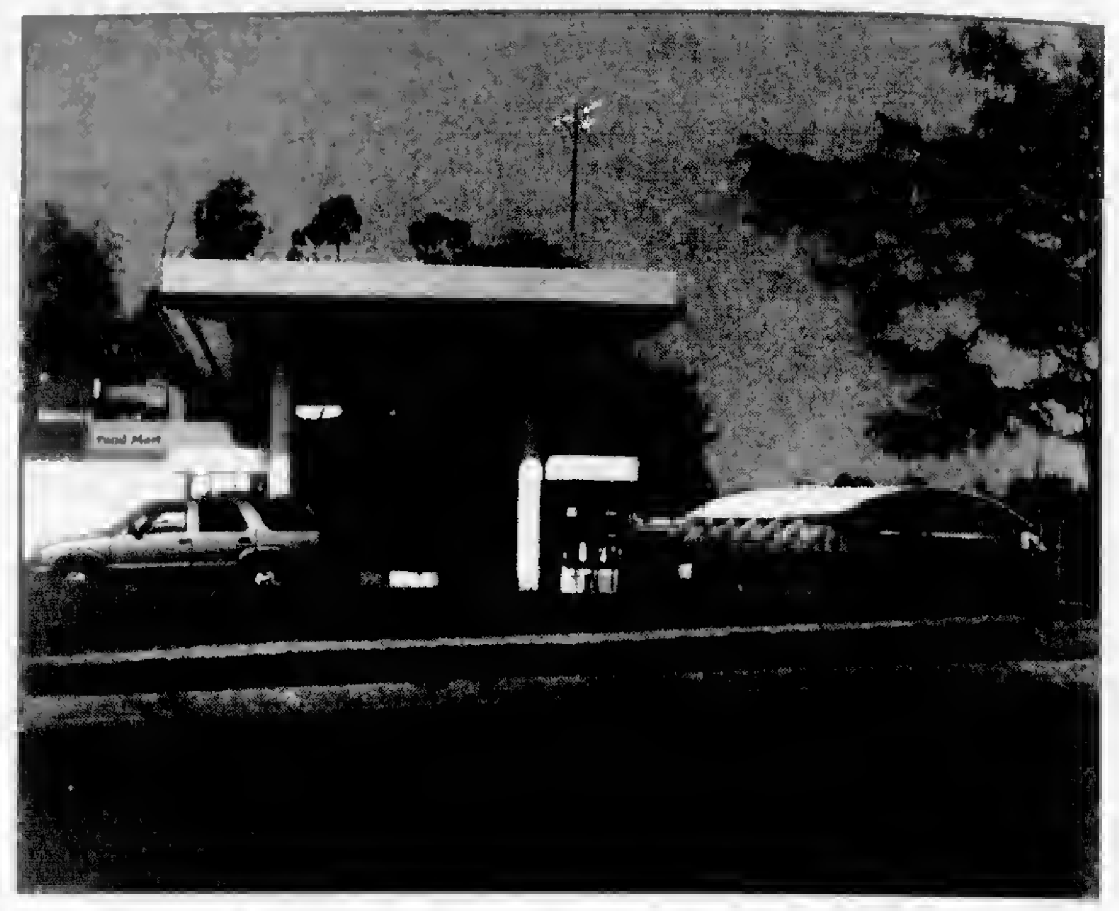
Oakley said this could mean a clean-up or it could mean allowing natural microbes to eat away at the contaminant or Alpena Oil representatives could ask the school board to place a deed restriction on the property under which groundwater could not be accessed.

Johnston said he expects that the final step will be to allow nature to take its course.

Oakley said a decision as to which of these final steps toward closure is chosen depends on the level of concentration that is detected.

Once the desired avenue has been selected Alpena Oil will put together a corrective action plan which will spell out how they plan to rectify the situation.

"Hopefully, two to seven years down the road we can submit a closure report," Oakley said.



In the middle 1990s petroleum contamination was found in the groundwater and soil at this Shell gas station located at 1308 Bridge Street in Charlevoix. Now test wells will be put in at the nearby Charlevoix Middle School to see if the contamination has traveled there. (Photo by Julie Witthoeft)

A residential build-out analysis conducted by the Charlevoix County Planning Department found most townships in Charlevoix County are over zoned for residential development. (Courtesy graphic)

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

A recent study found that townships in Charlevoix County are grossly over zoned for residential development.

The Charlevoix County Planning Department conducted a build-out analysis that looked at the maximum residential development that could occur under the townships' current zoning ordinances.

The 2000 census showed 16,716 people living in the county's 15 townships. At build-out that figure jumps 523 percent to 130,580 people.

"This opens up the community's eyes as to what we are zoning for," county planner Larry Sullivan said.

According to Sullivan the overarching finding was communities tend to be over-zoned for residential development.

He explained that a zoning ordinance is supposed to show what the community wants to look like over a five year period and that the build-out potential current zoning ordinances allow for, far exceeds needs in the next five years.

Build-out was not defined as a specific amount of time because townships will grow at different rates, but rather as a point in time when they will reach capacity.

"Quite honestly this probably will never happen, but the problem is the ordinance allows it to happen," Sullivan said. "I think the numbers are higher than many communities want to see them."

Too much residential zoning found

BUILD-OUT

He said the over-zoning is a problem because if it truly represents the development desires of the townships, those townships will run into funding problems in providing roads and utilities to those residential dwelling units.

He said studies have shown residential development uses between $1.22 to $1.56 in services for every $1 in revenue it generates.

Cost is not the only issue this type of development would impact, it would also alter the county's landscape in a major way.

The authors of the study state, "As the bulk of local zoning ordinances are currently written, the farms, forests, fields and scenic vistas that provide the heauty and charm of Charlevoix County could very well cease to exist."

The study said this development will continue unless major changes to zoning ordinances are made.

"A lot of the townships need to update their ordinance and to look at the philosophy behind their zoning ordinance," Sullivan said.

The analysis suggests changes to agricultural districts where many current ordinances allow for a large amount of residential development. It suggests that instead of allowing small and large lots in the agricultural district, to allow a limited number of small lots that are clustered leaving the bulk of the land open for farming.

Sullivan said to cut costs, development should also come in waves so infrastructure is built to service more than one dwelling unit.

Another solution suggested is to allow for high density residential developments.

The build-out analysis has not yet been shown to all the townships, but Sullivan suggests that each uses it as a tool to update their ordinance.

He said each needs to answer two key questions: One, "Is this what the township wants to see in terms of numbers." And two, "where in the community is the development happening and is this where the township's residents want to see it happen."

Wallace to consult new Gulls owner for a time

WALLACE

Over the years she said she ran into hard times once in a while, but always found her work gratifying.

"You meet so many wonderful people in retail. The years have come and gone, but all of my best friends started out as customers that I didn't even know. I feel so fortunate," she said.

As she watched her store's clientele bloom and business pick up, little-by-little she also saw the entire business district become more viable. She attributes this in part to the forward thinking of Charlevoix's Downtown Development Authority (DDA), which she has been a member of on and off since its inception in 1982.

"I'm very proud of how the city has created a really comfortable, charming, quaint downtown," she said.

Wallace has also helped bolster the community as a member of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Board, an original member of the Shade Tree Commission, a second ward city council member and a member of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors.

"That's important. If you are in business in Charlevoix you better give back because you rely on the community," she said.

Retiring from life as a tried and true, thick-skinned business woman won't be easy. Wallace said she will miss her customers and friends and her daily routine.

> "I'm really proud of how the city has created a really comfortable, quaint downtown."

> Jeannine Wallace
> Retiring owner of Shop of the Gulls

The change has her stepping back and asking herself, "Whoa, now what."

With Wallace the question isn't "now what," it's "what's next."

"I am ready to begin a new adventure and I intend to have many more adventures," she said.

Wallace is planning to continue serving as a member of the DDA and will help ease Blanchard into her new role as owner of Shop of the Gulls by offering her consulting.

Eye surgeon to have Charlevoix office hours

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix residents in need of eye surgery now have a local option with Dr. Peter D. Fedor and his practice Great Lakes Eye Consultants.

Great Lakes Eye Consultants opened a local office this summer at 14730 Park Avenue in Charlevoix. Fedor specializes in eye surgery, such as general eye surgery, laser eye surgery and cataract surgery.

He also offers consultation for other doctors and eye examinations.

Dr. Peter Fedor

What makes his business unique is all of these services are performed locally at the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

This means his patients do not have to travel to get their eye care.

Fedor said he decided to open a practice in Charlevoix because he saw a need for it. While he is a resident of Traverse City, he said he has visited Charlevoix many times in the past.

Currently Fedor is in the office once every two weeks, but is planning on making weekly office visits sometime in the near future.

He also has offices in Gaylord, Grayling and Traverse City.

Fedor is a graduate of Comenius University in Czecho-Slovakia and has completed formal seven-year postgraduate training, including residences in Ophthalmology and internal medicine and subspecialty fellowship training in cornea, at Henry Ford Health System.

He has practiced in Grosse Pointe and in the Traverse City area.

He also studied in the United Kingdom, Germany, Sweden and presented his research at numerous international forums.

Fedor can be contacted by calling (800) 873-8098.

Community mediation announces new director

The Board of Directors of Northern Community Mediation (NCM) have announced the appointment of Jane Millar as the new executive director.

Dr. Millar replaced Maartje Nolan, who has resigned so that she can spend more time with her family.

According to John Rohe, vice-president of NCM, "Maartje has restored peace and understanding to relationships over the years of her service to mediation. We have been privileged with her dedication and commitment."

For the past 10 years, Millar has worked for the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District, where she managed programming for PACE TV and oversaw the enrichment projects. She has a bachelor's degree from Albion College, a master's degree from St. Lawrence University and a doctorate from Eastern Michigan University.

"Northern Community Mediation has come a long way in the past 10 years under the previous executive directors and now we look forward to continued growth under Jane's leadership. We believe she has the credentials and ability to get (the organization) to the next level of growth," said president of the organization Lou Fantini.

Millar said, "I hope to continue with the initiatives of the past director, as well as move forward into new dimensions."

The organization is a non-profit group that relies upon mediation in resolving disputes. Mediation is a process in which two or more people involved in a dispute meet in a private, confidential setting with trained, neutral mediators, who assist the participants in finding a solution to the problem.

Breach of contract, consumer/merchant, landlord/tenant, neighborhood, employer/employee, professional/client, property/real estate, domestic relations, guardianship and divorce are examples or the types of cases the organization mediates.

For more information contact Millar by calling 547-1771.

Charlevoix Middle school 'gets charged'

Great Lakes Energy Cooperative has teamed up with Touchstone Energy and the Discovery Channel School to help local middle school students throughout the Great Lakes Energy service area develop a more in-depth understanding of electricity.

The new "Get Charged" program being introduced this fall to 65 area middle schools, including Charlevoix Middle School, was developed by the Discovery Channel School, provider of educational materials to schools nationwide.

The program — which provides basic information about electricity, how it works and how to use it — will be administered through Great Lakes Energy Cooperative, which is part of the Touchstone Energy Cooperative group sponsoring this new educational initiative.

Middle school students in grades five through nine will take part in the program, which will provide a variety of educational tools including videos, CD-ROM's, a Teachers Resource Guide, student activity books and other collateral materials — all at no charge — to augment the existing curriculum.

In support of its ongoing commitment to community service, Great Lakes Energy Cooperative is launching the "Get Charged" program to give students a real-world understanding of power, the purpose of electricity, and the important role electric cooperatives play in delivering the "juice" that runs their everyday lives.

"We are delighted to provide their materials to local schools," Steve Boeckman, president and CEO of Great Lakes Energy Cooperative, said.

"This program is the latest in our ongoing school safety initiatives that we have provided for many years."

Drawing on Discovery's award-winning programming for much of its content, the curriculum and materials used in the program were developed specifically by Discovery Channel School for classroom use and comply with National Science Education Standards. Discovery Channel School products have been developed by the world's most respected brand for television quality and recognized by leading educational groups for their excellence.

The program represents a first-time partnership for Discovery with a non-educational entity to provide content directly to schools.

"Lots of kids are still in the dark about electricity," Paul Thomas, vice president of Discovery Education, said. "We're delighted to partner with the Touchstone Energy Cooperatives to help get kids energized about power."

Since the late 1930s Great Lakes Energy Cooperative has produced energy services throughout Michigan. Currently, Great Lakes Energy serves more than 119,000 consumers statewide with electricity and other services such as propane and heating and cooling services, Internet service and long distance phone service.

In addition to offering the "Get Charged" program, Great Lakes Energy Cooperative also offers free safety demonstrations to schools and community groups and sponsors local community events throughout its service area.

These free safety demonstrations can be scheduled by calling Great Lakes Energy at (888) 485-2537, ext. 1313.

Parenting workshop to start next month

A parenting workshop, based on the best-selling book, "How to Talk So Kids Will Listen & Listen So Kids Will Talk," starts next month.

The six session workshop will start Oct. 15 at the Women's Resource Center in Petoskey.

Parents will learn proven skills such as how to set time limits while maintaining goodwill, cope with their child's negative feelings, express anger without hurting, engage their child's willing cooperation and help their child become caring and responsible. Parents will also learn how to resolve conflicts peacefully and create a family atmosphere of love and respect.

The workshop is sponsored by the Women's Resource Center and will be led by Joann F. Townsend, ACSW.

The cost of the workshop is $75 per person or $80 per couple.

Materials are included. Funding sources are available. Contact the Charlevoix-Emmet Family Independence Agency or the Women's Resource Center for an application.

Sessions will take place from 6:30 to 8 p.m., Oct. 15, 22, 29 and Nov. 5, 12 and 19. Certificates of completion will be awarded at the conclusion of the program.

Advance registration and payment is requested. Space is limited.

"Parents are on the firing line seven days a week. Yet few of them have had any training for this demanding job. No wonder even the most well-intentioned parents often find themselves feeling frustrated, bewildered, guilty or alone," Adele Faber and Elaine Mazlish, awarding winning authors of the book and program, said.

"The How to Talk So Kids Will Listen workshop gives parents a chance to learn practical new skills and exchange ideas and experiences with each other," Townsend said.

Hundreds of thousands of parents and professionals have benefited from the workshop. In studies in Wisconsin, Colorado and North Dakota, researchers found that attending parents developed skills that significantly and lastingly improved the quality of their family life.

They also found these new-found skills worked equally well with children of all ages.

To register, call the Women's Resource Center at (231) 347-0067.

Cross country teams showing improvement

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The varsity boys cross country team finished fourth in Division III at the All Division Ludington Invitational Sept. 13 while the girls' team finished tenth.

The boys' final score was 102, behind Mason County Central with 77. Benzie Central took first with 45.

Medalists for the boys' team were: Jerad Hunt, who finished fourth in Division III with a time of 17 minutes, 52 seconds; Scott Plude, who finished nineteenth, with a time of 18 minutes, 54 seconds; Zach Scharenbrach, who finished twenty-third with a time of 19 minutes, 4 seconds; and Nate Sotuyo, who finished twenty-fifth, with a time of 19 minutes, 13 seconds.

Girls' coach Mary Plude said, "We had a slow start for the first 2,000 meters and this cost the girls better times in the end. We were able to comeback for the win by really pushing over the final mile. That final mile is all hills — seven hills in all."

Medalists for the girls' team were: Lindi Edger, who was thirty-first overall and fifth in division III with a time of 22 minutes, 57 seconds; Brenna Bergmann, who was forty-third overall and sixth in Division III with a time of 23 minutes, 20 seconds; Sonya Plude, who was sixty-fifth overall and twelfth in Division III with a time of 23 minutes, 59 seconds; Anna Taylor, who was seventy-first overall and fifteenth in Division III with a time of 24 minutes, 6 seconds; Caitlin Taylor, who was seventy-seventh overall and eighteenth in Division III with a time of 24 minutes, 21 seconds; and Michelle Rowe, who was ninety-third overall and twenty-eighth in Division III with a time of 24 minutes, 57 seconds.

The girls team also competed in the East Jordan Invitational on Sept. 10. The team finished third out of 10 teams.

Mary Plude said, "It was a good overall team race. The gap between the top five was 1 minute, 8 seconds. Now we hope to move the whole pack faster without opening up the gap."

Varsity results were: Theresa Martin in seventeenth with a time of 22 minutes, 49 seconds; Sonya Plude in eighteenth, with a time of 22 minutes, 57 seconds; Anna Taylor in twentieth, with a time of 23 minutes, 31 seconds; Bergmann in twenty-first with a time of 23 minutes, 35 seconds; Emily Westenbroek in twenty-fifth with a time of 23 minutes, 57 seconds; Caitlin Taylor in twenty-eighth, with a time of 24 minutes, 7 seconds and Liz Madison in thirteenth with a time of 24 minutes, 30 seconds.

Rayders' golf team gets two wins in division play

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The Charlevoix varsity golf team is on a roll having won the Division II and IV Petoskey Northmen Invitational Sept. 12 at Walloon Hills Country Club.

The Rayders placed first out of 11 teams, shooting 341.

York Smith shot a 79 to place fifth out of 110 golfers.

Coach Jim Glynn said, "It was a fine team effort; we are starting to come together."

Other individual scores were: Jordan Nystrom with an 83, Ryan DeYoung with a 97, Chris Wyniawskyj with a 90 and Kyle DeYoung with an 89.

The Rayders took this win right on the heels of a big win over Harbor Springs and Petoskey Sept. 10 at the Belvedere Club. Charlevoix finished with 157, while Petoskey had 163 and Harbor Springs had 170.

"York Smith and Chris Wyniawskyj had break-out rounds of 39 each. That kind of play really put us out front," Glynn said.

Other individual scores were: Nystrom with 37, Ryan DeYoung with 44, Adam Wager with 48 and Kyle DeYoung with 42.

However, Charlevoix did take a beating on Sept. 8 at the A-Ga-Ming Golf Course on Torch Lake, getting smacked by Elk Rapids, 171 to 182.

Basketball team remains on a roll

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

The Charlevoix Rayders opened Lake Michigan Conference play with two wins at home over Boyne City, 66-48, and Elk Rapids, 84-45.

The Rayders are now 6-0 on the season and ranked fourth in the state in Class C by the Associated Press. Charlevoix is tied with East Jordan and Traverse City St. Francis for first place in the league.

"I haven't gone to the record book," coach Jim Parrish said. "But I believe that this is one of the best starts that Charlevoix has ever had."

Charlevoix's balanced attack has led to the victories with the inside play of Grace Farrell, Sarah Cross and Kari Way together with the outside shooting of Jamie Pettis, Alyssia McDonough and Rachel Wyniawskyj.

"It's a real good group all around. We have a lot of depth so we can mix and watch a lot," Parrish said. "I've changed the starters around from game to game, starting different girls depending on what the opponents do. Now it's like we have starters coming off the bench for us. We don't lose anything when they come in."

McDonough and Way led the Rayders in scoring against Boyne with 12 points each. Farrell scored 11. Way and Farrell each pulled down six rebounds.

Sarah Cross had five rebounds, three steals and three assists. Wyniawskyj scored 10 points. Pettis and Brooke Blanchard each scored seven.

Way did her damage coming off the bench as she has all season long.

"We've got her coming off the bench, but when she gets in the game, she takes over the rebounding," Parrish said. "She is great at boxing out and getting position."

It was parents night against Elk Rapids and Parrish started the Rayders five seniors — Wyniawskyj, McDonough, Blanchard, Becca Kanine and Shayna Drost.

"I was real happy for the seniors. It's the first time they've all played together in a long time," Parrish said. "They did a nice job scoring 19 in the first quarter."

Charlevoix led 19-6 after that first quarter and 46-14 at the half in cruising to the win.

Pettis paced the Rayders scorers with 14 points and also pulled down five rebounds.

"Jamie's done a nice job for us," Parrish said. "She gives the opposing teams a different look since she's taller than most guards."

Farrell scored 13 points and pulled down 12 rebounds. Wyniawskyj had eight points, three rebounds and three steals. Way contributed seven points, four rebounds and three steals.

Kanine dished out seven assists and Blanchard pulled down eight rebounds.

Charlevoix (6-0 overall, 4-0 conference) hosted East Jordan in conference play on Tuesday, Sept. 16 however results were unavailable at presstime. The Rayders return to action at home against last year's conference champion, Harbor Springs.

Football team trounced by Boyne City, 41-6

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

According to Charlevoix head football coach, Don Jess, it all starts with line play in football.

Unfortunately for the Rayders last Friday night, it started there for Boyne City and ended there for Charlevoix as the Rambler line dominated in a 41-6 victory.

"It was disappointing, but Boyne is a very tough team," Jess said. "It was easy to see that they've been playing together and lifting weights together since they were freshmen. They are just real strong."

The Ramblers took the opening kickoff and drove down the field for their first touchdown just a minute into the game. Charlevoix drove to the Boyne 32 on their opening possession where an interception halted the drive.

Boyne City scored again with 5:15 to go in the first quarter for a 14-0 advantage. Following a Rayder punt, the Ramblers made it three for three on scoring drives, punching in their third touchdown of the opening stanza with 17 seconds left in the quarter for a 21-0 lead.

The going got tougher for Charlevoix as Boyne picked off another Rayder pass in the next series of plays, returning it all the way to the Rayder nine. Two plays later, the Ramblers were again in the end zone for a 28-0 lead only 16 seconds into the second quarter.

The Rayders only other scoring opportunity in the first half came when Mike Curiel recovered a Boyne fumble at the Boyne 14. Charlevoix lost yardage however leading to a third and 16 where Cody Crain found Taylor Fisher on a 15-yard pass.

Josh Carter's fourth down run up the middle was stuffed by the Boyne line, however, and the Rayders turned over the ball on downs.

Boyne was held scoreless the rest of the half as Fisher intercepted a pass on the Charlevoix six-yard line at the end of the half to snuff out another Rambler scoring chance.

With the Rayders trailing 34-0 in the second half, Jeff Urban broke loose for an 83-yard touchdown run to give the Charlevoix faithful something to cheer for. Boyne tacked on a late touchdown.

"We played all right defensively in the second half once we adjusted to what they were doing," Jess said.

Defensively, Jeff Golovich led the Rayders with 17 tackles. Fisher had 14 and Mitchell Klooster had 10.

Urban ran for 87 yards on nine attempts while Carter added 17 on 11 carries. Crain was 9 for 21 for 86 yards passing. He also had seven carries for 18 yards.

"It was a good experience for us to go through," Jess said. "You can't help but get better playing against a good team like that."

He added, "We try not to think about that game too much more. We've got a game this week and about four or five games in a row where we should be very competitive. It would be nice to get some momentum going."

This week the Rayders host Elk Rapids Friday, Sept. 19.

Boys' soccer team beats rival Harbor Springs

Charlevoix's boys' varsity soccer team tallied another win in a home game against rivals Harbor Springs.

Charlevoix has not had the upper hand with Harbor Springs in a very long time, but found they had the edge this year beating them 4-1, Sept. 8.

Mike Dupuis and Andrew Mailloux provided the fancy footwork that brought Charlevoix two of its goals. Scott Friske was an offensive master, scoring two goals and racking up an assist. Also assisting in scoring were Bryce Daly and Iven Helm.

While Charlevoix's offense was unstoppable its defensive line of Jake Teuscher, Evan Keller, Mike Dupuis and Andrew Tillotson was squashing Harbor's drives at the goal.

For Harbor Springs, Josh Manker made their only goal of the night.

Budget cuts force schools to make some sacrifices

BUDGET

ming so many kids in there," Scott Mays, a parent and the school district's technology coordinator, told the board.

However, Sturock said the available space isn't the issue, it's staff.

He explained that when the district cut $900,000 out of its budget it didn't lay teachers off, but it didn't replace those that retired and staffing is down.

"Somewhere along the line, something has to give," he said. "We will continue to monitor the situation, but we knew this would be the case. That's the downside of cutting $900,000 out of the budget."

Classroom sizes are about three to four students higher than they typically were in the past. There are 110 fifth graders divided into four sections. So there are between 27 and 28 students in each class.

After explaining this at the school board meeting Sturock was pleased to see parents were understanding.

While the fifth grade classrooms are a little more packed, Sturock said students aren't suffering.

"There is no research out there that says lower class size in the higher grades equals higher achievement. We need good teachers in the classrooms and I think we have those," he said.

While these students are already feeling the budget crunch on the bus and in the classroom, more change could be around the corner as further tightening of the belt is expected. Sturock said the state may make more cuts this year.

Muellers have big plans for Castle's future

CASTLE

"I believe there is (a demand.) Why would the city talk about a convention center if there wasn't some type of demand," he said. "Our vision is, if you build it right and operate it right, people will come and you can make it a financial success."

So rather than taking things slow and continuing to work in Mississippi, Richard has decided to retire and to join Linda in Charlevoix. Now the two will dedicate their efforts full-time to making their Castle Farms vision a reality.

"I put in 36 years with Dominos, now I'll do 36 years with the Castle," he said.

Richard announced earlier this month that he planned to become a minority owner in the Domino's Pizza franchise company he founded called RPM Pizza, Inc. RPM Pizza, Inc. owns and operates 160 Domino's Pizza franchise stores. He handed over the bulk of the operation to his brother Glenn Mueller and his son Richard Mueller III.

Linda has since named Richard general manager of Castle Farms.

The two entrepreneurs are diving in head first. They decided to expand their event space to accommodate 900 people year-round in one covered space and to offer families a unique destination.

Starting in early October, the Muellers will hire crews to rip the floor out of the old cattle barn, the large building facing M-66 that used to have a concert stage attached to it. Richard said the floor and walls will be complete by May and the major roofing project will begin Sept. 1, 2004.

A tent will cover the area next summer so the space can be used for a simple miniature golf course.

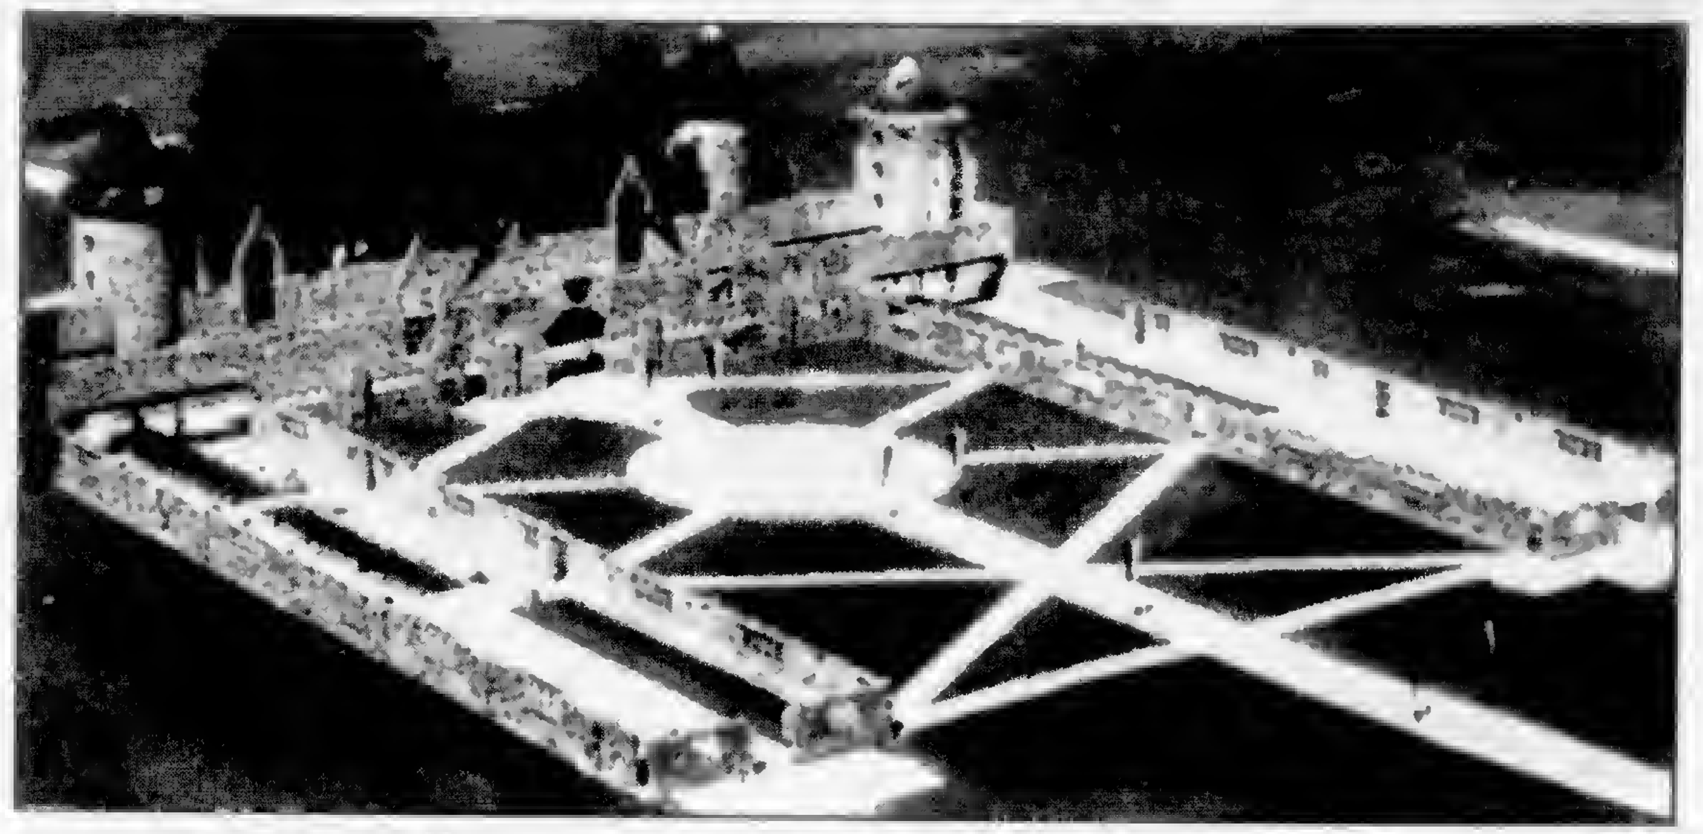
The eventual full restoration of the cattle barn will include heating and cooling the site and the addition of restrooms and two elevators. In May of 2005, when this is complete, the Muellers will be able to offer 15,000 square feet of event space that will be able to accommodate 900 people year-round.

Currently, the Castle Farms has 10,000 square feet of seasonal event space available.

Starting in May of 2004 they will build two 6,400 square foot pavilions that will extend into the center grass field from the former cattle barn.

This project will also include construction of a courtyard area, similar to the original design, with a 20 foot pond at its center.

Starting May 31, 2004, this pavilion and courtyard area will be home to a family activities center. Aside from Castle Miniature Golf, the area will be equipped with eight lawn garden bowling courts, garden croquet, six lawn badminton courts, large chess boards, five horse shoe courts, four tetherball courts, eight covered shuffleboard courts, a playground and a picnic area.



Linda and Richard Mueller Jr., owners of the Castle Farms, will be recreating a courtyard at the site, similar to this original courtyard. The Muellers plan includes a 20 foot pond with a fountain at its center. (Courtesy photo)

"It will be such a magnificent open area. With no parking problems, no congestion," Richard said.

The family area will be open from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m., Sunday through Friday from Memorial Day through Labor Day. For one fee kids will be able to play all day.

"This is for families — people can come in, have a good time, use the beautiful grassy fields. It isn't a video, it's a place where you have to interact with someone else. Back to the days when people connected," Richard said.

The added space for events requires more parking, so the Muellers will expand the large lot that currently accommodates 280 cars to hold a total of 520 cars. And will also add two smaller lots.

This major expansion will also include the addition of three gazebo style chapels and a landscaping makeover equipped with formal gardens.

These improvements will more than double the site's event capacity.

The Castle Farms can currently host two wedding receptions a day. Next year the site will have space for three daily wedding receptions and by 2005 will be able to easily accommodate four receptions a day.

"We could become the wedding capital of Michigan," Richard said.

The Muellers are planning a ground breaking ceremony to take place at noon Oct. 6 at the Castle. The public is invited to attend.

Wal-Mart presents plans

Retailer wants to come to town

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Wal-Mart moved one step closer to setting up shop in Charlevoix when company officials presented a conceptual site plan to the Charlevoix Township Planning Commission Wednesday.

After presenting the conceptual plan, Chris Danos, Wal-Mart real estate manager, told the commissioners and packed audience at Stroud Hall the company would like to start construction "next year, as soon as it gets warm enough, and be open in 2005."

Danos will be back sometime in the future with an official site plan that must be approved by the township planning commission. A firm date has not been given.

Wal-Mart has been working for over a year on purchasing property and setting up plans for a supercenter on the south side of Charlevoix Township along US-31, near Marion Center Road. Most of the property is owned by Al Wojan.

This was the second time company officials have met with township officials about a Wal-Mart. At the first meeting in March 2003, township officials expressed concerns about proposed plans to reroute Stover Creek for the development, among others.

The new plan addressed those concerns by repositioning the Wal-Mart store on the property, eliminating a planned gas station and leaving Stover Creek as it is.

The new conceptual plan shows a Wal-Mart supercenter that is perpendicular to US-31, instead of facing US-31. It would have 40,000 square feet of grocery space on the left side of the store and over 100,000 square feet of retail space on the right side. The store would be a total of 157,400 square feet.

There is also room for seasonal sales, such as Christmas trees and garden supplies, as well as an auto-

Appletree building move opposed

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

As the hourglass quickly runs down, the Appletree building is once again in the line of a wrecking ball.

The former Earl Young real estate office that currently houses the Appletree business at 224 Bridge Street could be facing a homeless future once again.

Earlier this month, the building had found a potential savior when Charlevoix property owners Steven and Annemarie Roby of Farmington Hills worked with the building's new owners, Jerry Rutter, an Elk Rapids developer, and his partner Scott Zager, to buy the building.

The Robys' plan was to relocate it to their private residence off Auld Street where they plan to restore it for use as an art studio.

This came as a relief to many Charlevoix residents. The late Young, who built the building, is a famous local architect and his over a century old office has been dubbed by many as a historic site worthy of saving.

As this plan unfolded it looked as though everyone would win: the Robys would get the Young building they had admired, the developers could move forward with their plan to build a three story retail and residential structure at the site and the community wouldn't have to mourn the loss of the historic building.

But at the city council meeting Sept. 15 it was clear that the opinions of one group, the Robys' neighbors, had not yet been heard.

Steve Bennett, owner of the property directly adjacent to 101 Auld Street, the proposed site of the Appletree building relocation, attended the meeting and spoke on behalf of 12 families who live in and around the proposed relocation site.

"The situation is not a win, win, win for all the parties involved. This party, us — the taxpayers, the residents, the neighbors, the locals who live in that area, were not included in this plan whatsoever by the property owner or by anyone," he said.

Bennett then let everyone know that he and his neighbors are collectively opposed to the building being "shoehorned onto this non-conforming lot."

"One hudred percent of our neighbors are in agreement that the placement of this charming old building on that mini lot is not acceptable," he said.

The Roby lot is 36.27 feet wide and 59.84 feet long with a total lot area of just over 2,170 square feet. The Appletree building is 33 feet by 35 feet.

Several vying for homecoming king, queen

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Fall weather is rolling in and football season is in full-swing — two signs that point to one event — homecoming.

This year's celebration will bring with it the crowning of two seniors who will forever be Charlevoix High School's 2003 Homecoming Court royalty.

Candidates for homecoming queen and king include five girls and five boys that are athletes, scholars and performers.

Rachel Wyniawskyj, the daughter of Richard and Donna Wyniawskyj, is in the running for queen. Wyniawskyj has been a member of the Rayder basketball team for four years and has also studied Spanish all of her high school career. She plans to study medicine after graduation.

Also vying for the crown is Sam Kupka, daughter of Martha and Stanley Kupka. She has been involved in the performing arts program for four years and is also an active member of student council, currently serving as student body vice president. When she isn't on stage or leading the class Kupka has kept busy on the softball diamond or on the sidelines as a cheerleader. She plans to attend Grand Valley State University in Grand Rapids next fall to study international business.

Alyssia McDonough, daughter of Shawn and Jean McDonough is also in the running for the queen's crown. McDonough has kept herself busy in high school as class co-president of student council, a member of the performing arts troupe and as a member of the basketball, volleyball and soccer teams. She plans to attend Grand Valley State University or the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor next fall to study elementary education.

The fourth candidate for queen is Becca Kanine, daughter of Jane and Jim Kanine. Kanine has been active academically as a peer-2-peer mentor and as a Spanish student. When she isn't hitting the books, she is leading her class as student council co-president or working hard on the basketball and volleyball courts. She plans to attend the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor next fall.

Shayna Drost, daughter of Chris and Dayna Drost, may also wear the homecoming queen's crown. Drost is an active high school athlete as a member of the volleyball, basketball and soccer teams. She is also an accomplished leader on student council. Drost plans to attend Hope College next fall to study education.

Every queen needs a king and the five candidates for the crown are just as accomplished as their prospective leading ladies.

Jon Reid, son of Bruce and Kathy Reid, is a candidate for king. Reid is a student athlete that has excelled on the football field and on the baseball diamond. He has not yet decided where he will attend college next fall.

The crown could also be worn by John DiMartino, son of Fred and Donna DiMartino. He has played basketball and soccer throughout his high school career and has served on student council. DiMartino plans to attend Grand Valley State University in the fall to work toward his business degree.

Or a kingship may be in the future for York Smith, the son of Steve and Mary Lou Smith. Smith has been an active student-athlete during his four years as a Rayder. He has been a member of the band, as well as the golf, track and ski teams — qualifying four times as a Junior Olympian skier. He is undecided as to where he will attend school in the fall.

Royalty could also run through the veins of Josh Carter, Julie Carter's son. He has been a Rayder football and track and field member for all four years of high school and plans to play college football.

Kyle Kramer, the son of Jeff and Connie Nault and Pete and Kay Kramer, could add homecoming king to his long list of high school accomplishments. Kramer has been a performing arts member for four years and has played on the cross-country, track and field, football and basketball teams. He plans to attend an out-of-state university next fall.

The announcement of which two of these 10 candidates has been selected to represent the class of 2004 will be made at half-time of the Rayder football game against Harbor Springs. Kickoff will be at 7:30 p.m. at Kipke Field.

The 2003 homecoming court includes these 10 candidates. The king and queen will be crowned at half-time of the Rayder football game Oct. 3. Jeremy McBain

'Just a thought'

If you are ready for another of my trademark brutal opinions, get ready for a disappointment this week .... I don't have one.

I've been a little more introspective lately. I am thinking slower and longer about subjects, not moving real fast and the other day I found myself staring at a cloud for about an hour. As for having strong feelings on any subjects, I really haven't felt like having one.

Those who know me, know this is rare. There are a wide variety of issues I can spout off on this week: There is the castle expansion and how it relates to the city wanting a convention center, the Wal-Mart that is probably going to be built south of town, the Appletree is always a good source of editorial fodder, as are educational issues.

Usually, I am ready and willing to toss my opinion out there as all good editors do on their opinion page. I am ready to stick my neck out, take a shot in the gut and add some color to a local issue.

But, I am just not feeling the passion this week for ranting. Those clouds and bright fall colors are more exciting.

I figure it is due. After all, I have been at the Charlevoix Courier for almost four years. Since I write an editorial almost every week and this is a weekly newspaper, that is at about 52 opinions a year — give or take a week here and there when I let my reporters spout off in my place. Times this by three years that is 156 opinions and add about 40 for this year, that makes a grand total of about 196 opinion pieces I have written since coming to the Charlevoix Courier.

There have been other times in the past when I just didn't feel like ranting or giving my thoughts on something. But, I usually forged ahead for the sake of creating community discussion.

After all, that is what a good newspaper editorial or column does, it helps create discussion in the community on a local subject or add a new thought to a current discussion. While the rest of the paper is free of the editor or reporter's opinion, the opinion page is a vital section to the newspaper because it provides balance and a break from the straight facts and figures that one finds in normal stories.

Newspapers that do not have editorials or columns seem like they are lacking to me. Almost like eating rice cakes. Sure they will provide you with some of the nutrients your body needs, but where is the flavor and the fun?

But this week, I am doing away with the hard stuff or the red pepper of the newspaper. Just this once let's enjoy some honey.

Perhaps it is the changing of the season. Perhaps I am tired after a long summer. Perhaps it is because I have been sick lately. Perhaps it is because I am learning life is too short to spend it arguing. Whatever it is, now is not the time for spouting off, now is the time for wondering and enjoying the pleasures in life.

Here are my top ten things to enjoy during these slow days of fall and those days when you feel like being a little more thoughtful. Maybe they will give you a smile too:

10) The feeling of a soft rain on your face as you watch a storm slowly come across Lake Michigan.

9) The smell of fresh cinnamon doughnuts at a cider mill and the warm feel of a cup of hot apple cider in your hands before you take that first sip.

8) The love a small crying child gets when their mother gently picks them up to comfort them after they have scraped their knee or bumped their head. They have no worries, no fears and all comfort in that moment, something that is rare in adulthood.

7) The smell of a fireplace the first thing in the morning or as the sun sets at night.

6) The laughter of two friends who have not seen each other in a long time.

5) The smile and look of wonder on a child's face when they are completely engrossed in some small activity, such as watching an ant that is hard at work or chasing a rabbit in the yard to try and pet it.

4) The smile on a woman's face when her husband does something completely unselfish, but foolish, for her. You know who you are and what you did.

3) The sound of crunching leaves as you take a walk in the woods during a crisp autumn day.

2) The burst of color that a tree makes just before its leaves turn brown and fall off for another winter.

1) Knowing that no matter what you do, someone out there cares for you.

Sometimes a break from the usual is a nice thing to do. Sometimes it is needed for the mind and body. It helps remind us that we are human.

Galinsoga proves to be a tough weed for Charlevoix

Roger Knutson

'Ear to the ground'

Obviously this has not been an especially good year for our petunias. Alternatively, it has been a great year for some of the weeds that thrive in our streetside petunia beds.

Walking along the petunia lined streets, I see the weed that seems to have benefited most from those well prepared seedbeds is one with the Latin name Galinsoga. It has several common names as well. The best known is "Quickweed," for the speed with which it can invade and conquer ground. It is also called Peruvian Daisy in honor of its South American and Central American origin and its tiny daisy-like flowerheads. Finally, it is sometimes called French Weed, probably for the same reason that syphilis is called the French Disease in England and called the English Disease in France. It is not a popular plant.

My father, who was a serious gardener for most of his life, and managed 400 acres of agricultural ground as well, used to say he eliminated weeds by birth control. He never allowed a weed to go to seed if he could manage it. What that meant in practical terms was that his garden needed little weeding. Only a few blown-in weed seeds ever got started; and those were long gone before they could reproduce. Galinsoga did not grow in his garden.

Galinsoga is an annual plant. That means not only that it lives for a single growing season, but that, as all annual plants must, it puts most of its available energy into production seed to assure that the next generation will be numerous.

How many seeds does one Galinsoga plant produce? Without any hindrance an individual plant can grow 2 feet tall, and produce many hundreds of tiny, one-fourth-inch wide flowerheads. Last week I counted more than 600 flowerheads on a plant less than one foot tall. Even if cut off a few inches from the ground, a single Galinsoga plant can easily make a few hundred flowerheads before frost. Each flower (five white petals and a yellow center) makes about 20, very tiny seeds. That means the soil around one plant will have anywhere from 2,000 to maybe 20,000 seeds ready and able to germinate next year. A minimum estimate would be that the soil of much of the streetside petunia beds will have tens of thousands of Galinsoga seeds per square foot.

The seeds of most annual weeds can live in the soil for many years. If they are buried too deeply to germinate successfully this year, cultivation will bring them nearer the surface next year. The books about weeds describe Galinsoga as, "A most persistent weed."

As a problem solution, weed-whipping the petunia beds may have reduced the number of potential Galinsoga seeds by 80 percent to 90 percent. That will leave the beds with only a few thousand viable Galinsoga seeds per square foot. No matter how many petunias we plant, they can hardly be expected to stand up to that sort of assault. Soil with its contained seeds almost certainly has to be removed or we will face Galinsogalization of the petunia beds for years to come.

Just as an aside, Crabgrass and several other "most persistent weeds" are also well represented in the fall flora of the petunia beds. They have the same capacities for seed production and persistence.

Letters to the editor

Fish can be dangerous

Editor:

I read your article a couple weeks ago about the local commercial "fishing" industry and how the local markets and restaurants are supplied by these "fishermen."

Your article referred mostly to the supply of whitefish caught in our nearby Lake Michigan waters. After reading this glorified article, I realized that you failed to mention a very important bit of information that people need to know about eating these and other fish.

The Michigan Department of Community Health publishes a document every year titled "Michigan Family Fish Consumption Guide." This guide contains information pertaining to the potential hazards of consuming fish from the waters of the state of Michigan and the recommended limits of consumption of these fish.

For example, this guide recommends that women of child bearing age, pregnant or nursing women and children not eat any whitefish of any size caught in this area of Lake Michigan. In addition, the guide recommends no consumption of whitefish over 14 inches in length by anyone in the general public and only one meal per week of whitefish less than 14 inches. The warning is a result of the contamination levels of PCBs and Dioxin found in the fish. Other fish species have similar warnings.

Why is it then, that the Michigan Department of Agriculture (MDA), who is responsible for assuring that the foods we eat are safe, allows these fish to be sold and served in our markets and restaurants? Surely, we all can remember when whole herds of cattle were destroyed when contaminated with PBBs. And who in this state could not possibly know about the ongoing effort to eliminate the threat of TB by the mass destruction of our deer herd.

Our chickens have salmonella and you hear about it. Our beef has e-coli and it is headline news for a month. Yet, our fish is contaminated and the average person doesn't have a clue. That is because it is easy to link a bacterial contamination to an illness, but hard to link the chemicals in your fish to that learning disability your child has, the fertility problem, the still birth or your cancer.

The MDA will not let you order your hamburger rare anymore, but you can have all you can eat contaminated whitefish at the local dining establishment with no warnings on the menu. It just doesn't have the flash of the eight year old that died from the undercooked chicken he ate a few days earlier.

For more information regarding the fish consumption advisory, go to www.michigan.gov/mdch and click on "statistics and reports" or call (800) 648-6942. And be sure to contact MDA and ask why they have failed to adequately advise you of this potential hazard.

Two losses from Sept. 11

Editor:

A tale of two losses on Sept. 11, 2001. First I mark terrible loss of life on that day as all compassionate humans did. Second I mark the terrible failure of American leadership that followed and continues to this day.

Are we safer and more secure today, two years later?

1) Bush's go-it-alone, club-waving, foreign policy divided and weakened the U.N. and turned important allies against us.

2) Now, with over 364 soldiers killed, Bush challenges, "Bring 'em on!"

3) But turns to the U.N. he derided and asks for help.

4) Bush's Iraq adventure diverted funds from global anti-terrorist effort.

5) Bush's bungled post war lack of planning caused hatred and caused chaos and disorder.

6) Thanks to number five, Afghanistan Taliban forces have grown and we war again. Women are in their burquas; warlords range in the provinces.

7) Beating Saddam enhances the prospects for peace between Palestine and Israel? The road to peace is GONE.

8) The other Bush-named axis of evil: Korea? China now calls Bush the "main obstacle" to peaceful settlement.

9) Bush's Homeland Security? Ports, chemical plants, emergency response and bio-defense are waiting for attention and money.

10) Crying "national security" Bush bullies aliens and wants to know what you're reading at the library.

11) Bush's squandering of our money on war costs have left the states, (Michigan hurts) reeling and having to cut everywhere.

12) Since 2001, Bush stole jobs from 2.7 million would-be workers and the average length of unemployment is the highest it has been in 20 YEARS. Real average wages, if you have a job, are dropping every day.

13) And now — God help us — he wants $87 billion more to send down the rat hole he made.

We placed our trust in Bush to lead us after Sept. 11. He callously abused that trust to mislead us into foolish wars and trampled on our liberties.

Shame on us all if we do not realize into what Bush has led our beloved country and thus fail to oust Bush, and take back our democracy.

Speaker inspires students with his story

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Motivational speaker Ron Heagy made many new friends after his presentation at Charlevoix Middle School. Heagy was injured in a swimming accident 23 years ago that left him paralyzed from the neck down. (Photo by Julie Witthoeft)

A new attitude can change your life.

That is the message Ron Heagy, a nationally known motivational speaker whose words have touched the lives of millions, delivered at Charlevoix Middle School last week.

He based his message about triumph in the face of tragedy on his experiences following a life changing accident that happened 23 years ago.

Heagy was a 17-year-old football star living in Oregon "with the world by the tail" when he took a spring break trip to southern California and his life changed dramatically. It was March 17, one day before his eighteenth birthday, and he and his brother Mike were catching some rays stretched out on the famous sands of Huntington Beach.

Heagy went for a dip in the ocean and dove into a great, big wave. The impact of the wave drove him head first into the sandy ocean bottom, snapping his head back and breaking his neck.

Heagy's injury severed his spinal cord and paralyzed him from the neck down.

"My body instantly shut down. I was floating out to sea — 17 years old," he said.

Mike, who was 13 at the time, knew something was wrong and swam out into the water, not knowing where his brother might be. As he frantically searched, Mike bumped into his brother's body and dragged him to shore.

"Tell me that's not miracle," Heagy told the students.

Rehabilitation proved futile, he learned he would never walk again and his dream of being a football star at Oregon State University was squashed.

"They told me I would be quadriplegic for the rest of my life. I thought, 'You call this life, I have no plans to live like this,'" he said.

Heagy told the students that he contemplated suicide, but through the testimony of others and support of his family found that while he would be disabled for life, he wasn't dead.

"I am here to celebrate life," he told them. "I have lots of friends, I love life and I woke up this morning breathing. There is so much to be thankful for."

In the years following his accident, Heagy learned to write with his mouth and type with a stick in his teeth, two skills that helped him earn his degree from Christian Heritage College in El Cajon, Calif. and a master's degree in social work from San Diego State University.

"I graduated at the top of my class with a stick in my teeth," he said.

But because of his disability he said he had a hard time getting a job, so he started his own business, Heagy Inc. He has since spoken to over two million people, written a book, "Never Give Up," and developed a handicapped accessible camp called Camp Attitude, in Sweet Home, Oregon. He is currently planning to build a second camp in Maui.

"The secret to my success is to help other people. It doesn't matter if you don't make any money. Be successful by lifting other people up — encourage, motivate, inspire," he said.

His message was clear and in the silent gym at the middle school, everyone who was there heard it loud and clear — we need to learn to overcome our physical and emotional disabilities and celebrate life.

He asked those in attendance, "Is this your best day?"

And said, "If not what are you going to do to make it better. I choose to be happy. Don't tell me you can't make a choice."

Charlevoix Middle School students and those from Ellsworth and Central Lake schools that also attended the presentation were on their feet cheering as Heagy used his chin to maneuver his electric wheelchair through the gym doors.

Then, they flooded into the hallway to buy his signature smiley guys, his book and his artwork — all of which he autographed, still smiling with a pen in his mouth.

For more information about Heagy, visit www.rollonron.com on the Internet.

Residents offered security checks

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department is once again reminding residents of Charlevoix County that if they are to be absent from their homes for any period of time, this department has a program to check on these homes in their absence.

In order to participate in this program, the homeowner must contact this office in person and request the security check form or call the sheriff's office at 547-4461 and request a form be sent to them.

If a resident has applied for this program in the past the request must be re-submitted each year.

It should be noted, this program does not take the place of private security programs it just adds to the coverage and works along with these private organizations.

City sends senior housing issue back

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Efforts to amend Charlevoix's city zoning ordinance to include senior housing were delayed by city council.

Council voted Sept. 15 to turn the issue back over to the planning commission to review a list of questions they felt were unanswered.

The planning commission had recommended that council approve the inclusion of assisted living facilities in the R-1 and R-2 districts with a special use permit and other stipulations.

However, after hearing extensive public comment, council members discussed the issue and concluded that there were too many questions left unanswered and sent the planning commission back to the drawing board.

On Sept. 22 the commission met at a special meeting to address these issues.

The planning commission looked at possibly designating areas where assisted living development might be appropriate with a special use permit.

Newly appointed third ward councilman, Dave Novotny, said. "I don't think the whole city is suited to this."

"There are only two spots in the city that we would be ahle to put this type of operation. Why not designate it to these parts of the city instead of R-1, R-2."

City staff found four one-acre parcels that could suit an assisted living development. They are May Street, south of Carpenter Street; Petoskey Avenue, east of Meech Street; Carpenter Street, between State Street and Sherman Street; and Sherman Street, between Carpenter Street and Garfield Avenue.

However, city attorney Bryan Graham said the only way the city could designate areas for this type of use is by creating an overlay district which would require planning to start from scratch.

The planning commission opted not to recommend an overlay district.

While Novotny feels there may be designated areas in the R-1 and R-2 that are appropriate, many told council they feel neither of these residential districts will fit this type of development.

Charlevoix resident Becky Doan gave council a petition with 50 signatures from city residents opposed to amending the ordinance to allow assisted living development in the R-1 and R-2 districts with a special use permit.

"This should go into R-4. I don't think businesses should he in R-1 or R-2," she said.

Traffic and noise problems were brought up by those opposed to the zoning amendments as reasons this use should not he allowed in R-1 or R-2.

Mayor Gahe Campbell said he too feels assisted living facilities are too intense a use for R-1 or R-2.

But third ward councilman Sherm Chamberlain explained that assisted living is "an in hetween residential use" and that rezoning property to R-4 could lead to any type of development allowed in R-4.

"I think a special use permit gives us greater control," he said.

Council's final vote and recommendation for further review by the planning commission did not include direction to look at the R-4 district.

Sticking with the R-1 and R-2 districts, Chamberlain asked that the planning commission add architectural controls into the special use permit language. He said a flat roof-line could have a negative impact on the area whereas a sloped roof-line is more residential in nature.

Council also asked the commission to define the one-story height limitation in terms of feet.

The commission added into the wording that the building roof height not exceed 26 feet and that the design character of the building be reflective of other residential structures in the immediate area.

While these concerns were addressed by the planning commission in its zoning amendment recommendation, council also requested final review of any special use permit request for a assisted living development be in its hands.

This decision was supported by those who attended the council meeting who did not feel an appointed body, like the planning commission, should make a decision of this magnitude.

Charlevoix resident Bill Joy said, "This allows a non-elected board the power to issue a special use permit. Where are the checks and halances to something like that?"

The commission included a subsection giving the power of special use approval to council.

While there were many voices at the council meeting opposed to assisted living being permitted as a special use in the R-1 and R-2 districts, there were also many there who stressed the need for assisted living in town where amenities are conveniently located in close proximity.

Nancy Bottomly, adult health director with Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, said, "From my perspective, zoning is here to meet the needs of the community. We really need to work as a community and not put them out of town."

Dave Phillips, the chef at Boulder Park said his 92-year-old mother lives at Sunnybank in Petoskey and he would love to have her here.

"There aren't a lot of people cheering with older people and there should be; that is what makes a better community," he said. "Love one another as you love yourself. Love young children and don't forget the old children."

Boyne City to Charlevoix bike path in works

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

After a busy summer on the Little Traverse Wheelway, bicyclists are ready for more.

"People want to see trails," Larry Sullivan, director of the Charlevoix County Planning Department, said. "And we have heard a lot of interest from people about a trail connecting Boyne City and Charlevoix."

This dream of connecting Boyne City and Charlevoix came one step closer to becoming a reality last week when representatives from Charlevoix County government offices, township boards and the Petoskey based Top of Michigan Trails Council got together and continued planning.

Sullivan and Top of Michigan Trails Council vice president Jerry Corley are heading a group called the Boyne City to Charlevoix Trail Committee that met Sept. 17 with about 25 community members to discuss the trail.

"We are excited about it. It will be a few years before it happens, but we are dedicated to working on it," Corley said.

The informal committee has been working on this project since December of 2002, just after the Charlevoix to Bay Shore portion of the Little Traverse Wheelway was completed.

Since then, Hayes, Bay and Evangeline township boards and the Boyne City Commission have passed resolutions supporting the concept of developing a trail from Boyne City to Charlevoix.

Then last week the committee nailed down where the trail will ideally run.

Sullivan said finding a level land area separate from the road is a challenge because it requires acquiring easements.

Of the three options that were discussed the Boyne City Road route was deemed the most desirable. Sullivan said that the Charlevoix County Road Commission's right-of-way along Boyne City Road is 90 feet wide, 33 feet wider than most right-of-ways, which works in the trail's favor.

The unknown at this time is where the trail will cut across to the existing trail, which begins in Charlevoix Township at Waller Road. Sullivan said the committee is hoping to cut across in the vicinity of the Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club along the power line right-of-way then traveling through the proposed development that is planned for US-31 and Boyne City Road.

The two options that were rejected routed the trail from Horton Bay to Bay Shore via Pincherry Road. Steep hills along this route made it less desirable.

"Realistically, in the long-term we would like to see trails going from Boyne City to Horton Bay where you could connect to Charlevoix and Bay Shore," Sullivan said.

The chosen route along Boyne City Road would require the construction of 14 miles of trail.

Bikers could soon ride to Boyne City

TRAIL

Sullivan said the cost for the proposed Boyne City Road trail will be less than the just under seven mile long Charlevoix to Bay Shore trail because there are fewer sensitive natural features to boardwalk. He estimated the project would cost about $150,000 a mile.

"We are looking at doing the project in phases," he said. "We will most likely do what we did with the existing trail — go after grants for the whole thing, but break it into chunks if need be."

Trail construction will start by connecting Boyne City to Horton Bay and Horton Bay to Charlevoix.

The group is hoping to have the trail complete in five years.

Sullivan said the Charlevoix County portion of the Little Traverse Wheelway and the future Boyne City connection are part the county's recreation plan which was developed a few years ago. The plan recommends development of trails that connect Charlevoix, Boyne City, East Jordan and Boyne Falls to trails in other counties.

Plans for the Boyne City to Charlevoix trail will require cooperation from the Charlevoix County Road Commission and representatives of Young State Park.

Sheriff reminds drivers to watch for deer in road

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office would like to give a warning and a notice to motorists in Charlevoix County to be alert when driving in the morning, evening and especially at night to deer crossing the highways.

The sheriff's office is averaging four car/deer accidents a day for motorists in Charlevoix County. All of these accidents are resulting in property damage to the vehicles involved and some accidents have resulted in personal injury to the driver or their passengers.

The sheriff's office suggests you slow down your speed and drive defensively and be alert for deer crossing the roadways.

Public notice is the people's right to know the issues that affect them directly, and people know the place to find public and legal notices is in the newspaper. In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. After all, it shouldn't be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look, or when to look, let alone to know what you're looking for to be informed. Why guess? Grab a bite of Beaver Island

The Beaver Island Chamber of Commerce will host the second annual Bite of Beaver Island Food Festival from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 4, 2003, in the Holy Cross Hall in "downtown" St. James.

Last year's event found island chefs preparing their tables of specialty items for an appreciative crowd. Food items for sale ran from appetizers like escargot, to the main course fare of Portabella mushroom sandwiches, shrimp kabobs, Chinese food and pizza. There was also an array of desserts. Beer and wine will be available.

Deborah Harwood, culinary coordinator for the event, and also executive chef for Beaver Island's Deerwood Lodge, said, "Both professional and amateur chefs will participate in the event."

In the evening live music will be featured at the Shamrock located across the street from the ferry dock.

The first Annual Island Boodle 5K/Run/Walk will also be on Saturday, Oct. 4. The race begins downtown at 10 a.m. and will take participants on a fast, scenic course along the lakefront and nearby trails.

T-shirts will be given out to the contestants as well as medals for first through third place. Refreshments will be available after the event.

Beaver Island is served by regular passenger and car ferry and by air from Charlevoix.

For information about Island accommodations or transportation, contact the chamber at (231)448-2505 or see their web site www.beaverisland.org.

An entry form for the Island Boodle can be printed from the site.

Elementary class doesn't meet requirements

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Federal education legislation, "No child left behind," found a class at Charlevoix Elementary School did not meet progress requirements.

During the 2001-2002 school year a class at the elementary school didn't score as well on the Michigan Education Assessment Program (MEAP) test as it had in the past. Scores came in below the "cut score."

Because of those low scores, that class did not meet two-year adequate yearly progress requirements set by the federal government.

Superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools Dr. John Sturock said that because of this finding this class will be closely watched and will be given the tools to improve.

However, he said he isn't sure that 2001-2002 scores would have missed the cut score if the federal government was comparing "apples to apples."

"This isn't giving an accurate picture of a lot of school districts in our country. Legislators are getting involved in areas they don't have a whole lot of knowledge in," he said.

Sturock explained that in 2001-2002 the standards required for Michigan schools by the "No child left behind" program were higher than those set for the rest of the country. Because of this, the state board of education has since successfully worked to lower those cut scores.

"If the cut score that is in place today was in place then, those scores wouldn't have even been close," he said.

Sturock anticipates 2002-2003 test scores, which have not yet been released, to be right back in line.

Winners for annual eddi Awards announced

The third annual eddi Awards were presented on Friday, Sept. 19, 2003 at the Bay View Inn.

This event is always a celebratory evening of the arts in northern Michigan. Each award winner has dedicated himself or herself to improving the cultural environment in Charlevoix and Emmet counties. The Crooked Tree Arts Center established the annual eddi Awards in 2001 in recognition of eddi Offield's personal and positive impact on the quality of life afforded to the people of Emmet and Charlevoix Counties.

A panel of individuals from Charlevoix and Emmet counties review the nominations to select each year's winners.

The 2003 eddi Award winners are:

- VISUAL ARTIST AWARD — Bonnie Staffel. In addition to being an artist, Staffel is also teacher to many wonderful potters in Michigan, the U.S. and around the world. She continues to seek new challenges and set new goals for herself.
- PERFORMING ARTIST AWARD - June and Bill Zoerhof. The spotlight has been on June and Bill Zoerhof for many years in northern Michigan — singing, acting, directing, teaching, serving as board members and so much more.
- ARTS and CULTURAL ORGANIZATION AWARD — Blissfest Music Organization. Blissfest Music Organization has consistently brought the folk arts to northern Michigan for 23 years. Not only has Blissfest created one of the most respected and popular festivals in the U.S., it has extended its programming to include year-round events to entertain, teach and draw people to northern Michigan.
- ARTS IN EDUCATION AWARD — Connie Tanner. Tanner has touched many lives as a teacher, director of the Northern Michigan Chorale, in re-energizing the Little Traverse Civic Theater, leading the performing arts series committee at the center, among many other leadership and educational endeavors.
- ARTS and CULTURAL LEADERSHIP AWARD — Louise Herlocher. Herlocher has served arts and culture well as an optimistic worker, an administrator and artist to lay the foundation for what the dynamic arts and cultural scene has become in Charlevoix and Emmet counties.
- INDIVIDUAL PATRON AWARD — Ima Williams. Williams has been an integral part of the arts in Michigan, serving on the boards of directors of Michigan Council of Arts and Cultural Affairs, Michigan Legacy Art Park, and ArtServe Michigan and as president of Crooked Tree Arts Center for two terms.
- BENEFACTOR AWARD — Petoskey Plastics Inc. Petoskey Plastics has long been a supporter of the arts in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties, helping to fund in-school performing arts for elementary students, hosting fund-raisers and assisting with collaborations to bring the arts to everyone.
- LIFETIME ACHIEVEMENT AWARD — Peggy and the late Walter Midener. Peggy and Walter Midener have been an integral part of the arts in Michigan, starting out as renowned artists and teachers in the Detroit area and bringing their expertise and passion with them to northern Michigan and to Jordan River Arts Council, Crooked Tree Arts Center and numerous other organizations.
- SPECIAL eddi AWARD — Ermy Bonfield. "Creative, energetic, tenacious and gracious," these words barely begin to describe Bonfield's commitment to arts and culture in northern Michigan. She is especially passionate about programs that fill children's lives with art.

The Crooked Tree Arts Center is located at 461 E. Mitchell Street, downtown Petoskey. For more information on the eddi Awards, please call 347-4337 or visit www.crookedtree.org.

Several runners leave Petoskey with medals

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The Charlevoix High School girls' and boys' cross country teams continued to show improvement Sept. 20 at the Petoskey Kiwanis Invitational race.

The girls' eleventh and twelfth grade team placed third, while the ninth and tenth grade team placed fifth. The boys' eleventh and twelfth grade team placed seventh, while the ninth and tenth grade team placed second.

Girls' coach Mary Plude said the team had an outstanding day.

"Anytime you split your team in half and they all run the way they are trained, you have just had a great race day. There was no one person who stands out as having the best race of the day, because they all did," she said. "We have 11 girls faster than our fifth girl last season at this time."

Charlevoix soccer team gets win, tie

Charlevoix's varsity boys soccer team hit the road last week and returned with a win and a tie under its belt.

On Sept. 15 the team dominated play against Grayling winning 7-1. Scoring for the Rayders were Bryce Daly and John DiMartino each with a pair of goals and Andrew Mailloux, Cody Wheat and Curtis Petzak.

Then, on Sept. 17, they traveled to Roscommon where they met a more evenly matched opponent.

In spite of a strong effort by both the Rayders and the Bucks, neither was able to score. The defensive efforts of Jake Pace, making 11 saves on goal, and Ezra Bakker, Evan Keller, Jake Teuscher and Andrew Tillotson helped stop the Bucks' advances.

This week Charlevoix hosted East Jordan on Monday, the results of which were not available by press time. The Rayder team will also host Forest Area at 5 p.m., today.

Girls' basketball team remains undefeated

The fourth-ranked Charlevoix Rayders girls' team continued their winning ways with a hard-fought 59-56 decision over East Jordan before a near-capacity home crowd.

Charlevoix coach Jim Parrish termed it "a tournament atmosphere." Parrish took the victory over his daughter, Lisa Greenier, the East Jordan coach.

Rayder junior Grace Farrell spent more than half of the night on the Rayder bench in foul trouble but returned to key the victory with her eight for eight free throw shooting.

With Charlevoix leading by only 57-56, Farrell stole an East Jordan pass and was fouled. She calmly sunk her two shots with 13.8 seconds left to put the game away.

The game was nip and tuck early as both teams struggled offensively. East Jordan led at the end of the first quarter 7-5.

In the second quarter, it appeared that the Rayder pressing defense had taken its toll on the short-handed Red Devils who only dressed seven players. Following a 15-15 tie at the 4:42 mark of the quarter, Charlevoix went on a 13-4 run, including seven points by Farrell.

The final two baskets in the flurry were off back-to-back inbound pass steals by Sarah Cross and Farrell. The Rayders led 28-17, the gym was rocking and it appeared that East Jordan was reeling.

Following a Greenier timeout, East Jordan scored the final four points of the half to cut the lead to seven, 28-21.

Just 12 seconds into the second half, Farrell picked up her third foul, sending her to the bench. Over the next two minutes, the Red Devils outscored Charlevoix, 12-2 to take a 33-30 lead with 5:50 to go in the third.

The Rayders battled back, led by Kari Way, who finished with four offensive rebounds and seven steals, many of them during the critical middle of the third quarter as Charlevoix struggled with Farrell on the bench.

Way's putback with 2:50 to go in the third, put Charlevoix ahead, 39-37 and her steal and ensuing free throws put the Rayders back in the lead at 41-39 with 1:57 left in the period.

As the quarter came to a close, East Jordan's all-stater Courtney Hammond picked up her fourth foul. The teams headed to their huddles with the score tied at 41-all.

The Red Devils again pulled ahead in the fourth, leading 53-47 with 3:38 left in the game. The turning point of the game occurred with 3:16 to go as after grabbing an offensive rebound, Farrell was fouled by Hammond who was forced to leave the game.

Farrell made both free throws to pull Charlevoix within four. Farrell picked up her own fourth foul in the next trip down the court but she remained foul-free the rest of the contest. Cross converted a steal and lay-up moments later and Jamie Pettis sank a bank-shot

Middle school team wins

Boyne City returned the opening kickoff 75 yards for a touchdown, but Charlevoix's middle school football team scored four times to defeat the Ramblers, 28-12, last week.

For Charlevoix, Kyle Jones scored three times and Nate Tripplehorn once. Cliff Jones had a stellar game at quarterback. On defense the Rayders were led by Ethan Towsley, Dustin Dibble, Tanner Fisher, and Austin Wilhelm.

Football team gets first win of the season

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

Coach Don Jess used a little trickery and a lot of Taylor Fisher to lead Charlevoix to its first win for the season, as they defeated Elk Rapids, 35-14 at Kipke Field last Friday night.

"It was a nice win to get, the kids deserved it," Jess said. "They took care of the ball in the second half, no turnovers. Everyone did their job and that's what we need if we are going to win ball games."

With two seconds left in the first half, Crain hit Fisher with a pass, Fisher then lateralled to Urban on a hook and ladder play. Urban took the ball to the end zone to send the Rayders off for the half-time break a 13-7 lead.

"I'm kind of a wide-open kind of guy. It's not like we hadn't practiced that before. It's something that we did a little bit in the summer time and we didn't have a whole lot of success doing it before that night," Jess said.

"If Elk went into the locker room 7-7, they would've thought they had the game won," Jess said. "It was a good momentum changer."

The Rayders struck first, scoring on a 10-yard pass from Cody Crain to Fisher with 1:36 left in the first quarter. Charlevoix had taken possession of the ball after the Elks failed to convert on a fourth down play at midfield.

The key play in the drive was a 23-yard run by Jeff Urban that put the ball on the Elk Rapids 12-yard line. Following the extra point kick by Jeff Golovich, the Rayders led 7-0.

Elk Rapids came right back, as the first play from scrimmage was a 559-yard run that put the ball on the Rayder 11 as the first quarter ended.

Moments later, the Elks ran for a five-yard touchdown, converting on a fourth and four. The extra point kick tied the game at 7-all.

Later in the second quarter, Fisher picked up his second interception of the game to give the Rayders excellent field position at the Elk 48. In Charlevoix's first series, Crain hit Fisher for a 15-yard gain on a fourth and eight and then again for a 19-yarder on the very next play.

The Rayders were turned away, though, as a fumble following a 10-yard gain was recovered by Elk Rapids at their own 6-yard line.

The teams traded punts and Charlevoix had the ball at their own 49-yard line with two seconds left in the second quarter to lead to the Urban touchdown.

"Cody set it up nice and so did Fisher, but Urban did the rest," Jess said. "There were a couple of guys that should've had him but he made a couple of cuts, turned on the jets and he was gone."

In the second half, Charlevoix's opening drive resulted in a 2-yard touchdown run by Josh Carter. Ben Bergmann ran the extra-point attempt in for a 21-7 Charlevoix lead.

The Elks would not go away though and drove right down the field for a touchdown to cut the lead to 21-14 with 5:10 left in the third.

Fisher's kickoff return to the Charlevoix 49 gave the Rayders favorable field position yet again. Carter's 3-yard run on fourth and two at the Elk 16 was the key play in the drive. Crain passed to Mitchell Klooster for the touchdown. Kyle Winstone rushed for the extra-point conversion to give the Rayders a 29-14 advantage with 2:03 left in the third quarter.

Winstone ran for the Rayders' final touchdown with 9:31 left in he game. The TD was setup by a 21-yard pass from Crain to Fisher. Will Kautz recovered an Elk fumble to thwart the final Elk Rapids threat.

For the game, Fisher keyed the defense with 11 tackles and two interceptions. Offensively, he caught six passes for 81 yards.

"(Fisher's) just tough," Jess said. "He's been consistent all season. He's been huge for us in every game."

Crain was 11 for 16 passing for 111 yards and two touchdowns. Urban ran for 101 yards on 10 carries. Carter ran for 36 yards on 10 carries.

Bergmann gained 50 yards on three rushing attempts and caught three passes for 10 yards.

Defensively, Golovich was the leading tackler with 12. Kautz had 11 collars while Jamen Waha and Mike Curiel each had eight stops.

Charlevoix (1-3 overall, 1-1 conference) travels to Kalkaska (1-3, 0-2) Sept. 26.

Homecoming festivities to start this weekend

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Charlevoix High School students and alumni are gearing up for a busy week of homecoming festivities.

Homecoming at the high school will kick off this weekend as float construction gets underway.

This year the float theme is seasons and the freshman will build an autumn scene, while the sophomores create a winter landscape, the juniors reveal spring and the seniors bring back summer.

Then, students will start their school week by showing their school spirit wearing wacky duds. On Monday, Sept. 29, they will cover their heads in cool caps following up on Tuesday with Hip Hop day.

On Wednesday halls will be filled with mismatched misfits for clash day.

On Thursday it will be tough for teachers to focus as they look out onto classrooms filled with students wearing patterns. Freshman will be in animal prints, sophomores will be in plaid, juniors will wear polka-dots and seniors will be in stripes.

The dress up fun will end Friday when everyone will show their Rayder pride wearing maroon and white.

Other events planned for the week include a homecoming service auction to take place at 9:20 a.m. Sept. 25 in the high school gym. At this event homecoming court members and class presidents and vice-presidents will be auctioned off to help raise money for homecoming festivities. On Oct. 2 the participants will fulfill designate duties for their owners.

The community is then invited to gear up for the big homecoming game by attending the school's pep assembly, scheduled to take place at 1 p.m., Oct. 3 in the gym. At the assembly the homecoming court will be presented and students will compete in class games, a lip synch and a tug-of-war.

After the assembly, students will man their floats at the former Charlevoix Middle School, located off Grant Street, to prep for the big parade. Float judging will take place at 4:30 p.m. Then, at 5:30 p.m., the parade is scheduled to begin lead by the Charlevoix Police Department.

Post parade, the junior class is sponsoring a tailgate party by Kipke Field at the current Middle School located off Garfield Avenue.

Kickoff is at 7:30 p.m. that night in the Charlevoix versus Harbor Springs Homecoming game. The 2003 homecoming king and queen will be announced at half-time as will winners of the homecoming week competition results.

After the game, a homecoming bonfire sponsored by student council, will take place at the field.

Students will end the exciting week with a homecoming dance, sponsored by the junior class, scheduled to take place from 8 to 11:30 p.m., Oct. 5 at Charlevoix Elementary School.

Crap shoot at golf course

Editor:

As an ancient once said, "The game isn't really that you bring home a win, but how you manage to survive the turbulent nature of the journey."

And with that I would like to make mention of one of the biggest hazards known to the city of Charlevoix, and more importantly, to every single golfer that would play the Charlevoix municipal golf course.

Being just at the end of the first hole, and the end of the sixth hole, lies something that is waiting to erupt into someone's personal tragedy and god forbid it isn't yours.

To every golfer who has played the course on any given Sunday, or any day for that matter.

I'm speaking of having to cross US-31 to get to the second hole on the north side of US-31.

Then later having to cross again to get to the seventh hole, then back on the south side of US-31, and then back to the clubhouse to finish.

Let me tell you, this literally is a roll of the dice, gone wild.

Do people not know that when there is a crosswalk in the road for pedestrians to make their way across to the other side, they have to at the very least slow down?

I've been playing the course for around 20 years, and being that of a personal thrill seeker myself, I can always muster up a little adrenaline from having to race across a four lane road either carrying a heavy bag or pulling a cart, and with cars speeding back and forth at a frantic pace, with my best guess, 70 percent of the traffic over the speed limit, and most of which rarely showing signs of slowing. Even being aggressive and rude because someone is crossing the road and inconveniencing them.

It's hard to understand the mentality behind such a driver (NOT).

Somebody's going to get whacked and the city is going to have to eat it, or should I say, "Have to take a bite out of, one big bad sandwich."

For one, the speed limit is rarely enforced out there and not having any pedestrian signs out there, prior to the cross walks, trust me people, this is a dice game, a crap shoot, if you will. Where's the common sense here?

You'd think the city would be a little more conscientious with this one, after all, there are a great deal of loyal patrons that put up yearly dues and play the course on a regular basis.

All of which have to sweat crossing US-31 and dodging the bullets.

Old Mr. Murphy will get you sooner or later, he's kind of like that, and he can't help it, he has his job to do as well.

I guess deep down we still need statistics that remind us we're all just one stone's throw away from the big dance.

Remedies:

1) Lower the speed limit from 45 to 25 or at the most 35.

2) Have a yellow blinking light at each cross walk, activated by golfer.

3) Put pedestrian signs in just before the cross walks.

4) Put a light in at Mercer and US-31.

Protect the water in Charlevoix

Editor:

Counties and townships can no longer look to the state to protect their natural resources. While at one time the state of Michigan modeled environmental protection of the land and water, the state has passed the burden of regulation to local units of government.

Unfortunately, many counties and townships do not have the will, the resources or the expertise to craft and enforce legislation that will protect these resources.

The state allows county ordinances to be more restrictive than the state minimal rules. This is good news to counties that have unique resources and the desire to protect them.

In Charlevoix County, our globally rare trout streams and our lakes and rivers need protection from the development practices that destroyed the natural resources to the south of us.

The conservation district wrote the first Soil Erosion and Stormwater Ordinance in 1998, but the Best Management Practices (BMPs) they required have been largely deleted.

Unfortunately, misguided short term development interests and the Charlevoix County Commissioner's appointments to committees, have steadily eroded and eliminated protection of sensitive lands; buffers along creeks and rivers, greenbelts and wetlands.

The developmental community that is to be regulated by the ordinance largely controls revisions of the ordinance.

In Charlevoix County, the fox was charged with guarding the hen house.

The recently published 2001 ordinance is inadequate. In October the Stormwater Ordinance will be reviewed by the same board that has worked to minimize natural resource protection.

It is vital that the citizens who want to see Charlevoix's land and water protected become informed and get involved.

to tie the game at 53-53 with 2:12 to go. After an East Jordan free throw, Farrell sank two clutch free throws of her own to put the Rayders in the lead to stay at 55-54.

Way then stole an errant Red Devil pass and fed Farrell for a lay-up to give Charlevoix a 57-54 cushion.

For the game, Farrell finished with 19 points and four steals. Way had 11 points to go with her four rebounds and seven steals. Cross had nine points and 10 rebounds. Alyssia McDonough scored eight points and grabbed four rebounds.

The Rayders (7-0 overall, 3-0 conference) hosted Harbor Springs Sept. 23, but results were unavailable at press time. Charlevoix travels to Ellsworth for a non-league game on Sept. 25.

Wal-Mart wants to open store in 2005

motive department for tire, oil and lube changing.

The supercenter will have two main entrances, not including a truck entrance on US-31. One entrance will be on US-31 and the other will be on Marion Center Road. Plans also show the addition of a lighted signal at the US-31 entrance and the addition of deceleration and acceleration lanes and turn lanes on US-31.

These road plans are subject to approval by the Michigan Department of Transportation. A traffic study is currently being worked on.

"There is no doubt building a store there will increase traffic on these roads. A traffic study would help tell what we need," Danos said.

The company will be proposing 774 parking spaces on the site, which is just under the township requirements, and a detention pond near Marion Center Road and Stover Creek. Danos said all of the water from the site will run into the detention pond and will be released into Stover Creek.

These two proposals in the conceptual design caused much of the discussion among the commissioners and audience members. Most were concerned about storm water runoff — which could contain pollutants, such as oil — into Stover Creek. There is no storm sewer that is close enough for Wal-Mart to tie into and there are no plans to build one.

Allen Oertel, project manager for Wal-Mart, said storm water that runs into the detention pond can be treated in a variety of ways. One way is to treat the water at the point of collection in the parking lot with special filters, another is through the natural filtration of the detention pond.

He said future plans will give more detail on the storm water issue.

As for the parking, commissioner John Haggard questioned the need for so many spaces. He suggested the company cut back on its parking spaces to allow for more landscaping, but leave room to add parking in the future, if it is needed.

Danos and Oertel were concerned that this could hurt the business by leaving it without enough parking spaces during the Christmas season. But, company officials said they would come back to the township with a landscaping plan and then discuss the parking issue.

Danos said the company was pursuing a supercenter in Charlevoix based on customer studies and "point-of-sale" reports at the Petoskey Wal-Mart. In these reports, zip codes of customers who shop at the Petoskey Wal-Mart are collected to determine where they are coming from.

"Charlevoix lit up like a red light because of all the business that is going to Petoskey," Danos said.

Danos added the Wal-Mart will attract customers from throughout the Charlevoix area, over to East Jordan. Combined with the tourism that comes through Charlevoix in the summer, he said Wal-Mart expects the store will do well in the community

But, some in the audience questioned this thinking, saying people who live on the north side of the bridge will not travel south in the summer.

Charlevoix resident and business-owner Kirby Dipert said, "Let's assume you put this store in and it doesn't do what you want. Do you have an exit strategy?"

Danos said the company does not have an "exit strategy," but he said all of Wal-Mart's studies show something will work in Charlevoix. He said the company may find out that the supercenter it will be proposing is too big or too small or even that the company needs to put another store in East Jordan along with Charlevoix's.

"There have not been very many (Wal-Marts) that have closed because of our business plan. If we close a store and we own it, we will try to sell them," Danos said.

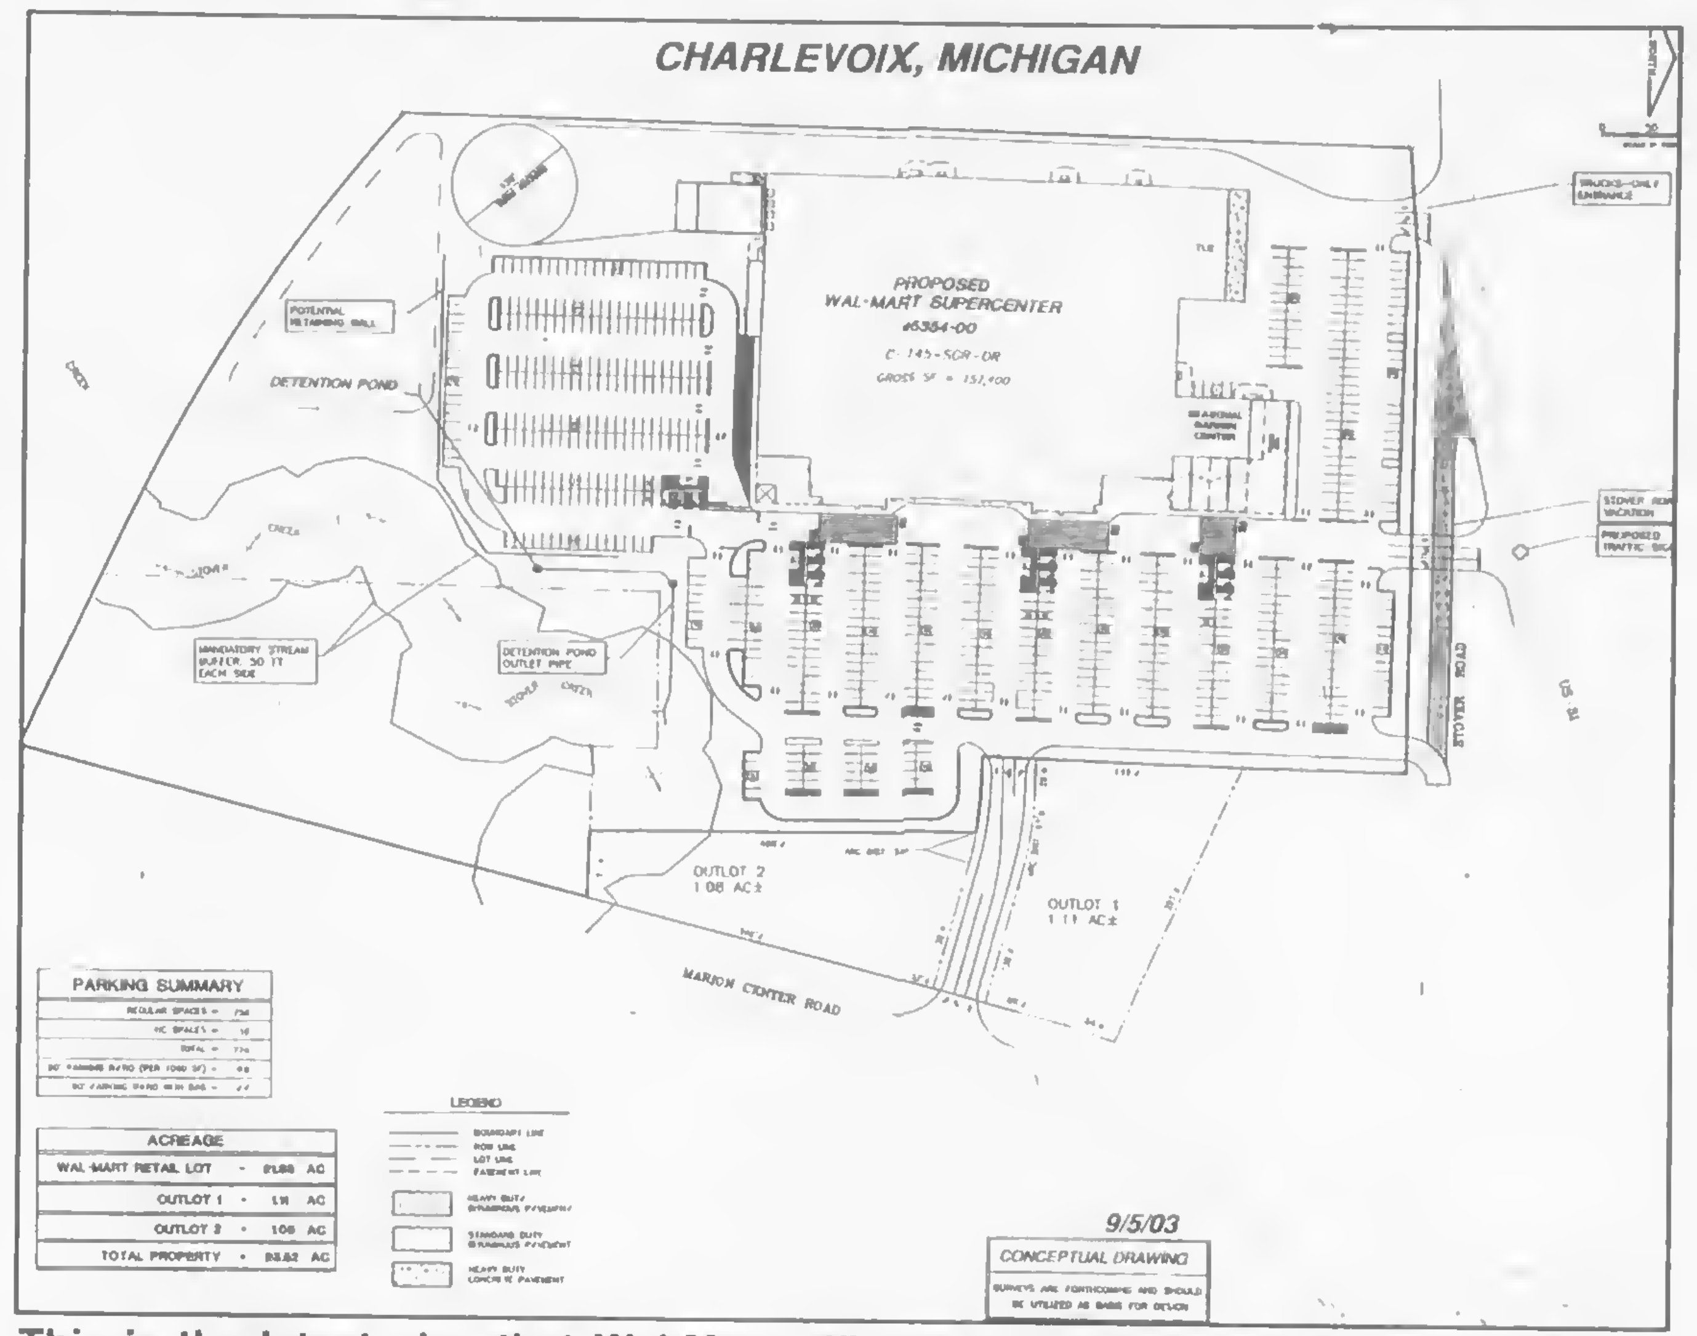
Danos added the customer studies so far have not been able to show what kind of business a Wal-Mart in Charlevoix can expect in the late winter months. Danos also did not know what kind of impact current businesses in Charlevoix would face if a Wal-Mart is built near town.

Audience members also questioned why Wal-Mart needed to build a new store in Charlevoix as opposed to buying a building that had already been constructed, such as the vacant Quality Farm and Fleet building next to Kmart on M-66.

Danos said the company did look at current buildings in the area, specifically the Kmart center on M-66, but it did not have enough room for a medium-sized supercenter.

While the meeting was not a public hearing, one member of the audience stood up in support of the Wal-Mart plan.

Dale Boss, of Charlevoix, said, "I am all for your plan. I think this is going to help all of you (current business owners). The only thing I hope you do is put in some ginger bread and decent landscaping."



This is the latest plan that Wal-Mart officials have presented for their planned store on US-31 South, near Marion Center Road. (Courtesy graphic)

Time running out on plan to save Appletree

APPLETREE

Bennett said aside from his feeling that the building would encroach on his property, if placed there, it may also pose problems for emergency vehicles trying to pass through the alley.

According to the Robys' attorney Dan Barron, his clients and Bennett spoke after the council meeting and nothing was resolved.

"I'm unsure as to what can be worked out. Mr. Roby is interested in preserving that building and at this point the only alternative (to demolishing the building) is bringing it to his property," he said.

He added now it's up to the city zoning board of appeals, the governing body that would have to grant the Rohys a variance for the relocation of the building, for the move to be a go.

But the road to getting that variance won't be easily traveled as Bennett and his neighbors plan to adamantly oppose the variance request.

"If this goes to the zoning board of appeals we will be there in force and we will have documentation to work toward not putting a 33 by 35 foot building on a 36 foot lot," he said.

Barron submitted the variance request on behalf of the Rohys on Sept. 22.

"We feel it behooves us and our view of the public good to have the decision rendered by the zoning board of appeals," Barron said.

The public hearing in this matter has to be posted by Oct. 1 to make the appeals board's Oct. 15 meeting. And after Oct. 15 the building is vulnerable to the threat of demolition.

When city council granted the new development its site plan approval on Sept. 2, it made its approval conditional on the developer waiting until Oct. 15 to move forward with construction, allowing time for the building to be removed.

Rutter, the new owner and developer, said he wants to see the building saved, but also faces a time crunch. The developers are willing to be flexible until the end of October, but he plans to break ground during the first week in November.

"We are going to be part of the city and want to be good neighbors and cooperate, but I have to move people in there. I'm behind right now," he said.

Mike Holmes, owner of the Appletree business, plans to move back into the new building this spring when Rutter said he hopes construction will be complete. Holmes will relocate to another vacant Bridge Street business until then.

Rutter's construction crew needs between 45 and 60 days to get the structure enclosed so they can work through the winter.

He said he is disappointed to see the Roby plan may be in jeopardy and is hoping an alternative will surface and last.

"I love that building. I still hope the Robys can do it, but if not I wish there was someone else," he said.

Ways sue Eveline Township

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

The Eveline Township Board has found itself back in the line of fire.

After things have just begun to settle down following a tumultuous recall election and a long battle to fit wind turbine generators in the township zoning ordinance, the board is facing a third foe, a lawsuit.

Dawson and Mark "Barney" Way filed suit against the township earlier this month alleging the board acted on an exclusionary zoning ordinance when it denied their rezoning request.

In March of this year, the board turned down the Ways request to have their property rezoned from agricultural to R-4, a residential zone that accommodates mobile homes.

The request applied to two pieces of property spanning over 150 acres, located adjacent to one another, with frontage on M-66 and Brock and Ferry roads.

The Ways claim that the development planned for the property would include about 200 manufactured homes and would provide needed affordable housing.

The township's master plan supports this and states that there exists, "a lack of low cost housing or rental homes and apartments in the township."

In spite of the apparent need, the board acted on recommendations made by both the Charlevoix County and Eveline Township planning commissions that it deny the request.

The township planning commission came to a unanimous decision, saying the rezone could bring on higher density development than is supported by the master plan. If fully developed, the Group wants to fight Wal-Mart

By JEREMY MCBAIN

The fight is just starting for some Charlevoix residents who want to stop a Wal-Mart from being built near Charlevoix.

"I don't think it would be in the best interests of the general population and businesses here in Charlevoix," said local CPA and Charlevoix resident Bob Hoffman. "I don't think Wal-Mart gives as much back to a community as it takes out."

Several members of the community are discussing ways to stop the proposed retail center from coming to the area and how much support they have in doing so with a public meeting at 7 p.m., Wednesday, today, in the Edgewater Conference Center on Michigan Avenue.

Hoffman, one of the community members who has proposed the meeting, said the meeting is going to determine how much support there is for stopping the Wal-Mart project in Charlevoix and what they have to do to achieve this goal.

Hoffman said there are several ways the project can be stopped at this point, one is through the company's belief that it will make money in Charlevoix by drawing customers from its Petoskey store.

In a story in last week's edition of the Charlevoix Courier, Chris Danos, a Wal-Mart official, said the compa-

Library plans may be presented soon

> "It's exciting now — it's getting to be more of a reality."
> Connie Saltonstall, Library building committee board member

The look of the future Charlevoix Public Library will be revealed at an upcoming meeting.

"It's exciting now — it's getting to be more of a reality," building committee member Connie Saltonstall, said.

The library board and members of the library building committee met Sept. 25 to review design options crafted by Alyce Riemenschneider of Riemenschneider Design Associates in Ann Arbor and Bill Williams of Engberg Anderson Design Partnership in Wisconsin.

The plan the two bodies decided was the preferred, was laid out by Williams. The big difference between the preferred plan and the nine others the board and committee had to choose from was the location of the program meeting room.

Saltonstall said in the preferred design, this room was at the east end of the current gymnasium which will one day be the adult collection. She said this way the "L" shape of the building is preserved.

"It cleans up the design," she said.

It also preserves trees. The other proposed location for the program room, running perpendicular to the building on the north end of the L, would have required removal of some old trees.

The design selected by the groups locates this room where there is currently a cement slab and some portable classroom units that were used when the building was the Charlevoix Middle School.

Those who attended also suggested pulling in unique design options from other plans including a teen area designed by Riemenschneider and a mezzanine area above the gym/adult collection that Williams concocted for quiet reading.

This preferred layout, including some interior design, will be available for community review at the final public input session, scheduled to take place at 7 p.m., Oct. 7 in the library basement.

Another meeting where detailed, colorful renderings of the library will be available, will be scheduled in the future. At that time cost estimates will also be discussed.

Library director Valerie Meyerson said that after the total image of the library has been crafted, work with the architects will be on hold for about a year while volunteers and library staff start to gather money to make the project happen.

A millage/bond issue election is expected to take place in the fall of 2004 and then the project's blueprints will be developed. Construction is expected to take between one and two years with the new facility opening in the fall of 2006.

Charlevoix Courier wins eight advertising awards in contest

The Charlevoix Courier's advertising department was recently honored with eight Michigan Press Association awards.

Kim Taylor

"I think it is great that a small town paper such as the Courier can win so many of these prestigious awards. This shows what kind of quality our advertisers can expect," said Kim Taylor, advertising manager for the Charlevoix Courier. "We are obviously a top-quality, first-rate newspaper."

The contest was open to all Michigan newspapers that are members of the Michigan Press Association. Judges evaluated the newspapers' advertising based on uniqueness and quality of the work.

This was the first year Taylor entered advertising material from the Courier to this contest.

There is a separate contest for the editorial side of newspapers that belong to the organization. The results of that contest are expected soon.

The awards given to the Courier's advertising department were:

- First place — Best use of newspaper art service for a Belvedere Golf advertisement.
- Third place — Best use of newspaper art service for a Big Steak advertisement.
- Second place — Best multi-colored ad for a public service announcement about drinking and driving.
- Second place — Best special section for the Charlevoix Courier's community guide The Community Compass. The judges said this guide has something for everyone in it and added it is a great reference guide.
- Third place — Best special section for McKeown's Grand Opening.
- First place — Best newspaper promotion for an advertisement called "Returned Undeliverable."
- Second place — Best newspaper promotion for an advertisement called "Don't know."
- Third place — Best newspaper promotion for the Courier's weekly "staff photos" box on page 2.

Fall brings fun to Charlevoix area

EDITORIAL

Soon the flakes will be flying as another winter comes to Charlevoix.

Yes, summer is officially gone. The streets of Charlevoix are quieting down, parking spaces are opening up and tourists are becoming a rare sight.

But, does the winding down of the summer season mean that Charlevoix will become a dull place to visit? Absolutely not!

There are many activities taking place over the next month in Charlevoix that will keep you and your family entertained for hours. Just because you can not lay on the beach anymore or enjoy a boat ride — well, you could, but it would be a cold ride — doesn't mean Charlevoix isn't the place to be.

This weekend the residents of Charlevoix will be gathering at the Charlevoix football field, near the Charlevoix Middle School for that annual fall rite Homecoming. While they cheer on the local football team, residents will be enjoying the company of old friends and family who have come back to town for a visit.

The entertainment continues next weekend when the community hosts the annual Charlevoix Apple Festival. This festival seems to grow with each year as more and more booths filled with interesting and colorful crafts and area farmers take part to show off their goods.

The fall fun does not stop there as Friske Orchards, on US-31 in Atwood, is currently celebrating the season with a host of activities like wagon rides, an orchard playland and displays of old farm machinery. The farm market will be offering these attractions until Oct. 25.

For those seeking more formal fun, St. Mary School will be having its annual Northern Lights Celebration on Oct. 18 at the school on Bridge Street. This annual fund-raiser has a catered dinner, live auction and a night of dancing.

These are just a few of the many activities taking place around Charlevoix in October. Fall may be here, but that doesn't mean the fun fades away like leaves on a tree.

A good night's sleep is important for all of us

Edith Gilbert

'Behind the news'

"So how did you sleep last night?" my friend, Dr. James B. Maas asked me.

Of course I was flattered since the question came from the author of the book "Power Sleep" that has been on the New York Times Best Seller list for some time and is published in 10 languages.

Maas also teaches introductory psychology to 1,600 students in the world's largest single lecture class at Cornell University. He has appeared on the Oprah Winfrey Show and finally, he has spent every summer in Charlevoix since he was born. He plans to retire here with his lovely wife, Nancy.

But what was most interesting during our pleasant conversation was the story he told of his helpful sleep guidance program for the young Olympic skating champion, Sarah Hughes. It seems Sarah was scheduled, along with other junior ice skaters, to practice skating every morning at 6:30 and again in the afternoon. This meant that Sarah was not getting her 9-and-a-half hours sleep a night. Maas recommended that she eliminate the morning practice, along with caffeine, and the rest is history!

Our little chat reminds me that the current trend is for teenagers to get less and less sleep because school starts earlier and earlier! According to Maas, high school and college students are the most sleep deprived people in our population.

Thirty percent fall asleep in class at least once a week. Maas reminds us that before Thomas Edison's invention of the electric light in 1879, most people slept ten hours each night, which is ideal for optimal performance. Adolescents need approximately 10 hours of sleep each night to be fully alert the next day, yet they average only about six which Maas claims is a recipe for disaster. They drag themselves through school like walking zombies.

They are moody, lethargic and unable to learn. Memory, concentration, communication skills and critical and creative thinking are significantly affected.

All this makes me wonder how much sleep are our Charlevoix kids getting today? Let's see, Charlevoix Middle School and Charlevoix High School routes stretch from Norwood almost to Bay Harbor. That means, according to Gordon Russell, transportation supervisor, that some kids are waiting for the bus at 6:35 a.m.

If 20 routes transport 800 kids a day, and the longest ride is an hour, then busses arrive at the middle school and high school at 7:30 a.m. and classes begin at 7:45 a.m. Elementary school starts at 8:30 a.m. and kids get home at 4:30 p.m.

Years after Thomas Edison passed on, schools used to start at 9 in the morning and let out at 3 p.m. But gradually, I am told, more emphasis was put on school sports and coaches pleaded for more practice time.

Consequently, they urged the school board to start school earlier in the morning and let the kids out earlier in the afternoon. Never mind what parents opted for, the result is that kids are getting less and less sleep.

Unfortunately many youngsters today suffer from sleep disorders that may result in problems paying attention, following directions and poor grades.

Fortunately Sleep Centers that treat sleep disorders have sprung up all over the country including Charlevoix. The Charlevoix Area Sleep Center has a number of helpful brochures including one that is written especially for children, called "It's Time To Go to Bed!" Let's remember — if more sleep is good for Sarah Hughes, it is good for all of us!

Who wants Wal-Mart?

Editor:

In addition to the environmental issues addressed in the recent Charlevoix Courier and Petoskey News-Review articles, I wonder where more public discussion is about whether we really want a Wal-Mart in Charlevoix. Polls taken about several months ago by Jeremy McBain, editor of the Charlevoix Courier, apparently showed that many local businesses and residents were not in favor of a Wal-Mart here. Does Wal-Mart have any concern about coming into an area where they are not wanted, despite the fact that the property for their site is zoned commercial? Chuck Center (Charlevoix Courier March 26, 2003) said that fact means the township cannot refuse them, but we the public can surely voice our opinions. No doubt Wal-Mart has faced negative local sentiment many times.

I question the consumer base for such a large store, which Chris Danos, real estate manager for handling Wal-Mart development in Chicago and Michigan, said exists.

He stated in the Petoskey News-Review (Sept. 4, 2003) that tracing of receipts showed that a majority of the Petoskey business is from the Charlevoix area, enough to support a new super center. I agree that many Charlevoix summer and full-time residents already shop at the Petoskey Wal-Mart. However does Wal-Mart gain any increased sales by transferring business from Petoskey to Charlevoix? Does Wal-Mart envision a population explosion in the area in the next 10 years? I just don't foresee wall-to-wall housing from here to Traverse City and I am not convinced that the populations of small towns like Ellsworth, East Jordan and Central lake can add much support to a Charlevoix store, especially from September through June.

It's well known that when Wal-Mart comes into towns, many smaller stores close. I am troubled by the thought that grocery stores south of the bridge and many of these stores in the Captain's Corners mall may go out of business. I think the Charlevoix Kmart has been struggling ever since Wal-Mart opened in Petoskey, so Kmart may close too.

I do not agree with the rationale of Dennis Anderson, store manager for the M-66 K-Mart. In the Charlevoix Courier (March 5, 2003), he stated that Wal-Mart probably realizes if Kmart can support stores in Petoskey and Charlevoix, then Wal-Mart could follow suit. The Petoskey area has a much larger year-round population than Charlevoix and surrounding small towns. Therefore I can understand how both Kmart and Wal-Mart could thrive in Petoskey; however, that may not prove to be the case for Charlevoix.

For all those who read this letter, I urge you to get involved and make your opinion heard about the coming of Wal-Mart. Write or phone the Charlevoix Courier or e-mail them at news@charlevoixcourier.com.

Jeanne Blumberg
Charlevoix

(Editor's note: The Charlevoix Courier has not conducted any formal polls on the Wal-Mart issue. However, in a story several months ago, we did ask several business-owners about their feelings on a Wal-Mart coming to town. Many of those business-owners, who are also local residents, were not in favor of a Wal-Mart.)

Petunia situation

Editor:

I read with interest Roger Knutson's opinion column in last week's Courier regarding the weeds in the petunia beds this summer. Keep Charlevoix Beautiful (KCB) is well aware of the problem this past summer and has been working with the city staff to identify the causes and try to assure that they do not repeat themselves in the future.

KCB is a non-profit organization which has raised money to buy the petunias, provide watering during the summer and help in other ways to make Charlevoix's 5 plus miles of US-31 more beautiful for the town's visitors and residents. KCB has also supplied the necessary soil for the petunia beds on an as needed basis which has been every few years. In discussions with city staff we all have come to the same conclusion that next year it will be time for a soil change again.

The decision to weed-whip the petunias was a practical one as we felt that tilling the soil would bury the seeds as Mr. Knutson mentioned.

KCB and the city are looking into what type of soil, the amount and type of herbicides and fertilizers, if any, to use next year. We know that part of the problem this year was the road construction and cold spring.

We want the public to be assured that we are working hard to make Charlevoix beautiful and a town that all the citizens can be proud of.

The American Red Cross had a community blood drive in Charlevoix on Sept. 18.

There were 133 donors willing to give the gift of life. The Red Cross successfully collected 110 pints of blood. Six gentlemen participated in the Double Reds program. Some of the blood was designated specifically for babies. Thank you to each person who came in to donate. It's exciting to realize the number of sick and injured of all ages who were helped through our blood drive in Charlevoix. Our hospitals depend upon all of us to give blood when we are eligible.

I want to thank all of my volunteer workers and bakers. The Charlevoix Lions Club, Ed Whitley's staff at the city's electric and water department, businesses and organizations who displayed posters and provided products all showed their dedication to the American Red Cross. A special thanks to the Charlevoix Community Reformed Church for hosting the blood drive in their wonderful fellowship hall.

Please come donate at the next community blood drive on Nov. 20. We have the ability to make a difference right before Thanksgiving!

Domestic violence

Editor:

Please take a moment to think about your ideas and beliefs about domestic abuse. Do you believe in the myths or are you speaking out on the facts?

Many people have the idea that domestic abuse is about couples brawling on a Saturday night. Many also believe that domestic abuse is rare and, if it does occur, it is a one-time incident. The truth about domestic abuse is that it is not rare. In fact, approximately one-in-three American women reported being physically or sexually abused by their husband or boyfriend. Domestic abuse is a continued and deliberate effort of one person to maintain control over their intimate partner.

Another myth is that domestic abuse only occurs in poor, uneducated and dysfunctional homes. The fact is domestic abuse crosses all class, educational and social boundaries.

Alcohol and drug use are many times blamed for domestic abuse — substance abuse is not a cause for abusive behavior, instead it's another excuse batterers use to justify their actions.

Many people believe that a woman who is being abused must like the abuse if she is not leaving the home. The truth is that there are many physical, emotional and economic challenges a woman faces in escaping an abusive relationship.

Some people believe that women are just as abusive as men. The reality is that the majority of domestic abuse (95 percent) is perpetrated by men. As a community, we need to hold these men accountable for their abusive behavior.

With strong community support and belief in the facts about domestic abuse, together we can make homes safe for women and children.

If you, or anyone you know, needs help, information, or support regarding domestic abuse, please call the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan at (800) 275-1995.

Council member questions Harbor abatement

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Layoffs at Charlevoix's industrial hub, Harbor Industries prompted third ward city council member Shirley Gibson to question whether the city should honor job related tax breaks it offers the company.

"I want to know how the qualifications are handled with layoffs. That's taxpayer money and it's my job to find out what is going on," she said.

Tim Parker, vice president of northern operations for Harbor Industries, said, layoff numbers fluctuate from week to week depending on orders, but that since May about 30 percent of Harbor's 275 employees have been laid off.

"Business has been slower than anticipated," he said.

While around 80 workers are out of work right now, Harbor still provides about 200 jobs to people living in this area.

Parker said the industrial facilities tax abatement from the city and a sizable state grant are two reasons the company is in Charlevoix. He explained when the company was looking to expand a few years ago, it looked at several communities and the decrease in tax bills was an incentive to stay.

According to Charlevoix County equalization director Tom Wolf, the abatement the city offers Harbor is a reduction in the taxable value of both the original facility and the addition. The amount of time the abatement is in effect for is related to the number of jobs the facility provides.

Harbor qualified for a 12 year abatement in 2000 for phase one of the project and again in 2001 for phase two. The current layoffs would not affect that qualification.

The 2001 abatement saves the company about $50,000 a year.

However, the layoffs may affect a Community Development Block Grant from the Michigan Economic Development Corporation for $904,525. This grant was awarded to Harbor Industries when it most recently expanded the plant.

According to Susan McCormick, spokesperson for the Michigan Economic Development Corporation, the money has not been entirely distributed and the current layoffs may affect future payoffs.

One of the grant's stipulations is that 120 jobs, paying an hourly rate of at least $8.59 per hour, are created and maintained.

"If the project does not result in the number of jobs identified above, the state retains the right to require the grantee and/or company to repay the full amount of grant funds," the agreement states.

While this loss of funding is a possible outcome, McCormick said it isn't probable.

"At this time we don't anticipate asking for repayment," she said. "That is obviously the last resort."

She explained that staff members at the development corporation are working with Harbor and that the job discrepancy could be worked out by extending the grant.

"We are seeing positive things in our discussions with the community and we are confident jobs can be created through an extension or other circumstances," she said.

She said in losing the grant there are no winners.

"The infrastructure grant is for the good of Harbor Industries and the community," she said.

City manager Mike Wiesner told Gibson at the meeting that in his discussions with Parker he has found that Harbor Industries has every intention of filling the jobs after the economy bounces back.

"They did create the jobs they promised and things are picking back up," he said. "It's a rough time. Do you lay the hammer down and say, 'You have to give us more money because you are having a bad time?'"

Parker said it hasn't been a fun few months, but in light of the effects of the rough economy across the industry over the past few years, Harbor has faired well.

"We are hoping for a strong finish this year and an even stronger 2004," he said.

Secondhand smoke just as dangerous

Teresa Sington

Your health

Most of us don't like being around smoke from other people's cigarettes, pipes and cigars, but did you know that secondhand smoke is deadly?

At least 50 chemicals in the mixture of smoke given off from a cigarette, pipe, or cigar cause cancer in humans or animals. That's why the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has classified secondhand smoke as a "Class A carcinogen," or a known cause of lung cancer. The EPA estimates that breathing secondhand smoke causes approximately 3,000 lung cancer deaths in nonsmokers each year. There is no safe level of exposure for a cancer-causing substance.

In our body fluids, nonsmokers exposed to cigarette smoke have significant amounts of nicotine, carbon monoxide, and other evidence of secondhand smoke. Workers exposed to secondhand smoke on the job are 34 percent more likely to get lung cancer and people who work in restaurants and bars have 50 percent higher risk of lung cancer than the general public.

Most mothers understand the negative effects that smoking during pregnancy can have on their unborn baby. These effects include having a small or underweight baby and having a baby with abnormal lung function.

Mothers who smoke are also more likely to have a premature baby and, according to the American Academy of Pediatrics, "long-term cognitive and behavior problems, including lower intelligence and attention deficit disorder, with or without hyperactivity."

A recent study found that infants were three times more likely to die from Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (SIDS) if their mothers smoked during and after pregnancy. Infants are twice as likely to die from SIDS if their mothers stop smoking during pregnancy and then resume smoking following birth.

Secondhand smoke is a serious health risk to children. Many mothers who stop smoking during their pregnancies start smoking again after their baby is born.

Being exposed to someone that smokes, even if they just smoke outside the home, increases a child's chance of having ear infections, allergies, asthma, wheezing, and pneumonia.

The EPA estimates that secondhand smoke is responsible annually for between 150,000 and 300,000 lower respiratory tract infections in children under age 18 months, resulting in up to 15,000 preventable child hospitalizations each year.

Tobacco smoke can also trigger asthma attacks in many children, and they are often worse than in children who aren't exposed to someone that smokes. Each year, U.S. mothers who smoke at least 10 cigarettes a day can actually cause up to 26,000 new cases of asthma in their children.

So what can you do? First, if you are a smoker, quit. And keep on quitting.

It's estimated the typical smoker quits six times before he or she is successful. If you can't quit for yourself, quit for your children or your grandchildren. Prohibit smoking in your home and yard. Dine in smoke-free restaurants and encourage others to become 100 percent smoke-free.

If your workplace permits smoking, encourage management to adopt a smoke-free policy.

For a copy of "First Hand Facts on Secondhand Smoke" a "Quit Kit" or help with smokefree policies at the workplace, call the health department at 547-6523.

Teresa Sington is with the new Tobacco Reduction Coalition of Antrim, Charlevoix, and Emmet Counties. She can be reached at the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency (the health department) at 547-6523.

Council to address a burning question

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

To burn or not to burn?

That is the question that will be before Charlevoix's City Council at it's Oct. 6 meeting.

The burn ordinance the city staff currently has on the books says that all burning is prohibited with the exception of campfires. However, city mayor Gabe Campbell recalls a council meeting in March of 2000 when that ordinance was amended to allow for burning of paper.

He said he has been burning newspaper ever since.

"I think we are going to have a whole lot of people upset if we change that," he said.

But there are other city residents who want to see the continued prohibition of burning in the city limits. They claim the nuisance odors are too much.

This issue was first a topic of discussion at the Sept. 15 council meeting.

At that meeting city resident Nikki Louiselle made it clear that burning in the vicinity of her home was negatively affecting her children.

"Two weeks ago, in my own house, my 5-year-old son came to me, sick to his stomach from the smell of the burning. That is very frustrating to me," she told council. "I don't mind a campfire, but the garbage smells and its a nuisance."

Campfires were one type of burning that most members of council were on the fence about.

But the biggest strike working against burning being permitted in the city is the county recycling program, that has a drop-off location for newspaper and other materials at the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office in the city of Charlevoix.

City resident Richard Clem said, "With recycling in place I don't think you need to burn other than campfires."

Many members of council agreed with Clem.

Third ward councilman Sherm Chamberlain said, "I think we should promote recycling. I've gotten in the habit of taking my newspapers to the sheriff's office and it's no big deal."

> "I don't mind the campfires, but the garbage smells and it's a nuisance."
> Nikki Louiselle,
> Charlevoix resident

First ward councilman Bill Haggard and third ward council person Shirley Gibson agreed that recycling is the better approach.

But no decision was made at that meeting. Instead, council directed city staff to look into burn ordinances in place in surrounding communities and also agreed to talk to their constituents to get a feel for public opinion on the issue.

Information that was gathered will be discussed at the upcoming council meeting scheduled to take place at 7 p.m., Oct. 6 in the Coast Guard Training Room located at 109 Bridge Park Drive in the city of Charlevoix.

Thrivent chapter to have annual meeting Oct. 4

The annual meeting of the West Mackinaw Forest Chapter of Thrivent will be at 11:30 a.m. on Saturday, Oct. 4, at the Grey Gables Inn in Charlevoix.

Chapter president Kathy Johnson announced the meeting this week in invitations sent to members throughout the four county (Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, Otsego) area. At the same time, the west Mackinaw chapter announced they were awarding its first grants.

Election of officers for the local chapter and the national board of directors will take place at the meeting. Members will also discuss grant opportunities, how the grant procedure works and plans for 2004.

The chapter also announced the first Care Abounds in Communities grants were awarded to the Evangelical Lutheran Church in East Jordan for an auction, to Calvary Lutheran Church in Elk Rapids for a fish dinner and to St. Matthew Lutheran Church in Mancelona for a work project. Grants must benefit individuals in need or non-profit organizations providing services in the communities.

Information regarding grant applications for the West Forest Mackinaw Chapter of Thrivent are available to all Thrivent members and associate members by contacting the chapter at (231) 582-2715.

Officers learn how to prepare for the worst

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Local law enforcement executives took part in a recent seminar that prepped them for a possible weapons of mass destruction strike by terrorists.

Detective-Sergeant Mike Wheat with the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department said, even though the threat isn't something Charlevoix residents deal with daily, it is still a threat.

"Fortunately we don't deal with those situations often, but it's very good to be prepared ," he said.

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office hosted and sponsored the two day seminar which was attended by law enforcement and emergency response personnel from 12 agencies across five counties.

In Charlevoix to lead the training was Don Driskill, a weapons of mass destruction instructor with the National Sheriff's Association out of Alexandria, Va. and a retired detective who spent 30 years with the Washington D.C. Police Department.

He said the aim of the classes is simple — to train agency heads in what to do before, during and after a weapons of mass destruction event.

"What we are trying to do is come into communities, talk to directors, evaluate potential terrorist targets in their community and potential resources in their community and then evaluate how to direct those resources in a WMD event and how to recover from a WMD event," he said.

Driskill declined to comment on what potential terrorist targets were pinpointed for Charlevoix.

But he agreed with detective sergeant Wheat and said that in spite of its size, Charlevoix is not immune to the threat and needs to be prepared.

"People in small communities often say, 'I'm not New York, I'm not Washington D.C. It's not going to happen here.' Well, Oklahoma City isn't New York or Washington D.C. and it happened there," he said. "You are not exempt because you area a small or rural community. This course helps build awareness that it could happen in your community."

He said in most communities he goes to, as was the case in Charlevoix, there is already a weapons of mass destruction plan in place and the course is a review. And those who attended said they are thankful for the refresher.

Charlevoix City Fire Chief Paul Ivan said, "It's been a good review."

Others said it also opened their eyes to things they weren't aware of and Driskill said he learned new things to share with other communities.

This federally funded course is available to any sheriff's department across the nation. Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater has been planning the training for the past three months.

"Since 9-11, it's been a topic of conversation and we felt we needed training in that area," he said.

He added that his officers will continue with frequent training.

Area groups sponsoring blanket drive

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

As cool weather rolls in, a trio of local service clubs are working together to make sure Charlevoix area residents have warm blankets to wrap up in.

In an effort to meet the needs of the community, the Bergmann Center's AKtion Club in conjunction with its parent club, Charlevoix Kiwanis Club and student Kiwanians with the Northwest Academy Key Club, are coordinating a blanket drive.

"If there is a need for coats, hats and mittens, there's a need for blankets," Kim Brock, the Bergmann Center's AKtion Club coordinator, said.

Brock has personally accepted the blanket drive challenge by purchasing six new blankets. But many more are needed to fill the van that will be parked outside the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., Oct. 10 and 11.

The clubs are looking for donations of new quilts, comforters and blankets for children and adults.

The donations will be distributed locally to organizations that include: the Nehemiah Project Hospitality House, the Charlevoix County Family Independence Agency, the Mary Margaret House and the Women's Resource Center.

Key Club member Amanda Seidel said, "It's important to collect blankets. Some can be $50 or $60 and a single parent can't afford that much for a blanket."

Ed Buday, district administrator for the AKtion Club and a Charlevoix Kiwanian, said this is not only a great opportunity to help the less fortunate, but is also a chance for AKtion Club members, who are working with a disability, to be out in the community.

"It gives the AKtion Club the opportunity to serve and be a part of the community," he said.

For more information about the blanket drive contact Brock or Tammy Thorp at 547-2979.

Preschool screening offered for Charlevoix children

There will be three year old Developmental Screening Clinics for all Emmet and Charlevoix County children who will be entering kindergarten in the fall of 2005.

The clinics are sponsored by the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District. The purpose of the clinics is to provide parents with information regarding normal child development, an opportunity to interact with parents of other three year old children, and to have your child informally screened to identify any potential learning difficulties which may arise during the school years.

This is a developmental screening and not for preschool enrollment. This is a free service with appointments made on a first come, first served basis.

The clinic dates are: Charlevoix County — Thursday, Oct. 9 at the Community Reformed Church, located at the corner of US-31 and Meech Street. Emmet County — Friday, Oct. 10 at the Patricia A. Taylor School, located at 1515 Cemetery Road.

If you are interested in attending either of the above clinics, please contact Shannon Quinn, (231) 439-6937, at the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District for an appointment or for further information. The clinics are free of charge.

Child's birth date must be between Dec. 1, 1999 and Dec. 1, 2000.

If you have a disability which requires special accommodation, please call in advance at (231) 439-6937.

Incorrect homestead claims have amnesty

People who have incorrectly claimed a homestead exemption on their taxes are being granted amnesty until Nov. 1.

According to state law, persons who own and occupy their home as their principal residence may claim an exemption from the 18 mills levied by local school districts for operating purposes.

Persons do not qualify for a Michigan homestead exemption if they claim a homestead or similar exemption in another state, file a Michigan income tax return as a non-resident, file an income tax return for another states as a resident or file a joint income tax return and claim a homestead exemption on two or more properties.

However, until Nov. 1, persons incorrectly claiming a homestead exemption in 2003 and prior years can have the penalty interest waived if they voluntarily come forward and rescind the homestead exemption for the years it was incorrectly claimed. At the expiration of the amnesty period, the penalty interest will be charged at the rate of 1.25 percent each month to the date the 18 mills would have appeared on the tax hill.

Also, on Dec. 31 and each year thereafter, the dates that property must be owned and occupied in order to claim a homestead exemption for the 18 mills has changed.

To qualify for a homestead exemption in 2004 and each year thereafter, the property must he owner occupied and declared as homestead by Dec. 31, each year.

In prior years, this dates was May 1 to qualify for the current tax year. The change in the date may affect persons who build new homes and purchased or transfer property.

Sheriff to host child safety program

George Lasater, Charlevoix County Sheriff, said the sheriff's office is continuing a commitment to child safety.

As part of this commitment, the office is organizing its annual Child Safety, Drug Abuse and Crime Prevention Program for the children of Charlevoix County.

Over 700 youngsters, ages 5 through 12, will receive educational child safety materials created and geared to each specific age level. This comprehensive program includes safety guidebooks and bike safety hooks that contain 24 activity pages designed by edacators to stimulate the child's awareness and independent thinking about the everyday safety and drug hazards he or she may encounter.

Various other safety hooklets, folders, posters and brochures are made available to encourage the prevention of needless suffering, painful chemical overdose, disfiguring injuries and needless death.

Bob Koch, of the National Child Safety Council, (NCSC) will be helping local officers in planning and delivering programs to the school children. Koch is the area safety coordinator of the council. The National Child Safety Council is a federal tax-exempt nonprofit organization under the Internal Revenue Service Code of 501-C-3 and all contributions are tax-deductible.

The sheriff's office is in the process of mailing letters that explain the entire program to the area business, industrial and professional leaders, asking for their financial support to help cover the cost of the materials used by the department. Anyone that is not contacted, and who would like to contribute, please mail your check made out to the council, to the sheriff's office.

Lasater stresses to prospective sponsors that this is the only program of this type that the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office will be conducting this year.

Should any other person solicit for support, especially by phone or in person, and does not have a letter from Lasater, please contact the sheriff's office immediately at 547-4465.

Hospital to host 'Dr. Humor' at high school

Dr. Stuart Robertshaw, known to many as Dr. Humor, will be in Charlevoix at 7 p.m. on Oct.23 at the Charlevoix High School auditorium.

Robertshaw will be sharing his wonderful sense of humor and, on the serious side, his concern that humor impaired persons are "seriously limited in their abilities to fight illness and disease."

"Fifteen percent of people in America today are humor impaired and another 15 percent are at risk of becoming humor impaired," said Dr. Stuart Robertshaw, professor emeritus of psychology and education at the University of Wisconsin-La Crosse and president of the National Association for the Humor Impaired.

Robertshaw said following mirthful laughter, there is a chemical stimulus that tells our immune system to become active, and to get prepared for combat with a potential virus, bacteria or foreign protein. In one study the positive chemical changes were evident as long as 36 hours following the viewing of a humorous video tape.

Following laughter our bodies undergo several physiological and chemical changes that have immediate positive effects on our well-being. Those changes include: improved immunity, reduced stress and increased cardiovascular activity.

We now know scientifically that it is important for overall health and wellness to make a conscious effort to increase daily the joy, laughter and fun in our lives — this is especially vital in situations dealing with life-threatening illnesses.

In 1990, the professor, who is also an attorney, organized the National Association for the Humor Impaired to draw attention to the plight of the humor impaired.

Robertshaw and the association have been featured in over one hundred newspapers and magazines throughout the country (as well as Canada, Australia, and Israel). Robertshaw currently serves as president and chief executive officer of the association that has over 7,000 members.

Robertshaw is being presented by the annual support committee of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation.

The title of his presentation is "The Healing Power of Humor." Cost is $5 per person and tickets may be purchased at Don's Market or Bridge Street Books in Charlevoix; the E. J. Shoppe or Busy Bridge in East Jordan and Mary's of Boyne or Cindi Malin's cool stuff in Boyne City.

Tickets are also available at the Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation, 14634 Park Avenue and at the Charlevoix Area Hospital Gift Shop. For additional information call 547-8502.

Braun completes another 100 holes

Steve Braun, Belvedere Club golf professional, had played 100 holes in a single day at least four or five times previously, so planning to repeat his fund-raising feat that benefits Charlevoix's Junior Golf program didn't seem to deserve a second thought.

Then, a couple of weeks prior to the event, he was hospitalized for three days with a serious infection. So the special day was postponed.

As the new date drew near and strength was returning, a home accident produced a badly sprained ankle.

Despite advice from friends and family, he refused to cancel and reschedule the event a second time.

At dawn on a misty, overcast mid-September day, wearing an awkward leg brace, he teed off with questions in the minds of those gathered for the event. Did the inactivity period reduce the strength to deliver 100 holes of golf? Would the leg brace eventually be too big an obstacle? Would a heavy rain come later in the day and wash out all his efforts? Would there be enough daylight hours?

In a remarkable display of perseverance and concentration Steve beat all the obstacles, scoring four of his 18 hole rounds in the mid-70s, posting an even 80 on another round and then finishing the last 10 holes in par form.

Barry Pierce, speaking for fellow volunteer cart drivers Rosemary Corradi, Jim McAlister, Bob Heath, Bob Hoffman, Sam Washburn, and Mary Jo McFalls, said, "It was an amazing feat; Steve would not back down and despite some physical handicaps, he proved where there's a will, there's a way."

Dean Davenport, who directs the Charlevoix Area Junior Golf program expressed his gratitude from Braun's efforts.

"I tried, along with several others, to talk Steve out of the event because of endangering his well-being. Obviously the competitive drive still burns within Steve. His love for golf and for getting youngsters involved in the sport runs deep. He has been an inspiration to our program, and besides volunteering his teaching expertise, raises the extra money that enables our program to be unique and among the top such programs in the nation," he said.

Contributions can still be sent for the program and should be addressed to the Belvedere Club, Belvedere Avenue, Charlevoix, MI 49720, Attention: Steve Braun.

Golf team looking good as it goes into championship

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The Charlevoix High School varsity golf team is gearing up for the conference championship today, following four strong matches in the last two weeks.

"The team looks forward to this championship format," coach Jim Glynn said. "We still struggle to get a consistent fourth score. If we can get that we can compete with anyone."

The Rayders will be battling it out for the conference at 1 p.m., Wednesday, today, at Antrim Dells Golf Course.

On Sept. 25, the varsity team faced Traverse City St. Francis and Elk Rapids in a non-conference match. The Rayders lost to St. Francis, 167 to 172, but beat Elk Rapids' score of 182.

Jordan Nystrom was a medalist for the team with a score of 39.

Other individual scores were: York Smith with 40, Ryan DeYoung with 45, Chris Bartling with 48, Chris Wyniawskyj with 49 and Adam Wager with 49.

On Sept. 25, Charlevoix faced eight teams in a Lake Michigan Conference match at Grayling. Charlevoix finished fourth, while Grayling won the match.

Nystrom had a score of 75, which put him second out of 48 golfers.

Other individual scores were: Smith with 88, Ryan DeYoung with 89, Wyniawskyj with 90, Kyle DeYoung with 97 and Adam Wager with 94.

On Sept. 19, Charlevoix took fourth place in the Gaylord Invitational. There were 12 teams that took part in the match.

Individual scores were: Nystrom with 86, Smith with 81, Ryan DeYoung with 99, Chris Wyniawskyj with 90 and Kyle DeYoung with 104.

On Sept. 16, Charlevoix took part in a four-way match at the Belvedere Golf Club. Charlevoix took second with a score of 163. Grayling won the match with 161.

Individual scores were: Nystrom with 42, Smith with 39, Ryan DeYoung with 40, Chris Wyniawskyj with 43, Kyle DeYoung with 42 and Adam Wager with 45.

Cross country teams compete in Gladwin meet

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Both the Charlevoix High School varsity cross country teams had strong showings Sept. 27 at the Gladwin Invitational.

The boys' team finished third out of nine teams, while the girls' team finished second out of nine teams. Beaverton took first in the boys' race and Ludington took first in the girls' race.

Girls' coach Mary Plude said, "We had a good outing, but not an outstanding overall team performance. We may have been a letdown from last weekend. I don't believe we could have beaten Ludington, but we should have made it a closer race."

Plude said the gap between her first and fifth runner really opened up in this race.

"We will need to work on that strongly this week. A close gap will be our strength this season," she said.

Individual medalists for the girls' varsity race were: Lindi Edgar in fourth with a time of 21 minutes, 13 seconds; Brenna Bergmann in tenth with a time of 22 minutes, 19 seconds; Theresa Martin in twelfth, with a time of 22 minutes, 37 seconds and Sonya Plude in fourteenth, with a time of 22 minutes, 51 seconds.

Individual medalists for the girls' junior varsity race were: Brittnay Lamb in second, with a time of 23 minutes, 48 seconds; Liz Madison in third, with a time of 24 minutes, 7 seconds; Mia Matchett in fourth, with a time of 24 minutes, 10 seconds; Justine Karnicki in fifth, with a time of 25 minutes, 42 seconds; Nicole Twining in seventh, with a time of 26 minutes, 27 seconds; Lisa Kuebler in eighth, with a time of 26 minutes, 32 seconds; and Annie Strawbridge in ninth, with a time of 26 minutes, 36 seconds.

Individual medalists for the boys' varsity race were: Scott Plude in sixth, with a time of 18 minutes, 11 seconds; Brandon Stevens in ninth, with a time of 18 minutes, 20 seconds; Jacob Wimmer in tenth, with a time of 18 minutes, 20 seconds.

Individual medalists for the boys' junior varsity race were: Nate Sotuyo in first, with a time of 19 minutes, 23 seconds; Oban Balink in third, with a time of 19 minutes, 35 seconds; Dan Buday in fourth, with a time of 19 minutes, 38 seconds; Kyle Kramer in sixth, with a time of 19 minutes, 51 seconds; David Klintworth in eighth, with a time of 20 minutes, 9 seconds and Chuck Mason in ninth, with a time of 20 minutes, 13 seconds.

Charlevoix High School Rayders soccer on a roll

Charlevoix's boys Rayder soccer team has continued its unstoppable winning season with two victories at home last week.

On Sept. 22 the Rayders manhandled East Jordan at Kipke Field, winning 10-2. Senior, Bryce Daly scored five goals for Charlevoix complemented by Iven Helm and Andrew Mailloux who scored two goals each and Ben Scheelk who tallied one.

On defense, senior goal keeper Jake Pace and freshman Nick Gotshall held East Jordan's offensive attack at bay.

Then, on Sept. 24 the Rayders showed their stuff on their home field once again defeating Forest Area 4-2.

Daly scored two for the Rayders and Scott Friske and Iven Helm each scored a goal. Pace held Forest Area to two goals with eight saves.

The Rayders faced Elk Rapids Sept. 29, the results of which were not in by press time and will travel to Boyne City Oct. 2. Thursday's game is scheduled to take place at 5 p.m.

Basketball team looks unstoppable

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

The Charlevoix Rayders continued their ascent up the Associated Press Class C rankings, moving to third this week, following wins over Harbor Springs, 55-47 and Ellsworth, 68-35.

"No matter what the rankings arc or what people may think, teams arcn't going to roll over for us," coach Jim Parrish said. "We have to treat every game and every practice like a district final."

The win over Harbor was especially sweet as the two teams have battled for conference supremacy for years, with the Rams winning the conference last season, but losing to the Rayders in the district finals.

Charlevoix had a nice cushion early, leading 20-9 at the end of the first quarter and 30-21 at the half.

Harbor Springs outscored the Rayders 13-5 in the third quarter to close within one, however, and early in the final period, they took the lead at 36-35.

Sarah Cross scored five straight points, however, to fight off the Ram threat. Harbor didn't go away, but Grace Farrell again came up big at the free throw line, hitting four straight down the stretch to seal the win.

"It was a nice conference win for us," Parrish said. "We get up to play certain games and Harbor is one of those games."

Farrell led Charlevoix with 20 points, nine rebounds and three steals. She was seven for 12 from the field and six for nine from the line.

Cross scored 10 points, grabbed three rebounds and three steals. Rachel Wyniawskyj added eight points. Alyssia McDonough had six points, five rebounds and five assists.

Kari Way had two points and six rebounds.

Against Ellsworth, the Rayders led early and often, rolling to a 39-15 halftime lead, en route to the win.

Farrell again paced the way with 18 points, nine rebounds and three steals. Way had nine points. Jamie Pettis, Wyniawskyj and Cross each scored eight in a balanced effort. McDonough added seven.

Cross pulled down eight rebounds. McDonough swiped four steals and had three boards. Pettis dished out four assists.

After traveling to Grayling on Tuesday, Sept. 30, Charlevoix (9-0 overall, 4-0 league) meets second place Traverse City St. Francis away in Lake Michigan Conference action on Thursday, Oct. 2.

Struggling Rayders hope to learn from loss

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

Charlevoix football suffered its second heartbreaking loss in the young season, falling to Kalkaska, 23-22 on a touchdown and extra point with just 1:06 left in the game.

"These guys haven't won that much in the past," coach Don Jess said. "So they are still learning the little aspects of what it takes to win. I'm encouraged by the fact that they were very upset with the loss. They realize that's another game we should have won."

Earlier this year, the Rayders (1-4 overall, 1-2 conference) lost to Benzie Central, 21-19 as a Charlevoix two-point conversion attempt came up just short.

The Rayders struck first, scoring on a 12-yard pass from Cody Crain to Ben Bergmann early in the second quarter. Kyle Kramer ran for the extra point and an 8-8 Charlevoix lead.

Kalkaska answered with a touchdown and two-point conversion of their own to tie the game, 8-8 at the half.

In the third quarter, the Rayders reclaimed the lead on a Crain to Jake Burns nine-yard scoring toss. Kramer again provided the two-point conversion to put Charlevoix ahead, 16-8.

The Rayders extended the lead to 22-8 in the fourth stanza on Crains third touchdown pass of the night, to Mitchell Klooster from seven yards out. The extra point conversion came up just short.

Kalkaska pulled the game out with two late scoring drives. In the final minutes, Charlevoix made it exciting, moving into scoring range on Crains passing and some fine running after the catch, but a key penalty took the Rayders out of field goal range.

Crain was 23 for 34 for 225 yards passing and the three touchdowns. He also was the leading rusher with 49 yards.

Bergmann caught 12 passes for 121 yards. Taylor Fisher had 10 receptions for 69 yards.

"It really wasn't our game plan (to pass that much). But we had to do what the defense gave us, especially with Josh Carter out with an injury," Jess said.

"Cody had a nice game. He understands the offense finally. When a play is called, he knows what his read is. We also got a lot of help with the receivers making some nice plays after they caught the ball and getting yards after the catch."

Kramer stepped in for his first time as running back on the varsity and ran for 33 yards on 13 carries.

On the defensive side of the ball, Will Kautz had 13 tackles, Jeff Golovich 12, Jamen Waha 10 and Klooster and Mark Baldwin, nine apiece.

"I thought the defense played well," Jess said. "Baldwin, Kautz and Golovich had good games. So did Fisher, as always."

The Rayders host Harbor Springs (0-5 overall, 0-3 league) this Friday for homecoming.

"They are coming off an excellent game against East Jordan (14-13 loss)," Jess said. "They are playing tough and haven't given up even though they haven't won yet. This game will probably come down to whether we can stop their big running back, number two."

> "These guys haven't won that much in the past. So, they are still learning the little aspects of what it takes to win. I'm encouraged by the fact that they were very upset with the loss. They realize that's another game we should have won."

Ways want to put mobile homes in Eveline

WAYS

Way property in the R-4 district could accommodate a 1,200 unit manufactured home community.

The county planning commission then voted to recommend against the rezone as for the same reason. The change would allow eight units per acre which is more high density than the 3-6 units per acre the master plan allows for in that area.

However, county planner Larry Sullivan issued a six page letter as to why he feels it would be appropriate to rezone 77 acres that make up the north half of the property, but not the 78 acre south half.

He believes the property on the north would better support a number of homes because of its close proximity to M-66 and that by developing the property there, the township would be limiting sprawl.

The township board's decision to deny the request for rezoning the whole piece spurred this lawsuit.

Co-council for the Ways, Charlevoix attorney Allen Telgenhof, said the crux of the issue is that while the zoning ordinance does provide for R-3 and R-4 zoning district, neither are provided for on the zoning map.

He said the township's future land use map recommends high density development be limited to the Advance and Ironton areas and the Way property is just outside of Ironton.

The Ways feel the decision the board made was based on exclusionary zoning which violates the Township Rural Zoning Act, the Mobile Home Commission Act and their constitutional rights.

Their lawsuit states, "The township zoning ordinance excludes the development of manufactured home communities from the township and from the Way property. The township's denial of the Ways' application for rezoning excludes the development of manufactured home communities from the township and the property. The township's exclusionary zoning has caused the Ways to suffer loss and damage and incur irreparable injury."

The Ways are asking Charlevoix County 33rd Circuit Court Judge Richard Pajtas to decree the township's zoning ordinance invalid and illegal and to recognize the township's denial of the rezoning request as exclusionary and to issue a permanent injunction against the township, restraining it from interfering with their proposed use of the property as a manufactured home community.

"It's something the township acknowledges and everyone acknowledges — there's a need for lower cost housing. I think the site they have is a good site for it," Telgenhof said. "It's time to look at the greater good. We need reasonably priced housing. People need to look at the bigger picture."

In township attorney Kevin Elsenheimer's response to the Ways' claims he states, "The township denies these allegations...."

Elsenheimer requests that Pajtas dismiss the Way complaint and award the township its costs and attorney fees.

Township supervisor Dan Skreczkoski, said, "We are going to work with our attorneys and hopefully we'll get to a point where we can settle this out of court."

At a Sept. 8 scheduling conference that was conducted in this matter, a final pre-trial/settlement conference was scheduled for Feb. 9, 2004. If the case is not settled by then, a trial date will be set.

City To Wage War On All Ragweed

Council Votes Funds, Turns Task Over to JCC; City Has Lowest Pollen Count in State

With the lowest pollen count of any place in the northern part of the Lower Peninsula, Charlevoix is out to eradicate ragweed, the bane of fever victims.

Wednesday and Thursday crews of school students, under the supervision of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, systematically are covering block after block of the city, pulling up the pollen-spreading weed.

Each student is supplied with a gunny sack labeled with his name. On Thursday afternoon at the end of the drive, all the sacks of ragweed will be placed on the band platform at city park then hauled to the baseball diamond and burned. This burning will be Thursday night at 8 when the school band will lead a procession to the ball field for a football pep meeting and the weed blaze.

The city council Monday night initiated the movement to get rid of what ragweed there is in town. Despite the fact that health office reports show Charlevoix has the best record in lower Michigan in a bad ragweed year, the councilmen decided there is still too much of the sneeze weed.

To finance the cleanup campaign, they voted $100 and through the Board of Commerce asked the JCC to undertake the actual job of handling the drive. Tuesday night the JCC directors met and mapped out the campaign.

The prizes will be awarded on the basis of weight and only ragweed gathered under the supervision of a JCC member will be counted.

All prizes will be in trade certificates, good at any store in Charlevoix and redeemable at either bank. First prize will be $15. There will be two of $10, three of $5 and 50 of $1 each.

The certificates will be presented to the winners Friday between halves at the Mancelona football game here.

ROE APPEALS TO FOOTBALL FANS

Charlevoixans Should Show Their Interest In a Practical Way — Buy Tickets

Cleveland Roe, business manager of the Charlevoix High School Athletic Association, has issued the following appeal through the columns of the city's newspapers. We believe that this argument in favor of general public support of the football team in their work this fall are reasonable and right and would add our moral influence, such as it is, to inducing the people of Charlevoix to "get out and get under" their school's team in a practical way and help to make it a winner.

Mr. Roe's remarks are as follows: "We have 22 men out for football this fall. Each one is devoting his valuable time and energy, three hours each evening, except Saturday and Sunday, in a sincere attempt to make it possible for Charlevoix to have a successful football squad this season.

Each one of these men have been equipped with headgear, shoulder pads, socks, pants and sweaters by the school. M.F.H. Austin and C.E. Altenburg are utilizing their time and energy each night that school is in session, honestly and earnestly endeavoring to turn out for Charlevoix a creditable team.

The athletic manager has secured the sale of 135 football season tickets to the student body in high school and has also sold to each teacher of the faculty an adult ticket for $1.25 each. The directors of the athletic association have arranged a very satisfactory football schedule, which required a great deal of time and careful planning. The schedule, is not complete, as yet but there will be a completed schedule in the next issue of this paper.

Mr. Blakeslee is busy at this time, organizing a yelling team and gleaning material for our pep meetings. Everything looks as it never has before. We are doing all we can do in the very best way we know how. We cannot run our team alone. We want the public to know that we are depending upon it to be loyal to its school.

If our boys and girls see fit to buy a football ticket, which will show you five good games, if Mr. Sutin and Mr. Altenburg are willing to render their very best coaching, both before dark on the football field and in the classroom after supper, with no extra pay, along with other car services donated, if we plan a careful and satisfactory schedule and uphold clean sport and give everyone a chance and give them our advice and care, if we provide vocal music and pep at the game and competent officials, why should the merchants, professional men, laborers, etc. refuse to buy one of our adult season tickets for $1.25? We are coming around to sell you one and, if you do not, down in your heart, think that our games and the effort and sacrifice that make them possible aren't worth $.25 per game, we don't want you to buy a ticket.

We have made a thorough canvass in our school and we are going to start in on the townspeople during the latter part of the week. Think the matter over. We appreciate all the help you can give us. If you are unable to purchase a season ticket, maybe you can tell us where we can make a sale.

Anyone wishing a season ticket will be able to purchase one at any drugstore in town."

How many will fight against Wal-Mart plans?

ny was considering Charlevoix as a location for a new supercenter because customer reports at its Petoskey store show several Charlevoix people have been shopping there.

"That is just stupid," Hoffman said.

Hoffman pointed out Danos was quoted in last week's article as saying even Wal-Mart does not know what kind of business it can expect in Charlevoix during the winter months.

Hoffman said other issues of concern are the impacts this development will have on Stover Creek, the public safety on Marion Center Road due to traffic issues and the number of parking spaces Wal-Mart wants to build with this development — over 700.

And Hoffman is not alone with his concerns. He said several people have contacted him or stopped him on the street asking what they can do to stop Wal-Mart.

One of those is Charlevoix resident Dick Joseph who said, "I think it will be one of the worst things to ever happen to Charlevoix, if a Wal-Mart comes."

Joseph added there are many ways to stop Wal-Mart.

"Nothing has been approved. It is not easy to do and it will take time and work," he said of fighting Wal-Mart. "I know there are ways. I know you can put a man on the moon and bring them back and you can stop a Wal-Mart."

Joseph also pointed out a Wal-Mart could cause traffic safety issues on Marion Center Road. He said when the school was being built out on Marion Center Road, traffic safety was one of the concerns brought up.

Another Charlevoix resident to come out against the Wal-Mart is the owner of the local ACE Hardware store Mark Greyerbiehl.

"I think the negatives far outweigh the positives," he said about a Wal-Mart coming to Charlevoix. "I am saying that from my belief in the community. That is not Mark's pocketbook talking."

Wal-Mart officials, including Danos, met with the Charlevoix Township Planning Commission on Sept. 17 to present a conceptual site plan for a supercenter that would be built on US-31 South near Marion Center and Stover roads.

The conceptual plan shows a Wal-Mart supercenter that is perpendicular to US-31.

It would have 40,000 square feet of grocery space on the left side of the store and over 100,000 square feet of retail space on the right side. The store would be a total of 157,400 square feet.

The supercenter will have two main entrances, not including a truck entrance on US-31. One entrance will be on US-31 and the other will be on Marion Center Road. After presenting the conceptual plan Danos told the commissioners the company would like to start construction "next year, as soon as it gets warm enough, and be open in 2005."

Applefest this weekend

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

This weekend in Charlevoix, Apple Festival will transform East Park into a harvest farm market and craft fair.

Thousands of area residents and visitors will filter into town to capture the flavor and character of autumn in northern Michigan, as they sip golden apple cider and bite into 30 varieties of crunchy apples.

"I think it's going to be a fantastic festival. We've had lots and lots of phone calls from people checking dates," Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce President, Jacqueline Merta, said.

This year's event will take place from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., Oct. 10 and 11 and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Oct. 12.

This year will mark the festival's twenty-fourth anniversary. The first festival took place in 1979 and was hosted by its current sponsor, the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce.

Its aim is to familiarize residents and visitors with the many commodities provided by thriving area orchards and farms.

Northern Michigan is known for its crop production and three area orchards, King's Orchard of Central Lake, Friske Orchards of Charlevoix and Cherryview Orchards of Kewadin. They will be showing off this year's crunchy, sweet products in bright reds, yellows and greens.

Group forms to fight Wal-Mart

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Over 40 people attended a citizens meeting on Wal-Mart Wednesday night, that ended with the creation of a group designed to fight the mega-retailer's plans on coming to Charlevoix.

The group formed because a vast majority of those in attendance were against Wal-Mart's plans to build a supercenter on US-31 South, near Marion Center and Stover roads. A steering committee that will set the foundation for an organization whose object is to fight the building of a Wal-Mart in Charlevoix was created at the Wednesday meeting.

"I think there is a lot of public support for not seeing a Wal-Mart in Charlevoix," said Bob Hoffman, Charlevoix resident and local business owner who ran the meeting. "There were a lot of informed people (there) to offer input to help us achieve that goal."

The next public meeting for the group will be at 7 p.m., Wednesday, Oct. 15, at the Edgewater Conference Room in the Edgewater Hotel on Michigan Avenue.

However, Wal-Mart does not seem to be worried about the creation of a group that wants to keep it out of Charlevoix.

Chris Danos, of Wal-Mart, said, "We think Charlevoix is a great opportunity for Wal-Mart. We are going to push forward."

Many in attendance listed several

Robys submit new plan for Appletree

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Half of the Appletree building may now have found its home.

Last weekend, on Oct. 4, residents living near Steven and Annemarie Robys' home and property off Lewis and Auld streets, met and discussed the couple's desire to relocate the historic building from its present location at 224 Bridge Street to 101 Auld Street.

The couple had been planning since August to save the historic building which used to be the real estate office of Charlevoix's famed architect, the late Earl Young, from demolition as a new three story commercial and residential development is planned for its space.

But the lot they were proposing for relocation would be a tight fit for the building and neighbors said it would encroach on their property and the nearby alley.

When they met again last week-

Council candidates discuss conference center, Wal-Mart

This story is the first in a four-part series leading up to the Nov. 4 election. The series will focus on city council candidates' opinions concerning major issues facing Charlevoix.

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Candidates for Charlevoix's City Council have opposing viewpoints on two major economic issues — a city-funded conference center and Wal-Mart moving to town.

The possibility of a city-funded conference center being located within Charlevoix's city limits is currently being further researched by the city staff and members of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors and the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau.

The idea behind the center is to generate commerce during Charlevoix's slower economic months.

First ward candidates, Dave Novotny and Bob Timms, offered polar opposite perspectives on the issue.

Timms said that in lieu of recent renovations and expansions at the Castle Farms and meeting spaces available at other locations, the city doesn't need to be in the conference business and that if representatives of the city were to move ahead with it, it would be a flop.

"From what I've heard so far, I don't think that's viable at all. I'm afraid it would probably be a money pit," he said.

Timms said any plans for the city to fund such an endeavor would not have his support.

"I don't think the city taxpayers should have to foot the bill for something like that. If downtown businesses want to do it, that's their prerogative," he said.

Novotny expressed the polar opposite opinion.

He feels a city-funded conference center is just what the doctor ordered to boost Charlevoix's off-season economy.

He feels the conference center should be built at the Pine River Lane location, adjacent to the Weathervane Restaurant, bordering the Pine River Channel. He said that way it would be close to hotels and restaurants and would have plenty of room for parking.

Unlike Timms, Novotny doesn't see a city conference center as a competitor for other meeting spaces like the Castle or the Knights of Columbus.

"The use is going to be different," he said.

Novotny added that it may even benefit the Castle, bringing more people to town who could visit it as a tourist attraction.

During the initial phases of research for the conference center, Charles Skelton, president of Hospitality Advisors Consulting, highlighted the center's probable uses as including conventions and social events like weddings.

Owners of the Castle Farms, Linda and Richard Mueller, have pinpointed these same events as their major sources of revenue.

While Timms closes the city's checkbook to such a project, Novotny believes Charlevoix's Downtown Development Authority (DDA), which also raises its revenue from city taxes, as the perfect source of funds.

"The DDA does improvements in the downtown which in turn brings more people into the Courier wins three state press awards

The Charlevoix Courier has once again been awarded for its quality newspaper reporting.

. Courier editor Jeremy McBain and Courier staff writer Julie Witthoeft were honored with three awards last week by the Michigan Press Association for its annual "Better Newspaper Contest."

The Courier competed with several other weekly newspapers with circulation under 5,000.

Courier publisher Ken Winter said, "I am real happy for the staff. I know they work real hard putting out a newspaper and I am glad Charlevoix is being recognized in a state-wide contest."

McBain added, "This shows that the staff of the Courier continues to be dedicated to providing the community with quality journalism. It is a hometown newspaper that Charlevoix can be proud of."

McBain was awarded second place in the spot news category for weekly newspapers with his story from fall 2002 about a missing airplane.

Witthoeft was awarded third place in the news story category for weekly newspapers for her story last year on the closing of the Hoskin's Manufacturing plant on M-66 and an investigation into possible pollution at the site.

The Courier staff also took third place for the design category for weekly newspapers in its circulation size.

The judges said the Courier has a "nice masthead, good section header designs with a clean layout."

The judges added, the Courier has a good use of photos and is a "smart looking paper."

Castle continues to serve Charlevoix

EDITORIAL

The future of Castle Farms is getting brighter by the day.

Recently, Linda and Richard Mueller, Jr., owners of the Castle, announced plans to invest about $3 million more into the facility for some planned expansions.

This month crews started ripping out the floor of the old cattle barn, the large building facing M-66 that used to have a concert stage attached to it. The Muellers said the floor and walls will be complete by May 2004 and the roofing will be done by September 2004. The cattle barn will be fully restored by May 2005.

When it is completed, the Castle will have 15,000 square feet of enclosed space that will house up to 900 people year-round.

When asked about why he was putting in this expansion, Richard brought up that the city was discussing the creation of a convention center downtown.

"I believe there is (a demand). Why would the city talk about a convention center if there wasn't some type of demand?" he said.

Well, it looks like the Muellers will be meeting that demand. This is all the more reason for the city to back off its big ideas of building its own convention center that will compete with private businesses.

In addition to this expansion, the Muellers are adding items for the community to enjoy.

They are setting up a miniature golf course, lawn garden bowling courts, garden croquet, six lawn badminton courts, large chess boards, five horseshoe courts, four tetherball courts, eight covered shuffleboard courts, a playground and a picnic area. One fee covers all of this.

This family area will be open from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m., Sundays through Fridays, staring Memorial Day and lasting until Labor Day.

The Castle certainly has changed in the last few years from a run-down structure to a beautiful symbol of Charlevoix. We wish the Muellers the best of luck with this endeavor and congratulate them for their successes so far.

Grand opening of art center a wonderful event

Edith Gilbert

'Behind the news'

The grand opening celebration of the newly renovated Crooked Tree Arts Center took place last weekend and as my mother used to say "everyone who was anyone was there!"

Beautiful flower arrangements and elegant food stations welcomed the visitors. The two main floor galleries were crowded with admirers of two outstanding exhibits, "Borrowed Treasures" and "Sisters of the Great Lakes."

Sooner or later people took the elevator to the first floor to view the spacious classrooms, dance studio and enlarged ceramic center on the lower lever and then up to the second floor to check out the ample office space for the staff.

Highlights in the "Borrowed Treasures" exhibition are works by Mary Cassatt, Andy Warhol, Paul Cesanne and August Rodin. Please don't miss the amusing painting by Norman Rockwell titled "Sargent vs. Picasso." Tongue in cheek, on each side of this Rockwell painting they have placed an original Sargent and an original Picasso!

I can't rave enough about the contemporary work by American Indian Women titled "Sisters of the Great Lakes" on loan from Michigan State University Museum. The artists — many of whom were educated in college or professional art schools — have combined natural materials such as porcupine quills, furs, sweetgrass, birchbark, shells, feathers and clay and using new techniques have created beautiful original works of contemporary art! You will see exquisite floral beadwork, masks, quilts, stained glass, sculpture, ceramics and jewelry using traditional geometric designs including pine trees, loons, water, turtles and strawberries.

For example, Sandy Dyer, potter, is a member of the Little Traverse Bay Bands of Odawa. She was awarded a Michigan Traditional Arts Apprenticeship under the guidance of the master Indian potter Frank Ettawageshik in 1993. Today she takes her young son into the woods to find the right clay for her pots.

"It's like going back in time," she says.

One of the finest quillworkers in North America is Yvonne Walker-Keshick who is also a member of our Little Traverse Bay Bands of Odawa. At the beginning of the trout season, she is inspired to design quill boxes with fish and after a severe thunderstorm she features lightning bolts. Ask her how to make a quill box? First you catch a porcupine!

Influenced by the work of Yvonne in her youth, Lois Beardlee is a graduate of Oberlin College with a master's degree from the University of New Mexico. Her oil pastel on paper, "Keepers of the Water" is a beautiful contemporary painting of birds, fish and turtles. Children will love it!

Speaking of children, the docent tours that will be busing our area school children to the Crooked Tree Arts Center this coming year are practically sold out, and if past experience holds, these youngsters will drag their parents to see both exhibits.

To quote the Executive Director Dale Hull, "The total monetary value of the exhibition is staggering. What is also staggering is that every piece is on loan to us at absolutely no cost, which is why we can share these extraordinary works of art with you in this way."

To which I add, do yourself a favor and go! You will be glad you did.

Wal-Mart needed

Editor:

I am writing in response to the recent write up on Wal-Mart coming to the Charlevoix area. Why would anyone not welcome it here?

It will bring more jobs to the area year-round. We need more affordable things here for the average person, not for the summer tourists. This town caters only to the summer tourists. The businesses downtown are simply too expensive to shop at.

I live downtown and do not shop here at all. I go to Petoskey. I often wonder why I moved from Petoskey to Charlevoix. I can tell you, it is more expensive here. I am speaking for quite a few people who would welcome a super Wal-Mart here. Do you realize that food is half of the cost at Wal-Mart versus Glen's and Oleson's food stores?

So you might want to ask yourself, "Why would you not want to save money living here?" The people here that are complaining about it I bet shop at Wal-Mart in Petoskey.

It also made reference in the paper about Stover Creek. Well, I am sure those people are using that as an excuse to not put a Wal-Mart in here. Tell me, why is everyone so scared or worried about this? This could be a good thing. This town is always want-

Another thing is that, this town is not kid friendly, why is that? What is here for kids to occupy their time?

Please note, I am expressing my views and opinions on Charlevoix the beautiful.

For a Wal-Mart

Editor:

Well what's new? Some anti-competition businesspeople and local elites have announced their intention to fight Wal-Mart. Apparently, they care little about the lower and fixed income people who would benefit most from a larger selection of merchandise at lower prices.

And what of those who cannot drive to Petoskey and still others who desperately need the jobs that Wal-Mart will bring to our area? Also, wouldn't it be grand if Harbor Industries had to call their laid off employees back to work because they got orders to make display cases for Wal-Mart?

Yes, the store could be a good thing for struggling working families. Ah, but this is Charlevoix. If you can't afford boutique clothing prices and condo level rental costs, move on.

Whether this area can support the planned super store is a question for Wal-Mart executives who have-no doubt-examined exhaustive market research data.

Furthermore, the land they will build on is already zoned commercial. I for one, will welcome Wal-Mart where I know I will find what I need at rock-bottom prices. I am tired of wasting time going to Kmart only to find one article out of every three that I'm searching for and then being frustrated by long delays in attempting to check out. Besides, I'm already calculating how much gas money I'll save each month on Petoskey Wal-Mart trips.

If they build it, I will shop!

Wal-Mart welcome

Editor:

Charlevoix needs Wal-Mart. Charlevoix needs retail competition. When one can drive to Petoskey to shop, save money even with northern Michigan's manipulated gas prices, there's something wrong with Charlevoix. We once had Oleson's where local people work with local prices, now all we have is "Glen's Downtown" with ridiculous prices.

As for the bleeding hearts for Stover Creek, it has long been despoiled all the way to the lake. There was a beautiful piece of land which encompassed a fine part of Stover Creek, offered to the city for park conservation. The city fathers let it go in favor of more boat docks, the use of which only puts more stress on Charlevoix traffic and the common citizen.

As to the added traffic to Marion Center Road, if the bleeding hearts would have had an ounce of sense earlier. Sturock's Empire wouldn't have been where it is.

Charlevoix needs Wal-Mart!

Wal-Mart not needed

Editor:

I agree with Jeanne Blumberg's comments in her letter in the Oct. 1, Charlevoix Courier. Apparently Wal-Mart has not done their homework on "year-round business" in Charlevoix. Many of our shops are closed and staff is cut back in the balance of the stores that remain open.

I, for one, am against "big business" taking over small independent business of which there are many in Charlevoix. We already have a large vacant building in the Kmart shopping center which has been vacant more than occupied, for about 10 years.

The congestion at Marion Center Road and US-31 would increase at an alarming rate with the airport Harbor Industries and the already M-66 and US-31 intersection.

Would the Wal-Mart addition add to the beauty of Charlevoix? I think not.

Solution for Appletree

Editor:

There is a solution for saving the Earl Young real estate office, it just has not yet been discovered.

It is unfortunate that the Robys' plan did not work out, but it is often said that "If something doesn't work out, there is probably a good reason for it."

Consider that this historical structure be owned by the city of Charlevoix and its residents. Historical photographs of the chamber of commerce building reveal that their office was once situated at the front center of East Park. Now consider the cramped quarters of the current chamber of commerce office. If not this idea, than maybe yours?

To save this structure is a worthy undertaking for the beautiful city of Charlevoix, its residents, and visitors.

Thank you

Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the Charlevoix group who organized the "Fall In" Benefit Golf Tournament at the Belvedere Golf Course on Saturday, Sept. 20.

The $3,400 you raised to benefit the Beaver Island Sports Boosters is hugely appreciated and will allow the school district to continue its modest sports program (co-ed soccer, basketball and volleyball) without high fees for the students to participate. The generosity of the group and the spirit of camaraderie between the Charlevoix and Beaver Island communities is greatly appreciated.

Thanks again to all who organized, sponsored and participated in the event.

Free smoke detectors offered

In celebration of National Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 6-12, the Northwest Michigan Safe Kids Chapter is offering free smoke detectors through local fire departments in Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego Counties.

"We've received tremendous support from fire departments," said Bert Notestine, who coordinates Safe Kids for the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency. "In addition to distributing the smoke detectors, local fire fighters will install them to assure they are located in the best place in the home."

This year's Fire Prevention Week campaign, "When Fire Strikes: Get Out! Stay Out!" teaches two simple, but life saving lessons: Install smoke alarms (and test them regularly) and develop and practice home fire drills.

The Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency is the local health department serving Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego Counties.

Its staff is dedicated to preventing disease and injury and promoting healthy communities. For more additional information about National Fire Prevention Week or smoke detectors, contact Notestine at (231) 347-5022 or visit www.nfpa.org.

NORTHERN LIGHTS CELEBRATION IS OCTOBER 18

This 8th annual popular community event consists of a sit-down dinner, music and dancing, a live and silent auction, the ladies' corner, men's corner, and key club raffles. The goal of this year's celebration is to raise $40,000 net profit to benefit children, those currently attending St. Mary School and future students. It is all happening at St. Mary's Parish Center from 6pm-midnight. Call 547-9441 for more information.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS SPORTSMAN'S DINNER & GUN RAFFLE

This exciting event is on October 29, 2003. Guest speaker for the evening is Dan Boss of TV 9 & 10 Hook & Hunting. Entertainment "music" provided by Bill Stevens and Friends of Charlevoix. Dave Phillips of Charlevoix is catering dinner. Tickets are available at Harbor Barber. Sponsors are Ace Hardware and Small Engines Unlimited.

CHAMBER RAFFLE
A BIG SUCCESS

There were lots of guests, great food and great music to top off our annual car raffle fund-raiser party at Belvedere Club. The happy winner of the Ford Mustang is Linda Farr, ticket #188 from Petoskey. Other winners are: $500, ticket #376, Bananski/Postlethwaite from Boyne City; $250, ticket #39, Carol Huebotter from Charlevoix and $250, ticket #266, Jim Pepin from Escanaba. A big "thank you" to the following sponsors: Belvedere Club, Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan, and Northern Preferred Title Co.

BEST WISHES TO JEANNINE WALLACE

The Chamber of Commerce wishes Jeannine Wallace the very best as she takes a new path in her life. Even though she has sold her business, Shop of the Gulls, which she has owned and operated for the past 39½ years, she is continuing her professional career as a consultant. She is a much-appreciated member and friend of the Chamber of Commerce. Jeannine always cares about what is best for the Charlevoix community. She has contributed her time to serve on the Chamber Board of Directors and the Downtown Development Authority to benefit our community. Congratulations to the new owner, Patricia Blanchard. We wish her much success in her new ownership of Shop of the Gulls.

BILL OLSTROM RETIRES

Harbor Industries will be losing Bill Olstrom to retirement. He celebrated this exciting occasion with his friends, co-workers and retirees on his last day of work, Thursday, October 2. The Chamber of Commerce wishes Bill all the best in his retirement. He was with Harbor Industries for 39 years and will be greatly missed in his position. Bill played an instrumental part in the expansion of Harbor Industries, which began in 2000 and was completed in 2002. Bill plans on remaining active in his many community activities. The Charlevoix Chamber greatly appreciates Bill's service on our Industrial Development Committee. Thanks Bill!

VOLUNTEERS DESERVE A BIG "THANK YOU"

It goes without saying that volunteers are extremely important in so many ways in our beautiful community. The Chamber has a big appreciation for one of our volunteers. Judy Corley has been a dedicated volunteer for the Chamber for many years and never misses an opportunity to help in any way she can. Judy and her husband, Jerry, are always present at our Business After Hours, helping at the door, special set ups or anything that needs to be done. We can't say "thank you" enough to them. They have a great way of putting it "we've lived in our community for a long time and now it's time to give back to the community." Again, thank you Judy and Jerry!

Area students join Air Force Auxiliary

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Area students are being offered the opportunity to spread their wings.

Charlevoix's Municipal Airport is hosting a civil air patrol leadership training course coordinated through the United States Air Force Auxiliary.

"What appealed to me was this offers something to our youth that will give them discipline with a focus on learning, ethics and physical fitness. And it's a fun program if they have any interest in aviation," airport manager Karyn Brooks said.

She was approached this summer by a captain in the program, Charlevoix resident Gerald White.

White said he thought Charlevoix would be an ideal site for this cadet program because it is an active airport and because the next closest facility offering the program is in Gaylord.

White helped start a cadet program in Florida and said he has since seen its benefits first hand.

"It gives them confidence in their abilities and helps develop their abilities," he said.

Students progress through a 17-step program with aviation and aerospace activities. Exercises they partake in include survival training, search and rescue, leadership training, radio communications, model rocketry, flight training, disaster relief, public speaking, first aid and CPR, photography, astronomy and more.

White said the cadet program has been around for nearly 60 years and currently includes about 20,000 cadets.

He added that membership in the program opens doors for students and that, in his experience, cadets who graduate from the program often earn college scholarships or enter the Air Force at a higher pay than if entering at entry level.

Brooks said, "It's a really positive outlet for our young people that I think we need more of. And it has a specific focus that may bring us forth some highly skilled individuals in the future."

The course is expected to move ahead with its first meeting on Oct. 22 at the airport. The program will then run weekly in 2-and-a-half hour blocks after that.

Classes are open to male and female students ages 12 to 18 and will be taught by Paul Welke, Keith Teague and Jim Slough, pilots with Island Airways, who are volunteering their time.

The majority of the cost which includes books and uniforms is covered by the Air Force, but cadets are expected to pay a $16 fee.

Brooks said the airport has already received a number of calls and the opportunity has caught the interest of local students and of those from as far away as Levering, Harbor Springs, Petoskey and East Jordan.

For more information call the airport at (231) 547-2141 or pick up a brochure and application at the airport located at 111 Airport Drive in Charlevoix.

BUSINESS

Guthrie uses his video talent for new endeavor

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix resident Stephen Guthrie can help make your company's training videos and presentations more lively and informative.

Guthrie does this through his new company Video Productions by Stephen Guthrie, Inc., which he has been running on the side of his consulting business for several years now. However, Guthrie has decided to expand his business to more presentation services and less consulting.

Guthrie, who came to Charlevoix in the early 1980s as a nuclear inspector at Big Rock, has been a consultant for several years which required him to be out of town. As a consultant, Guthrie started using various types of video production and presentation skills for his business clients.

Slowly, he was incorporating more and more of these techniques into his business and was learning how to make documentaries, web sites, taking photographs, writing business communications and making advertising copy and desktop publishing.

Then, after his daughter Jenna arrived, Guthrie decided it was time to stop traveling and start using some of the other skills he has locally.

Video Productions by Stephen Guthrie offers clients a host of presentation products. In addition to those listed above, Guthrie can do industrial videos, training videos and event videos; he can transfer old photographs to digital video, he can write technical documents and make reports and Power Point presentations, among many others.

Using his services, clients can document an event or an occasion, such as a fiftieth wedding anniversary or the start of a major construction project. They can craft important messages to employees, provide further training for workers and create web or television advertising.

Guthrie will be further expanding his business in the future to include grant writing.

To perform all these services, Guthrie uses digital and state-of-the-art video equipment, professional quality digital cameras, portable studio lighting and backdrops and various photo and office software.

Some recent work by Guthrie includes the documentary of the spend fuel storage project at Big Rock Point, a video tour of a high-end home for sale and an instructional and promotional video for use by a cosmetics sales executive.

Guthrie can be contacted by calling (231) 547-4681 or e-mail sguthrie@gtlakes.com.

I can do that.
Just Ask!

I can do that!
I can do that!
I can do that!

It's a pretty bold statement, considering we don't even know the question yet. Northwestern Bank is locally owned and each office is locally staffed and managed. Decisions are made right here by people with the answers, who are empowered to do what needs to be done. The person you ask is the person who'll make sure it happens.

You'll never get answers like, "That's not my department." Or, "You'll have to call this 800 number." When you ask anyone at Northwestern Bank, big things happen right away.

If your bank "can't do that," maybe it's time you found one that can.

Northern Lights to be Oct. 18 at St. Mary

St. Mary School is proud to announce the 8th Annual Northern Lights Dinner Dance Auction Celebration.

This year's event will be from 6 p.m. to midnight Saturday, Oct. 18. The Celebration will be at St. Mary School and Family Center, located at 1005 Bridge Street. It will have a dinner, live auction and dancing.

Featured items will include "the Children's Art Gallery," a collection of unique artwork by St. Mary students and many Silent and Live Auction items.

In conjunction with dinner, auctions and dancing, St. Mary's is sponsoring a variety of raffles. The "Key Club" will be a package for Mackinac Island and the Grand Hotel.

The "Women's Corner" features Amtrak rail passes courtesy of Passageways Travel for four to the heart of Chicago. Deluxe accommodations at the Essex Inn on Michigan Avenue, tickets to the Museum of Science and Industry, a gourmet picnic basket from Backwoods Deli and gift bags.

The "Men's Corner" will feature a Fuji Finepix Digital Camera package. Also included is a Hewlett Packard. Put this fine package to use with a half-day of fishing from Ward Brothers and you will be the envy of all your pals.

There will also be a "cash raffle" and a "scholarship raffle." Tickets for the men's and women's corners are now on sale from the office. Contact the school for more information at 547-9441.

The Northern Lights Celebration is the largest fund-raising event for the school. Auction expenses are kept at a minimum with all the proceeds going directly to the school operations.

Tickets are $55 per person for the evening. Tickets for auction and dancing are $30 per person. Call 547-9441 to make your reservation.

Preview of auction items will be Friday, Oct. 17. Family hour will be from 5 to 6 p.m. and Adults Only from 6:30 to 8 p.m. Admission is free.

This is open to the public and bids will be accepted at this time on auction items. Raffle tickets will be available also. Sealed bids will be accepted on live auction items.

Sumo surprise

Charlevoix High School students Keith Warner, a senior, and Tyler Lalley, a junior, decided to have a little fun Friday and dress up like sumo wrestlers. The duo walked around downtown Charlevoix challenging bystanders to matches all for the fun of it. (Photo by Jeremy McBain)

Grooters retires as pastor of Reformed Church

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Larry Grooters, the senior pastor at Charlevoix's Community Reformed Church didn't sleep a wink the night of Sept. 28.

That morning he had delivered his last sermon to a packed auditorium at Charlevoix High School before retiring.

"That was the best moment of my life. The whole event was a wonderful gift of appreciation and I'll never forget it," he said of the farewell service.

As he laid in bed later that night, he remembered the auditorium, filled with people and a spirit of love and affection. He remembered the parishioners and church staff members who had gathered a list of names of those he had baptized and married during his 26 years with the church.

Larry said he watched that morning as hundreds of names scrolled down the projection screen, remembering the moments he shared with generations of families.

As the service closed, he said the audience broke into a spirited rendition of his childhood favorite Roy Rogers' tune "Happy Trails." As the song ended, the stage curtain lifted and there sat a shiny new silver car, a token of the congregation's appreciation for his dedication to the church and to God.

Larry said he was shocked.

While members of the parish gave thanks for the gifts Larry has given them over the years, Larry said he laid in bed that night thankful for what they have given to him.

"My own faith has been confirmed by the faith I see in others," he said.

Larry's relationship with members of his church started over two decades ago.

He and his wife, Mickey, pulled into Charlevoix on Oct. 3, 1976 — he said it was a beautiful fall day and they fell in love with the town.

But Larry, a Grand Rapids native knew Michigan weather wasn't this utopia of sunshine and bright, colorful leaves. So, he returned in November and was welcomed by sleet and rain. With severe weather wreaking havoc on town, he still knew this is where he belonged.

"I felt called. It's one of those things as you think about it more and more it is confirmed in your own mind that it's the right thing to do," he said.

So, in January of 1977, he and his family packed up their home in Scottsdale, Ariz., where he had pastored for 10 years, and headed for cold, snowy Charlevoix.

Larry said Mickey and his three children, John, Jeff and Laura spent that winter staring longingly outside at the severe weather, dreaming of Arizona's warm, dry heat.

Pastor gives his last sermon for church

But the Grooters family adapted quickly and the church began to spread its wings.

When Larry started with the church in 1977 he was delivering Sunday sermons to a congregation of 75 parishioners.

Now, worship attendance has grown to include 550 people.

Not only has the size of the parish grown, but through the years, the congregation has reached his goal of becoming a community church.

The congregation is currently made up of parishioners from every background living in Charlevoix, Petoskey, East Jordan and Boyne City.

"We really have a wonderful congregation; we are at peace with each other. The fact that I can be here for 26 years was only made possible by the spirit of the people," he said.

The growth and changes that Larry strove for are part of the reason he now feels it's time to retire.

He said the building's seams are starting to stretch and a new facility is needed.

And after 40 years of ministry he wasn't ready to commit to another five years to see a building project through. So, he decided it is time to move on and make way for a younger pastor to take those next steps.

The one-year, interim pastor at the church is Paul Copeland.

He and his wife Marilyn spent last week moving into the Grooters home while Larry and Mickey scrambled to pack and move to Traverse City.

Larry said they may be living south of Charlevoix, hut their hearts stay here.

Both he and Mickey said the Traverse City to Charlevoix trek is commutable and once the senior pastor is established, they hope to return to the church as parishioners.

"These are the people I love," he said.

They are even keeping their options open and could possibly move back to Charlevoix.

"I haven't had a problem retiring, but I have had trouble moving away," he said.

"It's great walking into a grocery store, the bank or the post office and bumping into people you know all the time."

In the meantime, the couple plan to spend their retirement with family, doing some traveling and Larry will fill pulpits when pastors at other churches are absent.

Residents to fight local Wal-Mart plans

reasons why they didn't want a Wal-Mart, including harm to the environment, traffic concerns, low paying jobs, the impact on current businesses in town and Wal-Mart's need for governmental services and utilities.

Linda Hoffman, Charlevoix resident and downtown business owner, said, "There are a lot of repercussions that people haven't really thought through. There aren't enough people here. We don't have the volume to support that."

Marell Staffel, Charlevoix resident and business owner, added, "For every $100 the township makes in taxes, it costs $104 to give services (to a Wal-Mart)."

Jim Berlage, Charlevoix resident and business owner, pointed out a book entitled "How Wal-Mart is Destroying America" by Bill Quinn and said it is filled with "horror story after horror story."

"Wal-Mart basically decimates a downtown district. They are very predatory in what they do," he said. "They'll suck the town dry and move on."

He pointed out examples in Iowa from the book where Wal-Mart drove many other retailers out of business and said there are 800 empty Wal-Marts across the country.

Charlevoix resident Laurie Lounsbury said she has seen the effects Wal-Mart first-hand while working in Gaylord.

Basically, Wal-Mart floods an area with stores and hires people on a full-time basis, Lounsbury said. But, after the competition is gone, the company starts closing stores and cutting back employee hours.

"It's impact on an area is devastating," she said.

Dianne Manore, Charlevoix resident, pointed out that the current Wal-Mart plans call for over 700 parking spaces. That equals 726,000 square feet of asphalt or almost 6.5 acres of impervious surface on the site.

Plus, the 700 parking spaces equals 25 percent of the population of Charlevoix.

Manore, who is also a city of Charlevoix employee, further added there are many questions that Wal-Mart has not addressed, such as what utilities will it need and where it will put its waste. She said the city's sewage treatment plant is at capacity now.

But, not everyone in attendance was against a Wal-Mart.

Don Monteith, of Charlevoix, said he is just looking for a solution that is fair to everyone.

He pointed out businesses have already been leaving Charlevoix for some time, without a Wal-Mart in the economic picture.

"What you really need to do is look at what you can do to save Charlevoix. This town will not exist the way it is now, other than a few people who can afford it," he said. "There is a lot of things here you are blaming on Wal-Mart that you shouldn't."

Wal-Mart's Danos said he does not know the exact date when the company will be back before the township with any more plans for the supercenter. He said he expects it will be sometime in the next 30 to 60 days.

City hall project three weeks behind schedule

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

The $2.067 million renovation to Charlevoix's City Hall is progressing, but completion is expected to come about three weeks behind schedule.

City hall renovation project liaison Jim Shull, said, most of the demolition that needed to be done is complete. Workers have hauled over 200 yards of debris out of the building so far.

But construction of the new addition is behind schedule.

Al Petrie, the project foreman and co-owner of the project's general contracting company Petrie Construction of East Jordan, said that due the late delivery of steel for the addition, things are running about three weeks behind schedule.

Construction of the 2,200 square foot addition off the Mason Street side of the building, is expected to start this week.

Last week, workers from Manthei were at the construction site pouring concrete in the basement. Meanwhile, inside the first and second floors, electricians and heating and plumbing specialists were busy running electrical lines, installing duct work and putting in water lines.

The interior of the building is currently really rough, but Petrie said in the next month the new city hall will begin to take shape as drywall goes up and electrical and mechanical finishes begin to be put in place.

The final product will include new, upgraded city council chambers, expanded space for the Charlevoix City Police and Fire departments and renovated office space for city workers.

The project is being tackled in four phases.

The first of the four began in late March with renovations to the old post office, where in phase two city employees temporarily relocated.

The project is currently in the second half of phase two, which includes construction of the addition and city offices, and renovation of the basement and meeting rooms.

Phase three will include minor changes to the post office to accommodate the police and fire departments. In phase four, police and fire personnel will move there while their quarters are renovated.

This move is expected to take place in early February of 2004.

Shull said that having the police and fire departments still located in the construction zone has been a "minor inconvenience" for the city workers, due to the noise, but otherwise hasn't interfered at all with city operations.

Shull said that after almost five years of planning, eight years of saving money, and just over a year of construction, he expects the final opening will take place in June or July of 2004.

In Petrie's project bid it was stated that they could finish the project in 420 days with completion in early April of 2004.

city," he said. "Charlevoix's number one industry is tourism. Anything we can do to promote our number one industry and make it stronger is a boost to everyone in town."

The third ward race which pits former councilman A.J. Witthoeft against incumbent Shirley Gibson saw a similar split in opinion when it came to a conference center.

Witthoeft agrees with Novotny that a conference center in the downtown would be profitable. But he feels the city should team with the Charlevoix Public Library. The library is planning a 150 person meeting space at its new facility in the renovated former Charlevoix Middle School off Grant Street in the city which will be complete in the spring of 2006.

He said this way the space is still downtown and the city will get the "best bang for our buck."

Witthoeft added that the project would likely create "a little" competition, but it will keep the facility in the city for convenience of its users and may help downtown businesses.

While Witthoeft sees a possibility of a conference center working in town, his opposition, Gibson, said she is opposed to any city funded conference center.

"That is absolutely the most ridiculous, stupid, moronic thing I've ever heard of. We have the Castle for year-round conventions — they have the parking, they have everything," she said.

She agreed with Witthoeft that if the city were to construct a facility downtown, it would compete with existing privately owned facilities.

One other major player that many fear will compete and ruin local businesses is Wal-Mart. The company has been making strides to locate a super center in Charlevoix Township, near Stover and Marion Center roads.

Wal-Mart representatives have claimed its Petoskey store has seen enough shoppers from Charlevoix to merit a second store here.

But a group of Charlevoix merchants have come forward to fight its local presence claiming it would have a negative impact on operations at their stores.

Novotny disputes these claims.

"I don't feel Wal-Mart would effect it — different customers. Most people who shop downtown are summer people," he said.

Timms agreed with Novotny and said, "It's a different breed of cat. The downtown businesses have different wares."

He added that Wal-Mart may even increase sales for the merchants as it will likely bring more people to town.

Third ward candidates Witthoeft and Gibson both adamantly disagreed with Novotny and Timms on the Wal-Mart issue.

Gibson said, "I think if Wal-Mart comes to town, it will destroy the downtown. It will close the stores one by one."

Witthoeft agreed and said, "I don't think this town can support a superstore and all the other stores that are struggling already. I think that's a mistake."

Rayders lose homecoming game to Harbor

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

It was a dreary homecoming night in Charlevoix, both in the air and on the playing field as the Rayders fell to Harbor Springs, 19-7.

The Rams drew first blood, taking the opening kickoff and driving for a score, capped hy a one-yard quarterback sneak with 9:42 left in the first quarter.

Early in the second quarter, Charlevoix responded with a 52-yard scoring drive, keyed by three passes for first downs by junior quarterhack Cody Crain. Ben Bergmann hauled in a 14-yard scoring toss from Crain on a 3rd and 12 situation.

Jeff Golovich's successful extra-point kick gave the Rayders a 7-6 lead with 11:14 to go in the first half.

Harhor then drove deep into Rayder territory, converting on two fourth-down situations. The Rams missed a 32-yard field goal attempt however to keep Charlevoix on top. Harbor Springs later intercepted a pass and drove to the Rayder 21 where they were turned away on downs as the first half ended.

Early in the third quarter, the Rayders stopped Harbor again on downs but the Rams answered with another interception. On their first play following the pick, a 34-yard run gave the Rams first and goal at the Charlevoix eight.

The Rayder defense again rose up and stopped the Rams, turning them away on downs without a score.

Fumhles on the next two possessions, however, were the turning point of the game. Harbor Springs scooped up the first Charlevoix fumhle in the end zone for a touchdown.

Seconds later, another fumble recovery led to a short-drive capped by a 27-yard touchdown run for the final margin of victory.

Crain was 15 for 33 passing for 134 yards Taylor Fisher and Mitchell Klooster each had four receptions for 36 yards. Bergmann had five catches for 56 yards.

Sophomore Russell Williams led the rushers with 14 yards in his first varsity game.

Defensively, Fisher had 14 tackles and an interception. Klooster and Jamen Waha each had 11 tackles while Williams had eight stops. Will Kautz had an interception.

Charlevoix (1-5 overall, 1-3 conference) plays Friday, Oct. 10 at Grayling.

Girls' basketball team gets its first loss of season

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

The Charlevoix Rayders suffered their first loss of the season, falling to Traverse City St. Francis, 63-49 last Thursday night in Traverse City.

Earlier in the week, the Rayders defeated Grayling, 61-49.

"The two hig differences in the (St. Francis) game were the outstanding player they had and the super fan support," Charlevoix coach Jim Parrish said. "It was a college atmosphere in there. I think it affected us a bit. We played a little timid."

The loss dropped Charlevoix into second place with a 5-1 conference mark. St. Francis sits alone atop the league with a 6-0 record.

St. Francis led 14-6 at the end of the first quarter as their All-State candidate, Erin Carney poured in 10 points. The Gladiators extended the margin to 31-17 at the half.

Charlevoix rallied in the third stanza to close to within 47-37, but couldn't overcome the deficit.

"I thought we played very well in the third quarter," Parrish said. "We had changed the offense a bit to open up the middle and Jamie (Pettis) started driving in the second half. We also put Rebecca (Kanine) in to drive the lane and did a nice job of that."

Pettis led the Rayders in scoring with 15. Grace Farrell scored eight. Alyssia McDonough, Betsy Dennis and Brooke Blanchard each had six points.

Kari Way pulled down a team-high 11 rebounds. Blanchard grabbed eight boards. Farrell, McDonough and Sarah Cross each had five rebounds.

"Kari Way had a good all-around game," Parrish said. "I asked her to keep their good backside rebounder off the glass and she did her job very well."

Brooke Blanchard also did a good job of bodying up with their tall players, Parrish said.

"That was one of her best games of the year."

Against Grayling, juniors Farrell (18 points, 11 rebounds and four steals) and Way (nine points and 11 rebounds) paced the Charlevoix attack. Shannon Dibble and Cross each scored eight. Rachel Wyniawskyj tallied seven points.

Local health agency offering flu shots to residents

The Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency is offering flu shots for children six months old and up at its offices in Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego counties.

The charge per dose is $18. However, there is no charge for children enrolled in Medicaid. Also, families whose insurance does not cover immunizations or who are not insured may qualify for a reduced fee of $10 per dose through the health agency.

New recommendations from both the U.S. Centers for Disease Control (CDC) and the American Academy of Pediatrics encourage an annual flu shot for all healthy children six months to 23 months of age. Healthy children younger than two are at as great a risk of being hospitalized from the flu as are adults over the age of 50, said Joshua Meyerson, M.D., Medical Director for the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency.

For children two and older, recommendations include a yearly flu shot if they have certain medical conditions, such as asthma or other lung diseases, heart or kidney disease, diabetes, or diseases of the immune system. It's also important for children who live with someone who has a serious medical condition to receive the vaccine so everyone in the household is protected from the flu, said Meyerson. Parents can also schedule flu shots for their children to avoid sick days away from school and work.

Infants under six months of age are at greatest risk of contracting the flu, but they are too young to receive the vaccine. The best way to protect them is to make sure that their parents, siblings, and caregivers are vaccinated, Meyerson added.

Influenza (flu) is caused by a virus that infects the nose, throat, and lungs. It usually spreads through the air or person-to-person when an infected person sneezes, cough, or talks. The flu can be a severe disease, especially for children. Flu and its complications are the sixth leading cause of death among children under the age of five.

Flu vaccine protects most people from getting the disease. Although some vaccinated people will still get the flu, they generally get a milder case than those who are not vaccinated, said Meyerson. Vaccinated people also help protect the people around them by reducing the transmission of the virus from person to person. Because the type of flu virus changes from year to year, people need to be revaccinated every year.

To schedule an appointment for a flu shot at the health department, telephone the (800) 432-2141 during regular business hours.

Robys only want half of Appletree building

end they were able to agree on a new plan that will save part of the building.

Dan Barron, attorney for the Robys said they will now save the first 13 feet of the building, reducing the structure by over 60 percent. The part of the building that will now be on the lot is 13 feet deep by 33 feet wide.

He said this is the original part of the building that has rich historical standing and is at least 120 years old.

"It will be reoriented on the lot so it becomes a minimum sized building on a minimum sized lot," Barron said. "It will showcase the structure in an outstanding way."

The Robys contractor for the removal of the building is Phil Jonassen, a structural mover from Walkerville. Barron said they have spoken with Jonassen and the move is doable. It will cost the Robys around $60,000 just to move it. They then plan to restore it as efficiency living quarters and an art studio.

Barron said this new plan was supported by the 20 neighbors who attended last weekend's meeting.

The Robys will still need a variance from the Charlevoix Zoning Board of Appeals because the lot is non-conforming. This variance request will be considered at the board's meeting scheduled to take place at 7 p.m., Oct. 15.

"This (new plan) potentially puts the project back into win, win, win mode," Barron said.

He explained that there is enough room for the structure to be used as a small residential dwelling unit and studio for the Robys, so they win. The community and the neighbors are happy to save the building, so they win. The only "win" still pending is that of the developers, Jerry Rutter and Scott Zager of Elk Rapids, who Barron is hoping will be willing to demolish half the building to save a piece of Charlevoix's history.

But this third win is still on the fence. Barron said he hasn't heard from Rutter or Zager in this matter.

Barron sent a contract to Rutter's attorney Jack Turner for his review on Sept. 24. But as of Oct. 6 had not heard hack from him.

Rutter said he is busy getting his ducks in a row before he can sign any contract. This includes making sure mortgages are approved, engineering is complete and all the necessary permits have been obtained.

Rutter said the Robys can have the whole building or they can have half, it just has to go and he would prefer they not leave half the building sitting there for his crews to clean up.

"If they can't use it I would prefer that they take the other half somewhere else," he said.

Rutter received two calls last week from other parties interested in locating the building on their Charlevoix property. One caller had physical barriers that would not allow it to be located there and the other had two lots by the hospital that may work.

But Rutter said he has been working with the Robys for some time and plans to continue working with them.

"We owe him the courtesy to try and get it out of there. But I'm concerned that he will take half the building and still leave me with a mess. But I think we can iron that out," he said.

But this needs to happen fast, the building was supposed to be removed by Oct. 15 and Rutter plans to break ground during the first week of November. Rutter's construction crew needs between 45 and 60 days to get the structure enclosed so they can work through the winter.

Barron said he hopes the process moves quickly and if not, is banking on patience from the developers.

"I would hate to see that structure demolished for the sake of expediting a project three to four weeks," he said.

Charlevoix Courier keeps community up to date

Marilyn Boss

'Days gone by'

The history of Charlevoix is an intriguing subject.

As I was perusing an old copy of the Courier, I enjoyed reading the current news at the time, and also the news of past years. On the front page of the paper was the claim, "Charlevoix County's Largest Newspaper" and on the editorial page was the heading," Northern Michigan's Finest Newspaper."

Those are claims that reflected the pride of those who lived here. We have always enjoyed reading the Courier and have had many wonderful reporters through the years. Fran Martin was a great reporter and a good friend to everyone.

You could call her to find out the latest results of any election and every other event. She always did an A-1 job in telling things as they were, from city news to bits about neighbors and their comings and goings. If you had a personal story to tell, she would do a great job on it.

I remember when I first made the elves for our Christmas yard display. She wanted to know every detail and then wrote a great story complete with pictures and got it off to a great start. Small town newspapers are a very wonderful thing to have and we are blessed with a paper that has stood the test of time.

Back in 1917, the Courier listed the names of 291 Charlevoix County men who were eligible for the draft. The following men applied for officers training camp at Fort Sheridan, Illinois: Robert Bridge, Dan W. Mather, Glenn Warren, Roscoe Corbin, George A. Crouter, Frederick V. Tyler, Rollie L. Lewis, and Dr. Frank H. Wilkinson. The preliminary training for the draftees was announced by Mason H. Rose, local chairman of the Military Training Camp Association.

In 1942, Charlevoix made plans for a water sports carnival. At that time, Norman D. Ance and C. Meredith Bice filed nominating petitions for the office of county prosecutor. Peter B. Winnick ran for the road commission against Lyle B. Wanteman of East Jordan and John H. Parker of Boyne City. The Foster Boat Company planned an expansion after receiving a U.S. Navy order for 20 additional boats. The firm planned to lease the Inn garage and construct a 60 by 80 foot addition to the Ferry Avenue plant. Services were given for Roy M. Kane, pioneer resident of Hayes Township, and Charles M. Allard, 87, veteran Charlevoix fisherman.

In 1952, Donna Ball was crowned Venetian Queen. A 50-mile-an-hour wind and rain raked the city, knocking out electric power. Mrs. Dewitt Peters found 10 3/4 inch cisco fish lying in her front yard after the storm. Rites were held for Harry Glossenger, 66, retired cigar maker and Petoskey Cement Company engineer. One of my classmates, Don Gill, was inducted into the service, along with Leslie F. Melin, also of Charlevoix. The Albert Edwards' celebrated their thirtieth wedding anniversary.

In 1957, the city commended Robert Miles for photographic work appearing in the booklet, "Charlevoix the Beautiful." Movie star Buddy Rogers crowned Deanna Left as Charlevoix Venetian Queen for 1957. Her court consisted of: Susanne Grate, Nancy Wallace, and Judy Cunningham. Mary Case was queen in 1956. Robert Winchester and family arrived in Charlevoix where he is an employee of the Pontius Chapel. He previously operated his own funeral home in Freeport. Beth Lewis won a nursing scholarship which was offered by the American Cancer Society.

In 1962, Steve J. Kowbel and son Donald purchased Harbor Hardware from Max Hosmer. The Kowbels were from Unionville in the Thumb area. Funeral services were given for Mrs. Frank Bird, 70, who was associated with her husband in the Charlevoix County Register of Deeds office for 22 years. The ship, "Beaver Island" was christened at St. James. Nate Cummings revealed plans to show a Picasso painting at the Waterfront Fair. Nancy Staley, Barbara Schwab, Sharon Wood, Lynn Maxfield, Jan Burns and Linda Neff were candidates for Venetian Queen. Alcoholics Anonymous organized a chapter in Charlevoix. The City Council cut the parking penalty cost from $1 to 25 cents.

The starting teacher's pay in 1966 was $5,300 for a B.A. and $5,600 for an M.A. These maximums were still below Charlevoix' s tops of $8,000 and $8,500.

The Venetian Festival in 1967 had many events. Besides the street parade, there were water ball fights, a greased pole climb in East Park and a doll and pet parade at the bandstand. Scott Swanson won first place in the pet parade, dressed as Silvester the Cat, holding "Tweetie" in a cage. Second place was won by Martha Adele, and Daedre and David Lepman. Third place was won by Regina, Bruce and Donna Sutton. The dress up event was won by Peggy Cardwell, with Katy and Ginny Kleinpell, Joanie Powers and Janet Begrow winning second place. Third place was Terri Marie Kane. In the Doll event, Lynda Lancaster won first, Buffy Hess, second, and Nancy Jo Alger and Terri Lynn Novotny won third. This was an enjoyable event.

Ernie Hiller was honored as Charlevoix's "Citizen of the Year." Janet Pease was crowned Queen. There was an all star ball game, and street dancing at State and Mason Streets. At night, there was the traditional Venetian Boat parade and fireworks. A baton twirler group of Charlevoix girls, named The Charlevettes, and directed by Mrs. Alex Moore, performed for the crowds. The 25 girls were: Carol Russell, Rochelle Webster, Alexis Moore, Mildred Otis, Nita Martin, Cindy Johnson, Julie Johnson, Andrea Brown, Debbie Bartlett, Terri Brown, Diane Grubaugh, Debbie Puffpaff, Judy Hamilton, Mary Jo Baker, Susie Smith, Dawn Bartlett, Marta Mieras, Ann Puffpaff, Susan Moor, Marsha Brown, Susie Pettis, Christine Moore, Kim Cater, Andrea Mieras and Janet Dinwiddie.

The Charlevoix High School Band was invited to participate in the 1968 Midwestern Band Concert in Ann Arbor. Band Boosters president, Don Meggison, announced a drive to raise money for new band uniforms so the band would be smartly dressed. The cost of each uniform was $85 to $100 each. C.A. Odmark, the band director, said he believed the Charlevoix Band is the first Class C school band in the state to be asked to take part in the Midwestern Concert.

The Courier has been a mainstay in Charlevoix and we trust it will remain so for many years to come.

East Park, Bridge Park to have Applefest activities

APPLEFEST

> "I think we'll have a great attendance for the festival — it will be a good boost for the economy."
> Jacqueline Merta, Chamber of commerce president

While each of the orchards will be at the festival with their apples, seasoned veteran attendees of the festival may notice the bushels aren't full of the mature apples they are used to buying.'

Co-owner of Friske Orchards, Richard Friske Jr., said, consistently cool weather has had an impact on the crop.

He said everything is about 10 days behind this year because cool weather has not allowed the apples to ripen according to their usual schedule.

"Today (Oct. 2) we are picking Macintosh and that's the first fall variety," he said.

The snowy days that hit Charlevoix last week didn't have a disastrous effect on the crop, but Friske said the problem is the cumulative effect of the consist cool days this growing season.

In spite of the cool weather problem, Friske promises to have plenty of perfect apples in 15 varieties. But he said the latest varieties, like Ida Red and Northern Spies, may be a little less mature.

"But we'll have them anyway because it's Apple Festival and what can you do. You have to have everything there," he said with excitement.

Friske sells an estimated 200 bushels of apples every year at the festival.

Aside from the many varieties of fresh apples that will be on site, other commodities will also be for sale including: apple cake and pie, cider, honey and jams, fresh donuts, plants and bulbs, hydroponic tomatoes, squash, pumpkins, gourds, Indian corn and more.

In all, 13 food vendors will be ready to tantalize customers with delectable harvest treats.

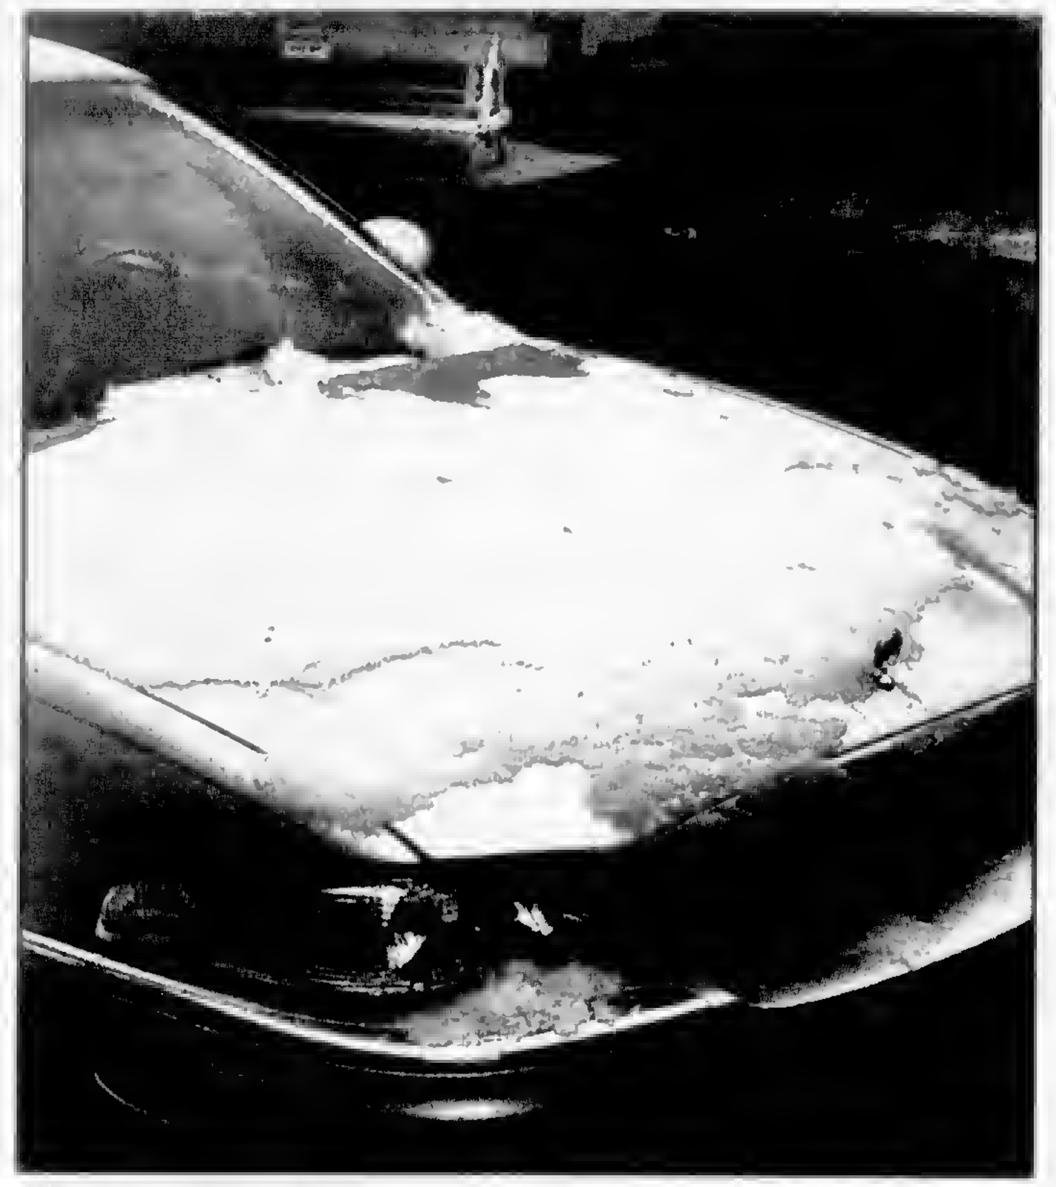
After shopping for fresh produce and baked goods, festival participants can travel through the craft courtyard filled with 130 vendors showcasing multiple handmade goods.

Or, take a walk back in time and check out the farm machinery that once ruled the fields. The Northern Michigan Antique Flywheelers will have a exhibit set up in Bridge Park.

While apples, crafts and antique machinery will keep adults interested, there is plenty that will be in the park this weekend to keep the kids busy too including: pony and carriage rides, a petting farm and a huge apple play land.

While families keep busy having fun in the park, merchants are also expecting an influx of shoppers. Merta said Apple Festival's popularity plays an important economic role in the community bringing in high volumes of shoppers.

"I think we'll have a great attendance for the festival — it will be a good boost for the economy," she said.



Snow way!

Charlevoix and northern Michigan were struck by a wild snap of winter weather on Oct. 1. A cold front brought rain and snow to the area, leaving many vehicles with a dusting of the white stuff. (Photo by Jeremy McBain)

A Hospice is not a Hospice .....

Hearts that Comfort ...

All hospices specialize in care for the terminally ill but did you know that there are several hospice programs serving Emmet, Charlevoix and Cheboygan counties? Each is independently operated.

The difference between each program is the quality of care and types of services offered. As a healthcare consumer, you have a choice of which hospice program to receive services from!

Hospice of Little Traverse Bay (HOLTB) has been providing end-of-life care in Emmet, Charlevoix and Cheboygan counties since 1981. We care for patients of all ages, at all stages of their illness with dignity and compassion.

For more information on HOLTB services, visit our website at www.hospiceltb.org or call at 231-487-4825.

Housing project on Loeb planned

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

A sizable affordable housing development may be moving out to Loeb Road in Marion Township.

Wayne Boss and his partners, who he said are all family members, in the business Legacy Development Group, LLC, will go before the Marion Township Planning Commission to request a land rezone to make way for the development.

They are asking for two parcels totaling 53 acres both fronting on Loeb Road to be rezoned from agricultural, to R-1, single family residential.

The planning commission will be considering this request at a public hearing scheduled to take place at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 27 at the Marion Township Hall.

Planning commission chairman Tim Matchett said the group will present their development plan at that meeting.

But the commission has already had a taste of what will likely be presented. On Sept. 4, Boss, pres-

US-31 development before the township

The Charlevoix Township portion of a huge, proposed planned unit development near Boyne City/Charlevoix Road and US-31, is beginning to see some progress.

David Robinson, chief operating officer for Dorian Lange and Lange Limited LLC of Okemos, submitted an application to the Charlevoix Township Planning Commission to have the 28 acres Lange owns in Charlevoix Township, rezoned from commercial to PUD, planned unit development.

The commission will host a public hearing in this matter at 7:30 p.m., Oct. 15 at the township hall located at 12491 Waller Road, in Charlevoix.

The entire proposed development will cover 73 acres, with 44 acres in Hayes Township. The whole plan includes a hotel, office space, senior housing, a restaurant, retail space, apartments and self-storage buildings.

Each proposed site has to be approved by the township its planned for and the Hayes Township hotel is currently the only approved site.

But that could all change soon as action has been seen on the Charlevoix Township side.

Lange appeared before the Charlevoix Township Planning Commission July 15 to gather zoning ordinance information.

Then, on Aug. 25, he submitted a rezoning request.

According to Robinson, the Charlevoix Township portion of the project will be used for retail stores, apartments and condominiums.

Convenience retail located on the portion of the property near the intersection of US-31 and Boyne City-Charlevoix Road, fronting on US-31, could possibly include stores that provide video rental, dry cleaning, laundromat services and insurance and real estate sales.

The part of the property that is behind the retail is planned for a 112-unit apartment complex that in the plan are referred to as "affordable housing."

Robinson said he has seen a need in Charlevoix for housing geared toward those working in the service industry.

"It has been a long time since someone in Charlevoix has built decent housing for them," he said.

The portion of the property fronting on Boyne City-Charlevoix Road is planned for residential condominiums. Robinson anticipates retirees and maybe some families buying these "relatively affordable," drive-up, duplex type of units.

Church's annual tea Oct. 11 considered a success

Despite chilly weather, approximately 100 women from our church and nearby churches were warmed by friendship and hot tea at the seventh Interdenominational Tea on Oct. 1 at the First Congregational United Church of Christ in Charlevoix.

Eleven women decorated tables with their cherished treasures such as their mother's best china and even a quilt that had crossed the prairie in a Conestoga wagon.

Confirmation class has begun at the First Congregational United Church of Christ in Charlevoix. Eight young people from grades 8, 9 and 10 are participating.

They meet at 9:45 a.m. each Sunday. If you would like to learn more about this year's Confirmation journey, please contact The Rev. Mary Snell Willis at 547-9122.

Library shows final plan, working on millage request

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

After countless meetings Charlevoix residents who attended the final design public input session for the future Charlevoix Public Library agreed unanimously on its new look.

"Getting the schematic design done was a big step," Library Director Val Meyerson said. "We are well on our way, this is really exciting."

The only change those who attended last week's meeting made to the plan chosen by the library board and building committee, was a decision to close the Grant Street entrance to the building. They opted to convert this entrance to a book drop off. The modification opens up the circulation desk area.

The two entrances that were kept are the main entrance, located off the parking lot, and a second entrance off Mason Street.

This final selected design locates the program room off the adult collection, on the opposite end of the library from the children's area. Meyerson said its distance from the children's area is its only shortfall but with it at that location, the "L" shape of the building is maintained.

The next step will be a meeting Oct. 27. At that meeting, the architects, Alyce Riemenschneider of Riemenschneider Design Associates in Ann Arbor and Bill Williams of Engberg Anderson Design Partnership in Wisconsin and representatives for Clark Construction, the project's manager, will reveal cost estimates for the project and colorful pictures forecasting the building's look.

From there, library staff and volunteers will get to work on a capital campaign to raise money to make those sketches a reality.

Meyerson said that so far, not having cost estimates has held up the fund-raising effort. The capital campaign will start with a feasibility study to gauge public support that will be based on interviews conducted by three people associated with the library.

The millage committee met Oct. 8 to discuss a date for a bond issue which will likely be used as the primary source of project funding.

Meyerson said the library will ask those in the Charlevoix School District to approve a bond and an operating millage.

"We can't expect to move into a building that is three times our size and not anticipate an increase in our operating budget," she said.

The size of the millage request has not been established. Meyerson said they are holding off until the feasibility study for the capital campaign is complete at which time they will have some idea of what will be needed.

At the millage committee meeting, discussion was focused on possible election dates for the bond and operating millage to appear on the ballot. The August 2004 primary was found to be less desirable because of the multiple millage issues voters will be asked to renew including recycling, senior services, Grandvue's operating millage and more.

Few things were cited as problematic with being on the November 2004 election ballot other than the fact that it will be a presidential ballot and it may be a little late.

A third option that seemed most feasible was for the issue to be on the June 2004 school board election ballot.

The only problem millage committee members cited with the June election is that it may be too soon. The library wants to have its capital campaign 85 percent completed before the election and Meyerson thinks the most fruitful months for the campaign may be July and August.

Library board trustee and millage committee member Rick Brandi said, "It would be nice to go to the ballot with money in hand."

The group is planning to hire a bond attorney to help them lay out their course of action including a timeline.

Meyerson is also gearing up for writing grants from which she is anticipating the new project garnering financial support.

Correction

In a story on a group forming to fight Wal-Mart, Diane Manore, Charlevoix resident and city employee, later told the Courier she was wrong in her comment about the city sewage treatment plant. The plant is not at capacity.

Leave the dog at home for festivals

EDITORIAL

There are times when some people need to be reminded of common sense.

It's not a bad thing. We all can have those moments when we are doing something silly and need to be told. Usually it is done in our best interest and the interest of those around us. It keeps bad things from happening and keeps our world happy.

So, here is a little common sense for some people out there: When East Park is filled with people for a festival, it is not a good idea to bring your pooch down there.

Last weekend during Apple Festival it was noted that several people decided to bring their dogs with them to the park. Why they thought it was a good idea to bring an animal with them to a crowded place that is confusing and stressful to people, much less a family pet, is hard to understand.

These poor pets seemed to have a bewildered look in their eyes as they tried in vain to make sense out of all the legs and people they were seeing in their paths. One can only imagine the stress they suffered from it.

But, the trouble that bringing your pet to a crowded park does not stop with the pooch's mind.

What happens when the pet gets over-excited and takes it out on someone else or someone else's property? What will happen when your dog bites someone else or decides to relieve itself on some vendor's merchandise? Will you still think it was worth bringing Spot to the park during the festival if your dog is being hauled away by animal control or you are shelling out money to replace a ruined painting?

Sure East Park is a fun place to play with your dog during the summer and warm fall days. But, it is a different story when the park is filled with people during a festival.

Bringing your dog to East Park during a festival is just plain not smart. You are risking the safety of your pet and those around you for nothing.

So, use a little common sense and do festival-goers a favor — leave your dog at home.

Letters to the editor

For Wal-Mart

Editor:

I for one am completely for the Wal-Mart here in Charlevoix. After reading some of the reasons why people are opposed to the Wal-Mart in the Courier, I can't help but shake my head and respond.

Their complaint: There isn't enough potential shoppers in Charlevoix to support a Wal-Mart.

The truth: People from all over the area will shop at a Wal-Mart in Charlevoix, including people from East Jordan, Bellaire, Central Lake, East Port and any other surrounding communities.

Complaint: Wal-Mart will take business from the local businesses downtown.

The truth: Maybe so, but at least the competition will force these local businesses to bring down their sky high prices that cater to the rich, not the locals!

Complaint: Wal-Mart hires people at low paying wages.

The truth: Having worked at a Wal-Mart in my high school days in Indiana, I know for a fact they pay much better than the local businesses do around here!

Complaint: Wal-Mart will bring too much congestion and traffic to the area.

The truth: Maybe so, but isn't that what our community needs — a boost to our local economy?

Complaint: The area for the parking spaces they are proposing is too large of an area!

The truth: What's the big deal? That land is sitting there unused anyway. Let's quit whining and complaining and support a business that will employ a lot of people in our area whom are currently jobless.

I think you'll find the majority complaining about this whole issue aren't struggling to find work, aren't having a hard time living in over priced Charlevoix, but are the local business owners whom are afraid they may lose business to a low price competitor.

Here's a revelation: Lower your prices, offer good service, don't cater to a particular income bracket and people will shop with you year-round. Wal-Mart has that figured out, that's why they're successful and that's why I am a loyal customer.

Bobbie Rathjens

Against Wal-Mart

Editor:

I read with great interest your last couple of articles regarding the proposed Charlevoix Wal-Mart. In the article where Mr. Danos was making some comments, one really struck me.

"Danos also did not know what kind of impact current businesses would face if a Wal-Mart is built near town."

They are already affecting local businesses here, even before they come. A few weeks back an article ran on the owner of the local hardware store closing his downtown location. The main reason he cited was that he didn't want to compete with Wal-Mart. What about Glen's Market, Oleson's Food Mart, Don's IGA, the new ACE Hardware store, Marvin's Gardens and others.

Wal-Mart can and will affect all of these plus many more businesses in the Charlevoix area. There was also a reference in one of your articles about the now vacant Quality Farm and Fleet building. I believe if Wal-Mart comes, not only will we have that vacant building, but it would also force Kmart to go out of business and that building will also be vacant.

I would love to see a future article in your paper, showing where Mr. Danos did do some research on the impact on local Charlevoix business. I believe that report would clearly show Charlevoix does not need a Wal-Mart!

No need for convention center

Editor:

I was surprised to read that Dave Novotny and A.J. Witthoeft, candidates for city council, believe the city should build a convention center to compete with Castle Farms and let the taxpayers pick up the tab.

The Muellers have put a lot of money in Castle Farms and plan to put another $3 million into it. I believe it's time to start working with them, not against them.

National Pharmacy Week

Editor:

National Pharmacy Week is Oct. 19 -25, and is a good time to learn more about the profession of pharmacy and all the services your pharmacist can provide. The modern pharmacy has grown from a healthcare profession to one that encompasses many patient-oriented services. Pharmacists are constantly changing the way that they practice in order to comply with the healthcare system and their patients' needs. Pharmacists are even more knowledgeable and proficient than ever before. This knowledge varies from preparation, to dispensing, to proper utilization of drugs. Pharmacists have the most training with both prescription and nonprescription drugs. They are the best and most accessible medication experts.

Consumers should expect more from their current pharmacist. They should expect counseling services when needed in addition to health plan coordination with physicians and other healthcare providers. Many pharmacists also perform patient testing such as cholesterol screening, glucose monitoring and even blood pressure checks.

As much as the role of the pharmacist is important in a community, the role of the patient is equally important. It is the patient's responsibility to let the pharmacist know the following things: The names of all prescriptions and nonprescription medication that they are taking, any problems or adverse side effects. After these things are clearly stated, the pharmacist will be able to help and answer any questions that you might have. Some questions might include: What are the side effects of the prescription? Is it okay to drink alcohol while the prescription is being taken? What will happen when I stop taking the prescription?

Good communication between the pharmacist and patient is very important, not only for the patient's health, but also to avoid unnecessary expensive treatment such as hospitalization or surgery. This will help lower the nation's healthcare bill by making sure medication is used properly. To make pharmacists as efficient as possible, it is best to use only one specific pharmacy, so they have access to any and all of your medical records at one location. It is the pharmacist's responsibility to be concerned about your health and it is the patient's responsibility to take an active role in their health care. This dual responsibility is emphasized during National Pharmacy Week. Take advantage of National Pharmacy Week to talk to your pharmacist about any questions you may have.

Thank you

Editor:

On Saturday, Sept. 27 the Boyne Valley Lions Club provided hot dogs, soft drinks and coffee at the Ironton Congregational Church for the annual Crop Walk for walkers from Charlevoix, Boyne City and East Jordan.

We would like to give a huge thank you to the unknown lady who lives close to the church for allowing us to use her telephone and her garage to make coffee for all the walkers. It wouldn't have been the same without her.

Thank you

Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the Charlevoix group who organized the "Fall In" Benefit Golf Tournament at the Belvedere Golf Course on Saturday, Sept. 20.

The $3,400 you raised to benefit the Beaver Island Sports Boosters is hugely appreciated and will allow the school district to continue its modest sports program (co-ed soccer, basketball and volleyball) without high fees for the students to participate. The generosity of the group and the spirit of camaraderie between the Charlevoix and Beaver Island Communities is greatly appreciated.

Thanks again to all who organized, sponsored and participated in the event.

Goals announced for Holly Daze

The Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation Holly Daze Committee has announced this year's fund-raising goals and in a move to support area businesses, a change in dates from Thanksgiving weekend to the following week for this annual event.

"This year our goals will directly benefit all the communities in our service area," says committee chair Patti Barraw. "We want to purchase a Gamma Probe System for Charlevoix Area Hospital, equipment for the new Jordan Valley Rehabilitation Center in East Jordan, and automatic external defibrillators for Jordan Valley, Boyne Area Medical Center and Boyne Rehabilitation Center."

With a total price of $51,486 Barraw says the committee feels certain that area businesses and individuals will support this goal because each community will receive a direct benefit.

Dates for the event have been scheduled to coincide with the Charlevoix downtown merchants' open house on Dec. 5 and 6.

Barraw said they hope to encourage individuals doing holiday shopping that visiting area merchants and the hospital during its silent auction and Holly Daze sale will benefit everyone.

Holly Daze at the hospital will open at 8 a.m. and close at 6 p.m. on Friday, Dec. 5. Hours will be from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday.

The popular Elf School for children will return on Saturday, with reservations required.

Who: Charlevoix Area Hospital
What it is: Holly Daze annual hospital fund-raiser.
When: Dec. 5 and 6, with a live auction on Dec. 3.
Where: Charlevoix Country Club

"Our live auction will take place on Dec. 3, at the Charlevoix Country Club," Barraw said. "We already have wonderful things donated and anticipate this being our most popular auction yet. There will be a very small number of Christmas trees with the focus this year on packages and items ideal for gift giving."

Items the committee plans on purchasing include a Gamma Probe System for Charlevoix Area Hospital which will help detect tumors smaller than 1 gram and has the potential to spare thousands of women from the side effects of major breast surgery. Equipment for Jordan Valley Rehab in East Jordan will include a stationary whirlpool, a variety of weights, models, treatment tables and parallel bars.

Over $15,000 will be spent for East Jordan and another $6,200 will be directed to Boyne City.

For more information regarding Holly Daze or to make a donation, call 547-8658.

Council decides against burning ordinance

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

The use of burn barrels within Charlevoix's city limits was confirmed as illegal.

At the Oct. 6 city council meeting, two members of council, first ward councilman Bill Bellows and second ward council member Karen Campbell supported an ordinance that would permit burning of paper in burn barrels in the city.

Bellows said that he remembered the ordinance being changed in March of 2000 to allow this use.

Mayor Gabe Campbell, who was a second ward councilman at the time, remembers the same thing.

The burn ordinance the city staff currently has on the books says that all burning is prohibited with the exception of campfires. After a review of ordinances currently in effect in surrounding communities, council determined the majority don't allow burn barrels and neither will Charlevoix.

However, campfires are permitted.

"What's the difference between burning in a burn barrel and a campfire or a fire in your fireplace," Bellows asked.

Mayor Campbell, who has said he burns in a burn barrel every day, said he plans to push the line on this distinction.

"I'm going to have a marshmallow roast every day. I just might forget to buy the marshmallows," he said.

Charlevoix resident, Jill Picha, said this distinction is going to make it difficult for the city police to enforce the ordinance.

"My guess is this could be unenforceable. You can't enforce getting boats off the street or dogs out of the park," she said.

Third ward council member, Shirley Gibson, held up the city's zoning ordinance and said, "Everything in here is unenforceable."

Burning was first a topic of discussion at the Sept. 15 council meeting.

At that meeting city resident Nikki Louiselle said burning in the vicinity of her home was negatively affecting her children.

At last Monday night's council meeting, she said, "We've canceled family parties and brought our children in from playing because of this smell, it's a nuisance."

The biggest strikes working against the use of burn barrels in the city were complaints of nuisances odors and the county recycling program that has a drop-off location for newspaper and other materials at the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office in the city.

Third ward councilman Sherm Chamberlain said, "Considering the fact that we now have recycling center. I think we are taking a step back in time by burning newspaper."

Bellows said that he doesn't burn newspaper, he burns junk mail, which isn't accepted at the sheriff's office recycling center.

But city manager, Mike Wiesner, said the junk mail and even newspaper isn't the problem, trash is.

"If people used burn barrels to burn paper, there wouldn't be a problem," he said.

Council's majority vote against revising the ordinance means the ordinance currently on the books, which prohibits the use of burn barrels in the city, stands.

Local resident gets evening visit from distance swimmer

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix resident Marabeth Belenski had a surprise visitor around 8 p.m., Sept. 30, when distance swimmer Jim Dreyer showed up at her door.

Dreyer was swimming the length of Lake Michigan in 30 days to raise money for Big Brothers/Big Sisters. He completed the trip at the Mackinac Bridge last week.

According to Belenski, Dreyer had gotten separated from his backup crew and thought he was at Nine Mile Point when he showed up at her Northpoint Woods residence door.

"He was pretty well beat," Belenski said. "It was sort of startling to turn on the light and see this very big man, soaking wet (on the doorstep)."

She said Dreyer had come ashore off of Mount McSauba and walked down the road to her house, which was one of the few with people living in it year-round in that area.

Belenski said she let Dreyer in, made a pot of coffee and gave him some candy. In the meantime, he called his backup crew and directed them to Belenski's house.

"He was very nice and very perturbed that he caused me problems. He was worried about tracking water on the carpet," Belenski said. "They all seemed like very nice people."

The next day Dreyer was back in the water swimming for the Mackinac Bridge.

Nuclear reactor starts journey to South Carolina

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Big Rock's 580,000 pound nuclear reactor began its slow move to South Carolina last week.

The reactor was moved around 3 a.m., Oct. 7 from the nuclear facility by a heavy hauler traveling around 5 miles an hour. The trip took the reactor up US-31 to Petoskey, where it then traveled down US-131 to Gaylord.

The reactor is being welded and bolted to a train car and will leave this week for a radioactive waste dump near Barnwell, S.C.

Big Rock spokesperson Tim Petrosky said the move "went great" with great cooperation between local law enforcement and detail workers moving the reactor.

The time of the trip was picked to enable the shipment to be through Petoskey before the morning rush hour. Petrosky said the reactor was past the US-31, US-131 intersection by 5:30 a.m.

The heavy hauler moving the reactor consists of two 1,200 horsepower motors, a 900 horsepower backup motor and 18 axles with eight wheels per axle.

Petrosky said half of an axle did break during the trip, but problems like this were planned for. Four tires along the axle were removed, it was pinned up to get it out of the way and the trip continued 20 minutes later.

The nuclear reactor is contaminated with radiation, Petrosky said. Most of the radiation has been immobilized when the reactor was filled with 114,000 pounds of low density concrete, but Petrosky said it is giving off about .5 to .7 millarems of radiation an hour at two meters (6.5 feet).

For comparison, Petrosky said federal law states a member of the general public can pick-up no more than 10 millarams an hour at 2 meters. He added the average American receives 360 millarems a years, "just from living their life."

"No member of the general public should pick up any radiation dose at all from this shipment," Petrosky said.

He added welders and workers bolting it onto the train car will pick up some dose, hut they are wearing instruments that measure how much. The nuclear regulation commission allows employees to get up to 5,000 millarams a year.

While Petrosky said the move went great, others disagreed.

In a press release to the Courier, Kevin Kamps of the group Nuclear Information and Resource Service criticized Big Rock saying the plant did not give enough notice of the move to local emergency responders along the route.

Kamp further criticized the company for its decision to park the reactor and heavy hauler at a truck stop overnight during the move at the corner of M-32 and US-131. The truck stop also serves as a school bus drop-off point.

"If customers of those children get close enough to the shipping container, they would received a greater than zero dose," he said. "This shipment is like a mobile x-ray machine that cannot be turned off rolling down the road. Parking this radioactive cargo near flammable and explosive gasoline, as well as near a children's bus stop, is a remarkable oversight."

Petrosky said Kamp is completely wrong.

He said school children and the general puhlic could not get close enough to the hauler to get any dose of radiation.

"There was zero risk to school children," Petrosky said. "I think they put school kids at risk by trying to put fear in them than having this near that truck stop."

As for notifying local emergency responders, Petrosky said that was done.

"We have been talking about shipping this reactor vessel for three years. Meetings (with law enforcement) got more intense as the move got closer and closer. Law enforcement was involved exclusively," he said.

Family Video interested in McDonald's

By JULIE WITTHOEFT

Representatives of Family Video have their sites set on Bridge Street.

At a public hearing Monday night, Oct. 13, the City of Charlevoix Planning Commission heard a request for development plan review submitted by Family Video regional manager Tammy Van Sumeren.

Van Sumeren is proposing to remove the empty McDonalds site at 1402 Bridge Street, that was vacated in August of 2000 when its new store, near the corner of Bridge Street and M-66 at 1440 Bridge Street, opened.

The proposed Family Video store would be a one-story building with 6,400 square feet of usable space and 54 parking spots. In addition, Van Sumeren would like to offer a "food center" at the east end of the building with 1,200 square feet of usable space.

She also submitted an application for signs including one pylon sign and another wall sign within the zoning ordinance's allowable sign size. The land is currently zoned commercial as are the surrounding properties.

She said she is anticipating construction will begin in one month.

The planning commission voted unanimously to recommend to city council that the plan be approved at its Oct. 20 meeting.

According to Don Oppenhuizen, a Realtor with G. W. DeHaan, of Grand Rapids, a commercial broker that listed the property, the sale to Family Video is subject to receipt of the council's approval.

Third ward city council member Shirley Gibson, who was a planning commission member when McDonalds proposed its move, said she is happy to see a potential occupant

In 1999, Gibson was the only planning commissioner who voted against allowing McDonalds to move one block down Bridge Street because she said she didn't want to see the building empty for years.

"I am very happy that empty commercial space is finally going to be used," she said.

Gibson added that she hasn't seen Family Video's development plan, but is hoping parking is in the rear of the building to minimize "the strip mall look."

Oppenhuizen said movement on the property has been slow but over the past two and a half years there has been plenty of interest.

"We had a deal once before, an option on it, that fell apart. Family Video has been working on it for quite a while," he said.

According to Oppenhuizen, potential commercial purchasers are restricted. He said the building and parcel, which span an acre of property, are owned by McDonalds Corporation and to avoid a loss of business from a new competitor, it can't be bought by another fast food provider.

He said another factor that slowed the sale was the terrorist attacks on Sept. 11, 2001.

"Things were slow after 9-11 but since that time things have picked up. There is other interest in the property as well," he said.

Mom-to-mom sale to be at elementary school

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Kids grow like weeds and bills for new duds and toys can grow just as quickly.

Moms who are tired of paying full price for children's gear can find relief at the upcoming Fourth Annual Mom-to-Mom Sale.

"People love it, I love it. You can really find some good stuff and vendors can make money," Charlevoix resident Beth Martin, who is coordinating the event, said.

This year the sale will take place from 9 a.m. to noon Oct. 18 in the Charlevoix Elementary School gym located at 13513 Division Street.

Martin has arranged the sale since the fall of 2000 when it started in Charlevoix. The idea to bring it here was sparked after she experienced her first mom-to-mom sale in Petoskey when she was pregnant with her daughter Sarah.

She said she knew then that this would be a hit here.

Since then, she said she has watched as the program has boomed. Now, there is a line at the door to get in, packed with people from all over the area.

This annual event features over 20 moms selling oodles of "gently used" infant and children's clothing, toys, books, furniture, bikes and more.

"If you were to go to the store and try and buy these things new it would cost you thousands of dollars. But you can go to the sale and find everything you need — it's fun," Martin said.

Adults who are 18 and over and wish to attend will be charged a $3 entrance fee. For moms looking to unload some baby and children's gear, Martin still has booth space available. There is a charge of $25 per space.

Proceeds from this year's event will benefit the Bright Beginnings Preschool which is affiliated with Charlevoix Public Schools. Volunteers to help set up and run the event are also still needed.

The opportunity to shop from 8 to 9 a.m., before the doors open to everyone else, is offered as an incentive to vendors and volunteers.

To volunteer or set up a booth space call Martin at 547-1768.

The Fourth Annual Mom-to-Mom Sale will take place Oct. 18 at Charlevoix Elementary School. The event will benefit Charlevoix Public Schools' Bright Beginnings Preschool. Local Farm Bureau collecting for Ronald McDonald House

Charlevoix County Farm Bureau is working with the Michigan Farm Bureau's Promotion and Education Committee to assist Ronald McDonald Houses as part of the "Harvest Gathering" project.

The project, conducted by the local Farm Bureau Promotion and Education Committee works to collect non-perishable food items for use at Ronald McDonald Houses in Michigan.

Ronald McDonald Houses are homes where families of ill children may stay while their youngsters are hospitalized. There are currently houses in Detroit, Lansing, Ann Arbor and Grand Rapids. The houses are strategically located close to major medical centers.

This year the county farm bureau has taken the further step of donating half of all items collected to food pantries in Boyne City, Charlevoix and East Jordan. The collection will run from Oct. 15 through Nov. 15.

Items to be collected, but not limited to, include: canned vegetables, fruits, soups, condiments, juices in non-breakable containers, prepackaged meals, breakfast cereal, coffee, tea, cocoa, soaps, paper products and linens.

Individuals interested in donating should contact the County Farm Bureau office at 547-2043 or Joe Seidel, Charlevoix County Farm Bureau Promotion and Education chairman, at 547-2181.

Donations may be dropped off at all Charlevoix County Farm Bureau Insurance offices, local McDonald's restaurants, Charlevoix Area Hospital and until Oct. 31 at Kiteley's Farm Market.

Candidates discuss housing

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Candidates for Charlevoix's city council offered their thoughts on the local housing crunch that is displacing two groups of people, young families and the elderly.

All four candidates pointed to one source in the affordable housing debacle — Charlevoix's desirability as a vacation destination. They said this reality has resulted in high property values and the loss of year-round residences.

"There are so many people who want to live here that have unlimited funds and that dictates how much property will sell for," first ward candidate Bob Timms, said. "It's hard for people who work here to have a house if they didn't get one a few years ago."

Both Timms and his opposition, Dave Novotny, said this has led to the decline of young families and year-round residents locating here. They said in order for Charlevoix to thrive, there is definitely a need for affordable housing.

Timms said this isn't a major problem for the city government as it continues to generate tax revenue and he didn't see ways for city government to alleviate the situation.

He said he thinks the coming 24-unit May Street development that is being brought to town by Scott Dietze, of Boyne City, and his partner Robert Brooks, should help.

Novotny, who was formerly the president of the city housing commission, said there are a few barriers to the city helping ease the housing crunch, including limited space for new construction, difficulty getting state or federal assistance and opposition from residents.

He said that even if there is property available, "No one wants it in their neighborhood."

Novotny's solution was to grow out. He said the most practical place for affordable housing to flourish, is in the townships.

In the third ward race, former councilman A.J. Witthoeft's opinion of the affordable housing problem followed in line with Novotny that affordable housing is needed, but faces some pretty hefty barriers including space constraints. Incumbent Shirley Gibson's thought process is more akin to that of Timms.

Gibson said there is affordable housing in Charlevoix and mentioned Pine Cove Apartments and the Brooks and Dietze development.

"How much of it do we really need if there are vacancies all the time," she said.

She did recognize there is a lack of affordable single family residences.

Meningitis cases reported to health department

A case of bacterial meningitis was reported recently to the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, the health department that serves Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego counties.

This is in addition to two cases of viral meningitis reported in Antrim County last week.

The meningococcal germ is spread by direct close contact with nose or throat discharges of an infected person. Many people carry this particular germ in their nose and throat without any signs of illness, while others may develop serious symptoms. Although most people exposed to the meningococcus germ do not become seriously ill, some may develop sudden onset of fever, headache, nausea, vomiting, stiff neck and rash. Delirium and coma often occur.

Only people who have been in close contact need to be considered for preventative treatment with an antibiotic. Close contact includes household members, intimate contacts, health care personnel performing mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, daycare center playmates and staff, or persons having contact with the patient's oral secretions through kissing or sharing of food or beverages.

Casual contact, as might occur in a regular classroom, office or factory setting, is not significant enough to cause concern.

Symptoms may appear two to 10 days after exposure, but usually within five days. From the time a person is first infected until the germ is no longer present in discharges from the nose and throat, he or she may transmit the disease. Some patients who recover may have chronic damage to the nervous system. The disease is occasionally fatal.

Meningococcal disease is a severe bacterial infection of the bloodstream and the thin lining covering the brain and spinal cord (meningitis). It is a relatively rare disease and usually occurs as a single isolated event. Clusters of cases or outbreaks can occur, but are very unusual. Although anyone can get meningococcal disease, it is more common in infants and young children.

Preventive measures include identifying and treating close intimate contacts with antibiotics and maintaining good personal hygiene. Good personal hygiene is extremely important because it prevents many types of illnesses. Hygiene measures include hand washing and not exchanging oral and nasal secretions by kissing and sharing of personal items, food and drink.

What should city do about housing issue?

"It's hard to get a house under $150,000 that's not a dump," she said. "I'm thankful that I bought my house years ago or I wouldn't be able to afford a house in Charlevoix."

She said this is causing problems for the city which she described as an off-season ghost town.

"The neighborhoods are empty and I don't think that's good. I want Charlevoix to be a year-round community — it's good for everyone. But I'm not sure what needs to be done about it," she said.

With few young families moving to town and retirees steadily buying up property, all the candidates said the community is aging and Charlevoix needs to service its residents through assisted living accommodations.

"We have people who have lived all their lives in Charlevoix. This gives them the opportunity to continue to live in town where their friends and family are, rather than being toted off 30 to 40 miles away," Novotny said.

But they couldn't agree on where this type of facility belongs.

The city planning commission recommended to city council that it be located in the R-1 and R-2 single family residential areas with a special use permit.

Novotny believes the planning commission's recommendation is acceptable. But he feels the city should be able to designate areas where they would be permitted.

Timms on the other hand feels the R-4, multiple family residential zone is the most appropriate place. And if R-4 property doesn't exist then property could be rezoned.

"It's (assisted living facility) a multiple dwelling type of thing and is a commercial enterprise. So, I think it should fall under R-4," he said.

Gibson's train of thought when it comes to assisted living facilities follows that of Timms. She said this type of housing belongs in the R-4 multiple family residential zone and if permitted in the single family residential areas it would devalue neighborhoods.

Witthoeft said he is still researching the assisted living issue.

The planning commission has made some changes in its recommendation to city council regarding the conditions of assisted living in the R-1 and R-2 districts. A second public hearing before the planning commission has been scheduled to take place at 6 p.m., Nov. 10 to discuss those changes.

Mackinaw beats NWA

Mackinac Island beat Northwest Academy's soccer team 5-3 recently.

The first minutes of the game looked like a sure repeat of an earlier mercy by Mackinac (Island).

The Lakers scored first taking less than a minute of game time, but then the Northwest defense woke up and held them to a 3-0 lead by half time.

Coach Richardson credited Alanna Leslie and Tim Riley with many excellent clears on defense.

Senior Josh Kitson had a strong game playing both sweeper and in goal for a few minutes.

"In the second half we really came alive. We began to penetrate their defense and get some shots on net. Trevor Londgren had an excellent second half getting the hat trick for the (Northwest) Navigators." Richardson said. "We figured out how to beat them, unfortunately too late."

He also praised the strong play of senior Tiffany Potter for her challenging the Mackinac keeper which set up the second goal.

Rayders lose second straight basketball game

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

After starting the season 10-0 and rising to a ranking of third in Class C according to the Associated Press, the Charlevoix Rayders girls basketball squad, lost its second straight game, 66-46 at home against Kalkaska.

As Rayder leading scorer, Grace Farrell watched helplessly from the sidelines due to an ankle injury, Charlevoix was the victim of 46 points scored by Kalkaska star Maria Kasza.

The Rayders led 13-9 after the first quarter, but a 22-9 Blazer advantage in the second quarter gave them a 31-22 halftime lead.

The teams played a relatively close third quarter with Kalkaska leading 46-34 heading into the final period.

Kalkaska was unstoppable in the fourth stanza, however, outscoring Charlevoix single-handedly, 15-12. The rest of the Blazers scored only five in the period.

Sophomore Shannon Dibble led the Rayders with 12 points, including 7 for 8 shooting from the free throw line. Jamie Pettis and Shayna Drost each scored eight. Sarah Cross tallied seven points and seven rebounds.

Kari Way scored four and grabbed 12 rebounds. Alyssia McDonough added five points and nine rebounds.

Charlevoix (10-2 overall, 5-2 conference) plays away twice this week, Tuesday, Oct. 14 at Boyne City, and Thursday, Oct. 16 at Elk Rapids. Results from Tuesday's game were unavailable by press time.

Football team loses Friday to Grayling

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

Charlevoix lost its third straight football game last Friday night, falling to Grayling, 33-12.

The Rayders led 12-6 after the opening period, scoring on a 15-yard touchdown pass from Cody Crain to Ben Bergmann and a Mitchell Klooster 79-yard interception return.

The Vikings benefited from four Charlevoix turnovers in scoring seven points in the second quarter, 13 in the third and seven in the fourth.

Taylor Fisher led the defense with 12 tackles and an interception. Russell Williams had eight tackles and an interception. Andrew Bullard also had eight tackles. Troy Coen had seven tackles and Klooster had five.

On the offensive side of the ball, Williams ran for 53 yards on 12 carries. Crain rushed for 31 yards on 11 attempts.

Crain passed for 99 yards with 15 completions in 39 attempts. Bergmann caught five for 40 yards, Klooster had four catches for 14 yards and Fisher hauled in three for 29 yards.

Charlevoix (1-6 overall, 1-4 conference) hosts the Associated Press Number One team in Division 7, Traverse City St. Francis (7-0, 5-0) on Friday, Oct. 17 at Kipke Field.

Lange project going before township

Some may wonder why Lange is bothering to request a rezone when all of the property is for sale.

Rose Brachel, with ReMax of Charlevoix, has the listing. Robinson said he and Lange had been marketing the property quietly from Lansing, but were too far from Charlevoix to make it work.

"In our economy, everything is for sale," he said. "If we could get out of it and make a decent buck, we would. But that's unlikely, we'll probably develop it over time."

He said if the zoning change that is currently being pursued is approved, it would make the property more marketable and easily developed and would get he and Lange ready for the next step, getting municipal water and sewer to the site.

"Then it will be ready to go. That's a ways off though," he said.

In a letter Charlevoix Township Clerk Carol Martin wrote to Lange on Sept. 19, she informed him that the township board intends to begin construction of the sewer extension to the Pine Point Area, along Boyne City-Charlevoix Road, in the spring of 2004. She stated that they are anticipating service being available to that area about 18 months after construction begins.

In March, crews were busy clearing part of the land off US-31 between Bethany Lutheran Church and the Vidosh Landscaping in Hayes Township, to make way for a road and utilities that will serve the development.

While most of the PUD will wait for that service, the hotel approved piece of the development may move ahead sooner because it does not require the sewer hook-up.

The hotel, Americinn Motel and Suites, will be a two-story, 54 unit structure with an indoor swimming pool and on-site parking. The hotel will span almost 4 acres and will be located northeast of Bethany Lutheran Church, fronting US-31.

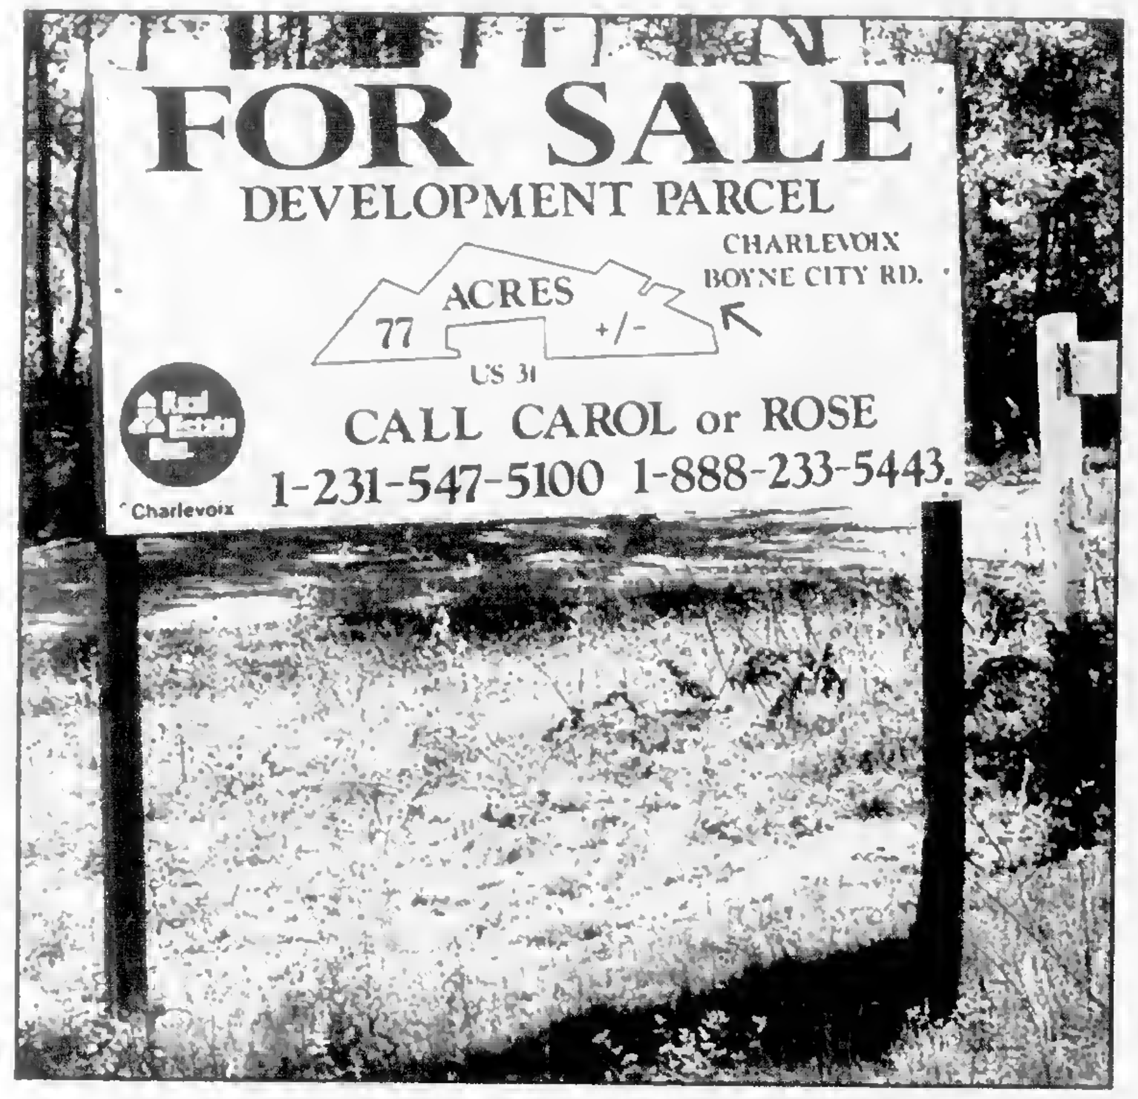
The hotel project will be undertaken by David Haywood, a developer from Lansing, who was expecting to break ground this summer.

Haywood did not return calls regarding this project.

But Robinson said this part of the project is still being planned for — it has just been delayed.

"In a post 9-11 world, hotels are not easy to put together. The hospitality industry is tough right now," he said.

According to Hayes Township Clerk Ethel Knepp, since the hotel property was rezoned from A-1, agricultural to C-1 commercial, almost two years ago, no requests for further projects on the Hayes side have been submitted.



The Charlevoix Township Planning Commission will hear a request from Dorian Lange, owner of this parcel, to rezone the Charlevoix Township portion from commercial to planned unit development. Lange has big development plans for the property if it doesn't sell first. (Photo by Julie Witthoeft)

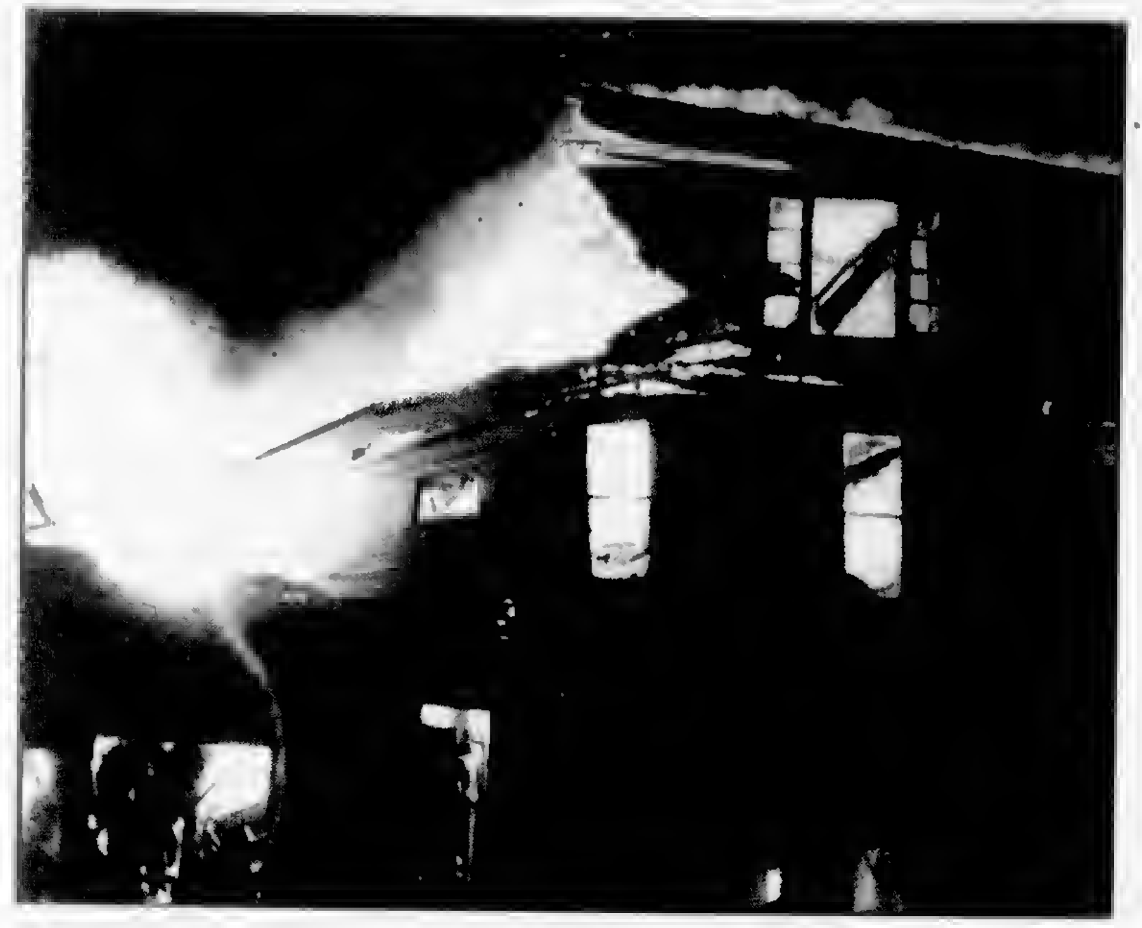
Sunset Lodge burning etched into local history



Butter's prized grand piano (lower left) will disappear within minutes during the hotel fire. (Photo courtesy of the Charlevoix Historical Society)

On Saturday, Oct. 6, 1956, Charlevoix witnessed one of the most spectacular and terrifying fires in its history when the Butters Sunset Lodge burned to the ground during a howling windstorm.

The large three-story structure, built in the early years of the twentieth century, was located close to the Lake Michigan bluff on Michigan Avenue, approximately where the north end of La Croft Condominiums is now.

It had once been the residence of Ransom E. Olds, founder of the Oldsmobile automobile company and a longtime summer resident of Charlevoix.

Olds sold it to the Butters a few years after World War II and they gradually remodeled it into one of the town's most popular tourist destinations. Each of its 20 rooms boasted a large picture window. All but two of the beautifully furnished rooms had their own bathrooms, the Butters had a separate apartment, and there were a coffee shop and a small outdoor swimming pool, a Charlevoix first.

Summer continued into fall as terribly dry and unseasonably warm that year. Parched leaves hung on the town's trees like so much tinder. But that Saturday the weather turned brutal as screaming winds and slashing rain roared in from the lake. The rain ceased in late afternoon, but the wind kept up its primeval howl at a steady forty miles per hour. The Butters left the empty hotel at 7 p.m.

At 7:30 p.m., Rhea Hess, who lived next door, and Mrs. Charles Hampton, who lived at 307 Michigan Avenue (the Dunes Condominium area) both saw flames in the downstairs parlor and called the fire department. An unnamed woman later said she thought she had heard an explosion, looked out and saw the house on fire.

When the fire brigade arrived, their only way in was to knock out a window, which allowed the wind to swoop in and act like a giant bellows. Flames engulfed the entire structure and in minutes it turned into an inferno stoked by powerful blasts of wind that reached 55 miles per hour. Every window blew out and shattered.

Billowing, flapping walls of flame and smoke towered over one hundred feet into the sky. The sound produced was like a thousand freight trains.

Spectators on downtown Bridge Street later said the reflection of the flames in a still-wet north hill pavement looked like lava was pouring from the rim of a volcano down toward the bridge.

The fire department called Petoskey, East Jordan and the Coast Guard for assistance, with Boyne City on standby. Volunteers pitched in to help save the Hess and Carson homes which flanked the lodge. New paint on the Hess house began to peel and drop off.

The interior became so hot that the synthetic materiel of its draperies melted and the piano became too hot to touch. It was feared the house might spontaneously combust. But the wind shifted just enough to the northwest so the men could hose it down and saved it.

Across the street, elderly Judge Floyd Supp and his wife, in their house second from the Dixon corner, couldn't leave through their front door as the blistering heat tore across US-31 like an open blast furnace. A fence was broken down in their back yard for their escape. Thousands of glowing embers showered the north side as residents took to their hoses to save their own homes.

Most of the embers landed within three blocks, but some were later discovered floating in Lake Charlevoix. The wind had carried them close to a mile. Had the rains not come that day, the parched trees along the Dixon Street corridor could have fueled a conflagration.

The worst of the fire took just under an hour to play out, but the firefighters stayed on the scene all night. A wind-fueled outbreak in the basement occurred around dawn, then they let the remains smolder all the next day.

The fire department lost between 600 and 700 feet of hose. All that was left of Butters Sunset Lodge were scorched remnants of lawn furniture. Bill Fochtman had managed to save the Butters' house trailer, parked on the lawn, by driving his tow truck through the flames. But the Butters lost everything else except what they wore. The $100,000 loss was only partially covered by insurance, and they did not rebuild. They did manage a motel in Detroit and returned to Charlevoix to manage a rooming house on West Dixon for a few years in the summer, but the glory days of their Sunset Lodge were gone for good.

It can be found at the society's Harsha House Museum, 103 State Street, 1-4 p.m., Wednesday through Saturday at the Shop of the Gulls, 205 Bridge Street, or the Bridge Street Book Shop, 405 Bridge Streeet.

ident of the development group, presented the commission with a letter of request to have the rezoning public hearing. Matchett said at that time Boss described a "fairly dense R-1 development for what is there now."

In Marion Township's R-1 district, each home must be on a lot that is a minimum of 18,000 square feet, or just under half an acre.

Boss said he is planning to bring 100 low to middle income home sites to lots that will be a minimum of 20,000 square feet. He said he is aiming to keep purchase prices under $120,000.

In September, Boss bought 40 acres of land from the Dvoracek on the west side of Loeb Road, one-eighth of a mile north of Veenstra Road. He acquired by land swap another 23 acres just south of Veenstra Road off Loeb Road from the Church of God. The property is commonly known as part of "The Church Camp."

Matchett said the sewage disposal will be on-site and the group has not mentioned accessing the school's sewer line that runs down Marion Center Road and ties into the city's system.

However he said he has heard some talk of tapping into municipal water.

Boss said he has spoken with representatives of the health department and the sites are excellent for on-site well and septic.

At the upcoming public hearing, the planning commission will decide whether it needs further information which will require a second meeting or if it is ready to make a recommendation to the township board, the governmental body that will have the final say. The Charlevoix County Planning Commission will also review the request and make its recommendation before it goes to the township board.

Marina, park back on agenda

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Following a brief hiatus from marina and East Park renovation talk, Charlevoix's city council, downtown development authority (DDA) and members of the community will reconvene next week on the subject.

The joint DDA and council meeting is scheduled to take place at 7 p.m., Oct. 27 at the American Legion hall, located on Garfield Avenue.

Representatives from both Pollack Design Associates of Ann Arbor and United Design Associates of Cheboygan will attend. They plan to present information and preliminary cost estimates they have gathered during the preliminary engineering phase of the marina and park renovation project.

"There have been no surprises at this point," Peter Pollack, principal designer with Pollack Design Associates, said.

Since January, United Design and Pollack have worked together to create a total site plan with United Design primarily in charge of marina engineering and Pollack steering park engineering.

The combined cost to complete the engineering so far is $166,764.15. The city has been offered a grant from the state Waterways Commission for $75,581.49 which covers over 50 percent of the marina engineering total which came to $121,000.

The DDA agreed to fund the remaining costs.

United Design's preliminary study has included contracting with Charlevoix's Ferguson and Chamberlain Associates to do both topographic and hydrographic surveys. The surveys located pipelines, electrical and telephone lines and sewers and determined limitations to areas proposed for

District to ask MDOT to put in traffic light

By JULIE WITTHOEFT

The Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education is making further attempts to keep its students from being injured while crossing Bridge Street.

The board voted unanimously in favor of requesting that the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) install a traffic light at Bridge and Garfield streets that would be active for one hour both before and after school.

Superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools Dr. John Sturock drafted a letter formally making the request and sent it out with the board's support after its meeting Oct. 13.

"I think it's a practical solution," Sturock said. "We may not get the answer we like, but we can at least ask."

Over the past two decades parents and community officials have been searching for effective new ways to keep students attending school at the current middle school and former high school, at 108 East Garfield Avenue, from crossing Bridge Street — a four-lane highway.

School board president and Charlevoix city police chief Dennis Halverson said, "This is one of the toughest nuts I've tried to crack. It's been a precarious situation with no easy solution."

In August of 2000 a group of parents and area residents urged the school board to look

Benefit to aid local cancer survivor

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

A Charlevoix man who has knocked at death's door three times in his two-year battle with cancer is asking for the community's help in his final stages of recovery.

Tim McCullough, 27, was diagnosed with testicular cancer in June of 2000. At that time he was living life to its fullest, racing motorcycles and working at Harbor Industries.

He noticed he wasn't feeling up to par and went for a check up at Northern Michigan Hospital. The doctor told him he had stage three testicular cancer that had traveled throughout his body and they would have to remove his right testicle within the week.

After that July surgery, he underwent four grueling months of chemotherapy and 11 more surgeries, seven of which were at the University of Michigan Hospital in Ann Arbor.

In August of this year, University of Michigan doctors said they had done all they could. The chemotherapy has killed the cancer which has been in remission since October of 2002, but McCullough still had teratoma, a cancerous residue, in his lungs and if left untreated he would die.

McCullough turned to Lance Armstrong's autobiography called "It's Not About the Bike." There he found Dr. Larry Einhorn, Armstrong's doctor who discovered the "cure" for testicular cancer in 1979.

"I figured if Dr. Einhorn couldn't fix me, no one could," he said.

McCullough contacted the doctor, who operates out of Indiana University Hospital in Indianapolis. Einhorn immediately assured him that he would perform the surgery and McCullough would go on to live a full life.

On Oct. 2 Einhorn operated on his left lung where the teratoma was more of a threat. McCullough will take four to six weeks to heal and then will need to go back in the middle of November for a second surgery on his right lung.

He is looking forward to having a clean bill of health once again. But having been unemployed over the past 18 months while receiving countless medical treatments has taken its toll on the family of five that are now burdened with over $50,000 in medical bills.

"It's expensive living alone much less with three kids and medical bills," he said.

His Medicaid will only pay his surgical expenses, leaving doctors bills, medication and travel costs up to he and his wife, Shelley.

Shelley, a Charlevoix native, is the assistant manager at Island Airways. Through her job she met Jean Kinsley, the sister of Paul Welke, owner of the Island Airways.

Kinsley along with Dody Bedford, a cancer survivor and Keith Pintler and John Fiegen, owners of the Brothers Place, a Beaver Island restaurant, have organized a benefit to help the McCullough family.

"My husband is a cancer survivor, my best friend is a cancer survivor. Someone has to help these kids," Kinsley said.

The event will take place from 1 to 4 p.m., Oct. 25 at the Brothers Place in downtown St. James.

It will include pizza, desserts, kids games, door prizes donated by area merchants, a raffle and more.

"We are so grateful they are willing to do this for us," Shelley said.

Kinsley has also set up a bank account at Charlevoix State Bank for the family. Those who want to donate should make checks payable to Shelley McCullough and deposit them at the Beaver Island or Charlevoix bank branches.

MDOT needs to put light at intersection

EDITORIAL

It is nice to see that the Charlevoix Community Schools' Board is attempting to address a dangerous problem hanging over its head — students crossing Bridge Street to get to the new middle school.

Recently, the board voted unanimously to request that the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) install a traffic light at the Bridge and Garfield streets intersection that would be active for one hour both before and after school.

This intersection has been a problem for the school district for around 20 years.

Students crossing at this portion of Bridge Street have been seen dodging traffic and narrowly being missed by vehicles.

It is only a matter of time before someone gets hurt under the current situation.

So far, the only suggestions for this problem which have been explored were a crossing guard at the corner of Garfield and Bridge streets — which the board decided against — and the addition of more school bus routes on the west side of Bridge Street.

But, students still cross at that intersection and are still at risk.

The idea of prohibiting students from crossing at that intersection wouldn't be successful, so the next best thing is to get the traffic to stop for them through the use of a traffic light.

But, the district needs the approval of MDOT, which has denied requests like this in the past.

It is time for MDOT to change its mind.

If MDOT cares about student safety as much as the people of Charlevoix, then this state department will see that this traffic light makes sense.

Hopefully MDOT will agree and put up that light before something terrible happens.

Writer attends opening of new 'Max' theater in Detroit

Edith Gilbert

'Behind the news'

How I wish that Andy Tuck, Charlevoix's 12-year-old viola virtuoso, could have been with me for the Gala opening of "the Max," Detroit's new symphony hall!

I would have told him that during the 1960s, the orchestra hall, an acoustical legend, had been abandoned to pigeons, whose feathers littered the best seats in the house. Fortunately, before it was to be demolished, a group of preservationists declared the hall a historic landmark. The first major restoration occurred between 1970 and 1990 and the building's exquisite architectural details, decorative painting and gold leaf were replicated.

Andy would have been thrilled to attend the Gala Inaugural Opening of the $60 million Max M. Fisher Music Center on Oct. 11. This event reflected the culmination of a vision that championed the redevelopment of an urban neighborhood. In its entirety the Orchestra Place project now represents an investment of $220 million. The early phases included an office complex, restaurants and a parking structure that has already transformed Midtown Detroit. Adjacent and linked to "the Max" will be a Cultural Arts "campus" for the new Detroit High School for the Fine and Performing Arts to be opened in 2005.

If Andy had been with me he would have recognized a number of Charlevoix summer residents at the black tie affair. He would have heard the renowned Itzhak Perlman play Beethoven's Concerto in D major and making his violin sing, accompanied by the 93 chair symphony orchestra conducted by Maestro Neeme Jarvi! He would have heard the World Premiere composition by a young black composer, Jonathan Holland of Flint, Michigan called Motor City Dance Mix, a blend of violins, brass and drums that brought the audience to its feet.

Before intermission, he would have heard my charming neighbor, Peter Cummings, chairman of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, accept congratulations from an emissary of President Bush on behalf of his father in law, Max M. Fisher. And he would have heard Cummings urge everyone to enjoy Aaron Copland's Symphony Number 3 after the intermission.

Andy would have noticed Gov. Granholm, wearing a stunning beige gown that complimented her blonde hair. She was seated next to Julie Cummings in the first row center of the balcony.

When I first arrived in the gorgeous new atrium lobby, a band was playing, drinks were offered, and delicious lobster and salmon hors d'oeuvres were being passed on small silver trays.

I also noticed a press table!

"Ha ha," I thought. "I am a member of the press." So I signed, "Charlevoix Courier," and was given a pink press card tied to a ribbon, which I proudly wore around my neck.

After the concert, everyone was expected to stay for a gourmet dinner and dancing. Various sections of the Max were designated to serve an elegant buffet supper. Each of the thousand guests had previously been assigned table numbers. My table sparkled like a diamond with silver chairs, a silver cloth and a slew of assorted silver candlesticks.

Instead of attending the opening, Andy auditioned and was accepted to play with the Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra that will perform on 2 p.m., Sunday, Nov. 9 in the Congregational Church in Charlevoix.

Still, I fully expect that someday he will be playing at "the Max"!

Against Wal-Mart

Editor:

The first reason I oppose Wal-Mart coming to Charlevoix is my concern for the environment.

No field just sits. To us "Tree Huggers," it generously provides a habitat.

For everyone it washes the ground water that becomes our drinking water. Pavement, especially in the massive size Wal-Mart proposes, contaminates our water with its run off.

As a parent of two women, the second reason I oppose Wal-Mart is its discrimination against female employees in wages, promotions and training.

A third reason to oppose more Wal-Mart stores in Michigan is economic. Why should our taxes subsidize a company that nets a profit of $8 billion a year? According to the "National NOW Times," Wal-Mart documents show employees how to apply for welfare assistance.

Wal-Mart keeps its cost down to offer some lower prices by low salaries and failing to provide affordable health care benefits.

Thank you to Robert Hoffman and the rest of the committee working to keep Charlevoix off the Wall of Shame.

Against housing project

Editor:

Thank you for your timely article on "Housing Project on Loeb Planned" in the Oct. 15 Charlevoix Courier. Many residents on Loeb Road have heard rumors of an "affordable housing" project but until your article have been unable to get any particulars.

Of course our first concern was to protect our property values which we have worked so hard to improve since 1990 when property values were averaged at $58,000, having now reached an average of $155,000. We do not wish to have our properties devalued. With further research we have become even more concerned for what a development of this size will do to our fragile ecosystem.

The plan further states that any residential development of this size should be limited. The land is unsuitable to septic tank absorption fields, building foundations and roadways. The hydric wetland soils and greater than 18 percent steep slopes are unsuited for septic system installations and road construction building site development beyond the presently zoned limitations of two acres per homestead.

It is our hope that both the Charlevoix County Planning Commission and the Marion Township Board do some extensive research before allowing any re-zoning or site plan review requests that will incorporate a higher density residential use. It is also our hope that all concerned township residents will attend the Oct. 27 Marion Township Board 7 p.m. meeting to stand up and be heard.

Secretary of State collecting food

Secretary of State Terri Lynn Land announced recently that Department of State branch offices are once again participating in the Michigan Harvest Gathering, the statewide food drive that runs Oct. 20 through Nov. 3.

For the fifth consecutive year, anyone wishing to donate canned goods and other nonperishable food items can bring them to the Michigan Harvest Gathering collection boxes available in all 173 branch offices. Pledge cards will also be available for those wishing to contribute money in lieu of food items. Branch offices do not collect pledge cards, but envelopes for mailing the cards are provided.

Branch offices are open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays. Branch office hours on Wednesdays are from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m., with the exception of the city center locations, which are open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Many branch offices in smaller communities may close for a lunch hour.

For a complete list of branch office locations and hours, visit the Department of State web site at www.Michigan.gov/sos.

In 2002, the Department of State collected 13,157 pounds of food and $85. Contributions for state government totaled 73,771 pounds of food and $28,483. Each year, the Michigan Harvest Gathering sets a goal to reach 250,000 pounds of food and $250,000 in public and private contributions. This goal has been met repeatedly throughout the campaign's history as evident in last year's total contributions of 680,218 pounds of food and $323,217.

Hunger does not respect age, gender or geography. The Hunger in America 2001 study about emergency food clients in Michigan reported that:

- More than 774,000 people use food banks in Michigan.
- About 44 percent of the recipients were children and 6 percent were elderly.
- 70 percent of the recipients live below the poverty level.
- Only 38 percent use food stamps.
- 40 percent live in rural or suburban areas.

All Michigan Harvest Gathering proceeds are donated to the Food Bank Council of Michigan and its member agencies. Money raised helps the food banks recover the transportation costs of collecting and distributing food to local emergency feeding programs, as well as purchasing hard-to-obtain food items.

Any food collected stays in that community helping friends and neighbors facing a tough time.

The Michigan Harvest Gathering began in 1991 and is a collaborative effort among government, private corporations, local businesses, the farming community and individuals. Through the efforts of the Food Bank Council of Michigan and its members, more than 5.5 million pounds of food and $3.7 million have been raised since the campaign began.

Charlevoix resident gets 'extra mile award' honors

Charlevoix resident Paula Dietel went the extra mile for customers and coworkers and earned an award from the Family Independence Agency.

Dietel, a family independence manager with the Antrim County Family Independence Agency office in Bellaire, was one of nine agency employees around the state honored for good work, teamwork and providing quality customer service. Dietel received the agency director's "Going the Extra Mile" award during a ceremony Oct. 1.

She has worked for the FIA for 23 years.

"These staff members have provided quality services for our customers, encouraged and facilitated cooperation among staff, demonstrated initiative and developed ideas that resulted in positive change," said Family Independence Agency director Nannette M. Bowler. "They are valuable employees and coworkers that make the FIA a better place to work."

Dietel was nominated for the award for her leadership, integrity and commitment to excellence.

The Going the Extra Mile Program was started this year and the October program is the first scheduled quarterly program. Awardees were nominated by peers and/or managers and were selected through a regional process.

BASES celebrates 10 years in Charlevoix

This month BASES Teen Center celebrates its tenth year of operation in the Charlevoix area.

Started around the kitchen table of Scott and Celia Kelly, BASES was incorporated as a nonprofit organization in October of 1993. Since then BASES has focused on its mission: To provide a safe, drug-free environment for teenagers and to offer substance abuse prevention, education and intervention services to young people and their families.

During the past decade BASES took over the operation of the teen center and became involved in starting the county-wide program known as Recovery High with the Charlevoix County Prohate Court. More recently BASES has made substantial improvements in its facility at 208 West Lincoln Street in Charlevoix and paid off its mortgage.

The staff of BASES includes Scott Kelly, executive director, Celia Partida Kelly, program director, and Tory Worth, prevention specialist.

The 10 member board of directors includes Debbie Neidhammer of Boyne City, who has been involved with BASES since the beginning.

BASES has helped approximately 1500 teenagers over the past 10 years.

Regarding the future, Scott Kelly said, "We look forward to the time when our substance abuse services are no longer needed. In the meantime we will continue to provide all of the support we can to the young people in our community."

High-tech helicopter to land at Charlevoix Area Hospital

A University of Michigan Health System Survival Flight, whose previously scheduled visit to Charlevoix Area Hospital was scrapped due to bad weather, will make a landing on the hospital's rooftop heliport on Wednesday, Oct. 22.

The high-tech emergency helicopter, used to transport patients who are seriously ill or injured, will make a special non-urgent journey to Charlevoix Area Hospital to show off its lifesaving capabilities and get acquainted with the hospital's new heliport and emergency department.

Part of the University of Michigan Health System Emergency Medicine Department, the twin-engine Bell 430 helicopter is expected to touch down on the hospital's landing pad around 11 a.m., where it will remain until mid-afternoon. Local physicians, hospital hoard members, area EMS personnel and the Coast Guard commander will welcome the Survival Flight crew.

The general public is invited to view the landing to get a close look at the state-of-the-art chopper and learn more about triage skills used to care for and transport critically ill patients.

This is the twentieth year of the University of Michigan Health System's Survival Flight. The program's 50-member crew operates three helicopters, a Cessna jet and specially equipped ground transportation used to evacuate and transfer ill or traumatized patients, newborns in need of specialized intensive care and organs destined for transplant to regional hospitals across continental North America and parts of Canada.

"When a high level of care is called for, Survival Flight can help ensure local patients receive all the medical attention they need," Bill Jackson, Charlevoix Area Hospital CEO, said. "This visit offers an excellent opportunity to strengthen our connection to one of the nation's top air ambulance programs, as well as the University of Michigan hospitals and health centers."

More information about the UMHS Survival Flight visit to Charlevoix Area Hospital is available by calling Roger Sievertson, vice president for Hospital Support Services, at (231) 547-4024.

Area health department studying septic disposal

A feasibility analysis of a multi-county system for the treatment and disposal of septic waste will be pursued.

About 40 septic system professionals attended a recent meeting convened by the Board of Health of the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency to discuss the pros and cons of developing regional septic waste disposal capabilities in the four-county service area served by the health agency.

During the meeting, James Minster, a professional engineer with Gourdie-Fraser, reviewed how Grand Traverse County responded to its septic waste crisis with a centralized septic waste disposal facility. In addition, Matt Campbell from the Water Division of the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality reviewed the status of septic waste disposal across the state.

"This was just a first, preliminary step to developing alternatives to current land disposal," Gerald Chase, a health officer fort he Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, said. "The members of the board of health have many concerns about current septic waste disposal, but they did not want to pursue even preliminary discussions internally until we knew whether or not there was support from the septic system industry."

The vast majority of septic waste it the health department's four-county service area which includes Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego counties, is spread on open fields. In addition to the obvious sanitary issues, growth and development throughout northwest Michigan precludes this practice indefinitely.

According to Chase, there are approximately 60,000 to 80,000 septic systems in the four-county area, with about 1,200 new systems added every year. Without intervention, sewage disposal will become a major crisis within just a few years, he said.

None of the existing municipal sewage systems in he four counties are designed to process septage waste. The Septage Waste Disposal Feasibility Study will include several possible alternatives to spreading septic waste on open fields. One regional alternative may be to contract with several municipalities to modify their system to accept a limited amount of septic waste.

The cost to consumers will likely increase somewhat no matter what option is ultimately chosen. For example, the Grand Traverse System currently charges $150 to process a typical septic tank of 1,000 gallons, in addition to the fee charged by eh septic waste hauler. The recommended pumping schedule is every five years but the average septic tank owner contracts for his/her system to be pumped closer to once every 10 years.

"No matter what alternative is pursued, this is a long-term project," Chase said. "It will likely be several years before any plan is implemented."

Written comments regarding the Septage Waste Disposal System Feasibility should be sent to the Program and Evaluation Committee of the Board of Health, in care of Gerald Chase, health officer, Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, 220 West Garfield Avenue, Charlevoix, MI 49720. Comments must be received by Nov. 15.

The Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency is the local health department. Its staff is dedicated to preventing disease and injury and prompting healthy communities. For more information about the study contact Chase at (231) 547-6523.

Building not saved in new Appletree plan

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

A plan to save the historic Appletree building has met too many road blocks, reducing the project to salvaging its appearance.

"The Robys are looking to recreate that portion of the building. The new building will be a replica of a page in Charlevoix's history," Dan Barron, the Charlevoix attorney for Steven and Annemarie Roby, said.

The Robys, who live in Farmington Hills and have a second home in Charlevoix, submitted an application to the zoning board of appeals meeting to request variances to relocate half of the Appletree building to their lot at 101 Auld Street.

The Robys have been planning since August to save the historic building located at 224 Bridge Street which used to be the real estate office of Charlevoix's famed architect, the late Earl Young, from demolition. A new three story commercial and residential development is planned for its space.

But when Barron attended the Oct. 15 public hearing he said the plan had taken yet another turn.

Barron explained that after further investigation Phil Jonassen, a structural mover from Walkerville, said the structure was too feeble to withstand being cut in half and moved to the north side of town and would likely crumble.

Jonassen told the Robys that it may withstand the move if it is reinforced. But to fortify it for the move that may or may not work, would take "tens of thousands of dollars" and a couple months.

"Time is not a luxury the developers are willing to provide at this point," Barron said.

Jerry Rutter and Scott Zager of Elk Rapids, who are developing the current Appletree parcel, plan to break ground during the first week of November.

Barron furthered explained that the possibility of the move being successful is greater if the building is kept in tact. But neighbors surrounding the Auld street lot have protested the whole building being relocated there because it would be a tight fit, encroaching on their property and the nearby alley.

So while the whole building can't be saved because of opposition from neighbors and half the building can't be saved because of its structural weakness, the Robys plan to move forward with "plan c" — saving the building's appearance.

The developers have agreed to allow the Robys to acquire the stone facade, slate roof and other interior and exterior components of the building to replicate it on their Auld Street lot.

"Even if we can only take a little piece of history with us the project still has compelling merits— it will benefit the neighborhood, the entire community, our kids and generations to come," Barron said of the new plan.

In spite of this major twist in the plan, the public hearing was able to move forward because the variance requests were the same.

The proposed lot is a non-conforming lot of record which means the Robys have the right to build a single family residential structure on it.

"The most compelling aspect of what is being proposed in terms of this being the right fit, is you have a minimum sized lot of record and a minimum sized dwelling that will have charm and beauty," Barron told the board members.

The board voted unanimously to grant the Robys' variance requests.

City zoning administrator Diane Manore said, "They (the board) felt his proposal was greatly reduced from the original and pretty much it was the minimum. There are a lot of non-conforming lots in the city and you can't deny a person the right to build on them."

The neighbors also agree that this plan is an appropriate use for the parcel.

Steve Bennett, whose property is directly adjacent to the Robys' Auld Street lot, said, "Size wise it fits and it adheres to what we want. We have 12 feet between our property line and the edge of the building. That's reasonable."

Barron said that Rutter and Zager have agreed to allow them to remove the materials for the new construction. The Robys will likely commence construction this year and they plan to use the building for efficiency living quarters and an art studio.

The Robys want to use parts of the old Appletree building to replicate it on this land. (File photo)

Rezone granted for major development

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Charlevoix Township's Planning Commission recommended approval of planned unit development zoning for a parcel of land that could see substantial construction in the future.

David Robinson, chief operating officer for Dorian Lange and Lange Limited LLC of Okemos, submitted an application to the planning commission to have the 28 acres Lange owns in Charlevoix Township, near the intersection of Boyne City-Charlevoix Road and US-31, rezoned from commercial to PUD, planned unit development.

At the commission's Oct. 15 public hearing in this matter, its members voted unanimously in favor of recommending the township board approve the rezone.

Planning commissioner Chuck Center said the commissioners felt the property was well suited for PUD zoning as it allows several uses.

The entire proposed development will cover 73 acres, with 44 acres in Hayes Township. The whole plan includes a hotel, office space, senior housing, a restaurant, retail space, apartments, condominiums and self-storage buildings.

One concern that Center brought up at the meeting was density. But he said the township's newly revised zoning ordinance addresses that concern by imposing specific stipulations as to the amount of open space required and the number of allowable units per acre in the PUD district.

"The new ordinance spells out very specifically what you can and can't do in the PUD," he said.

Center said he was also more comfortable recommending approval because of the control the township will have.

"We have better control of the total project," he said.

Each proposed site has to be approved by the township it's planned for and the Hayes Township hotel is currently the only approved site.

According to Robinson, the Charlevoix Township portion of the project will be used for retail stores, affordable apartments and condominiums.

In a previous interview, Robinson said if the PUD zoning change is approved by the township board, it would make the property more marketable and easily developed and would get he and Lange ready for the next step, getting municipal water and sewer to the site.

The township board intends to begin construction of the sewer extension to the Pine Point Area, along Boyne City/Charlevoix Road, in the spring of 2004. Service is anticipated to be available to that area about 18 months after construction begins.

The Charlevoix County Planning Commission will review the request and make its recommendation to the township board at its meeting at 7 p.m., Nov. 6 in the Pine Lake Room at the Charlevoix County Building.

I can do that.
Just Ask!

It's a pretty bold statement, considering we don't even know the question yet. Northwestern Bank is locally owned and each office is locally staffed and managed. Decisions are made right here by people with the answers, who are empowered to do what needs to be done. The person you ask is the person who'll make sure it happens.

You'll never get answers like, "That's not my department." Or, "You'll have to call this 800 number." When you ask anyone at Northwestern Bank, big things happen right away.

If your bank "can't do that," maybe it's time you found one that can.

Local schools score well overall on MEAP

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

The Michigan Department of Treasury recently released statewide scores for the winter of 2003 Michigan Education Assessment Program (MEAP).

Elementary school principal Dick Swenor and middle school principal Keith Haske both said that overall they are pleased with the scores, but were disappointed with the students' performance in writing.

Swenor said last year's fourth grade students' writing scores came back 7 percent below the state average with 40 percent of those included in the scoring having met the state standard and none having exceeding it.

In the comments provided by those who graded the test, Swenor said the overarching problem that was cited was a lack of detail about the subject.

In spite of the low writing marks, the class produced high reading scores. He said 13 percent more students scored at or above the state standard than the state average. And their math scores were strong, with 75 percent of those included in the scoring having met or exceeded the state standard — 10 percent more than the state average.

A similar testing issue was seen in writing scores from the seventh grade class that was tested at the middle school.

Haske said he and his staff were surprised and disappointed at the low writing scores which exceeded the state average, but weren't at the level he had expected. Forty-five percent of those tested met or exceeded the state standard for writing.

Haske thought a writing and reading semester that had been added to the school's curriculum would beef up those writing scores.

He said social studies scores for both the fifth and eighth grades were also low, which followed the state trend.

Thirty-eight percent of fifth graders that were tested met or exceeded the state standard for social studies understanding. They scored the second highest in the Char-Em Intermediate School District with Harbor Springs being the only school with higher social studies scores.

Both fifth and eighth graders tested scored high on both science and math and did well in reading.

In spite of these two areas of weakness, social studies and writing, Haske said that overall the middle school improved its standing in the ISD.

The low writing scores on the MEAP test at both schools have prompted administrators to review ways to help students improve.

The teachers and administrators met Oct. 15 to discuss the scores and opted to conduct a district-wide writing workshop during the staff in-service Dec. 11.

Haske said it would have been possible to use the data from the MEAP scores to make other curriculum improvements for this school year but the scores came in late.

Instead of sitting on their hands and waiting for further, more in-depth data from the state, over the past two weeks, the middle school has opted to also administer the Northwest Evaluation Assessment Test to students.

Haske said the data from this test is already back. Teachers will discuss the results and hash out what strategies and interventions to implement at the Nov. 6 in-service.

Both Haske and Swenor said their goal is to have every student tested meet or exceed the state standard.

These MEAP results will be used by the Michigan Department of Education to finalize Adequate Yearly Progress reports. The calculation of the progress report also includes requirements related to the percentage of students tested, the schools' attendance rates and the graduation rate at the high school.

For further information on MEAP test scores visit www.michigan.gov/treasury.

High school results will be available later this year.

HAVE A SAFE HALLOWEEN!

Charlevoix Trick or Treat Hours: Friday, October 31 • 6PM-8PM

Let's all be aware of children on Halloween night!
We want them to be safe and happy and have a great Halloween!

- Costumes should be nonflammable and should not restrict movement.
  Masks shouldn't block vision. Use makeup instead.
- Carry a flashlight so you can see & be seen easily.
- Give your children a meal or snack before they go out, and emphasize that no treats should be eaten before they get home.
- Discard commercially produced candy if the wrapper is loose or the seal has been broken.
- Drivers watch out! Children become careless from excitement and may run into the road.
- Choose a costume that is easy to walk in, easy to see out of and can be seen by drivers.
- Remind your children to look both ways and cross streets only at corners.
- Use a reflective tape on your costume so people driving cars can see you.
- Do not eat unwrapped candy!
- Leave your porch light on, so kids know it's OK to visit.

Hospital to host baby fair

There'll be lots of healthy fun in store when Charlevoix Area Hospital holds its annual baby fair next week.

The event will be from 4-7 p.m., Thursday, Oct. 30, in the lower level dining room. There's no charge and parents, babies, preschoolers and parents-to-be are invited to attend.

More than 30 businesses, vendors and community resources will be on hand to introduce their programs and services for babies and young children.

Included in the mix are health and safety tips, childcare and early childhood development options, age-appropriate toys and games, nutrition tips, music and refreshments. The hospital will provide information about its childbirth preparation classes and Birthing Center; and the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency will replace old mercury thermometers with complimentary digital thermometers.

Parents and youngsters are encouraged to dress in Halloween costume for a chance to win a prize and professional photographer Karen Walker will offer a free photo sitting to those in attendance.

More information about the annual baby fair is available by calling the Charlevoix Area Hospital Birthing Center at (231) 547-8575.

Sheriff: Beware of traveling criminals

Sheriff Lasater warns that each year, traveling criminals come to Northern Michigan to do hit-and-run paving work.

Homeowners and business owners are urged by the Charlevoix County Sheriff's office to be especially cautious when approached by individuals selling asphalt paving and sealing products. Traveling criminals seem to return in force each spring and fall.

If suspicious of fraudulent activity, consumers should call 911.

Traveling criminals usually leave their customers with a driveway or parking area that will eventually reveal poor workmanship. Poor work is not always evident immediately. Problems may not appear for several weeks or months.

The traveling criminal paver will be long gone when the pavement begins to break up, making legal action difficult or impossible.

Traveling criminals traditionally have no real local business address. They are even known to use the name of a reputable local asphalt supplier in order to win customer confidence. They may use business cards and truck signs that appear legitimate.

Addresses and telephone numbers are frequently those of only an answering service in another city.

Traveling criminals sell asphalt paving material door-to-door after having scouted neighborhoods for their best targets. Their sales pitch is designed to appeal to those who are especially susceptible to the offer of a so-called bargain.

Their victims are often northern Michigan senior citizens.

Northwest loses 3-1

A feast of second half scoring was not enough to lift the Northwest Academy Navigators out of their 3-1 half-time deficit.

The soccer team lost to Boyne City last week 8-5.

In the first half Trevor Londgren scored the Navigator goal. Early in the second half, Andy Riley and Luke Herriman added a pair of goals to tie the Ramblers, but the Ramblers scored again quickly.

Andy Riley would score his second goal on a penalty kick to tie at four-all. Midway through the second half Boyne City scored a quick pair of goals and Andy Riley would score once again to earn the hat trick.

Coach Eric Richardson praised the strong play of Senior Josh Kitson as backup keeper, junior Liz Shepard, and freshman Peter Londgren.

"The score represents a lot of mistakes and opportunities that both teams capitalized upon. We'll need to shore up our midfield to play well in districts next week," Richardson added.

Northwest Academy travels to Boyne City Middle School for a 4:30 p.m. match Friday.

Middle school team 4-0

Charlevoix middle school football team defeated East Jordan 38-0.

For the Rayders, Kyle Jones scored two rushing touchdowns and added two, two point conversions. Justin Klooster, Nate Triplehorn and Woody Nitchman each added touchdowns while Cliff Jones and Nate Golovich contributed with two point conversions.

For the Rayder defense, Tripplehorn had an interception and J.D. Speigl recovered a fumble. Corey Gotshall, Bill Foley, Cliff Jones, and Dustin Dibble lead the defense.

The Rayders are 4-0 on the year.

Basketball team loses one, wins one

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

The Charlevoix Rayders lost their third straight game last week, falling to Boyne City, 61-53 but rebounded to end the skid with a 68-45 win over Elk Rapids.

"I don't have any answers at this point," coach Jim Parrish said.

Parrish refused to blame the losses on the absence of leading scorer Grace Farrell due to injury, saying, "We're used to relying on her, but we have the talent to overcome it (her loss). No one has stepped up to take that job on though."

Against the Ramblers, Parrish labeled turnovers (31) and poor shooting (34 percent) as the culprits.

"We have been getting worse rather than better in the area of turnovers," Parrish said. "The girls have been playing long enough to know that the way you win is controlling your turnovers and making your shots. Every loss we've had has been when we scored under 55 points this year."

Jamie Pettis scored 16 points to lead the Rayders. Betsy Dennis scored seven. Sarah Cross had five points and seven rebounds. Kari Way scored four points and grabbed six rebounds. Alyssia McDonough scored four points, had four rebounds and three steals.

In the victory over the Elks, Charlevoix shot even worse at 26 percent and had more turnovers with 37, but the Rayders used a season-high 28 steals and 46 rebounds to gain the win.

Shannon Dibble paced the Rayder scoring attack with 11 points. Pettis had 10 and seven steals. Cross had six points and seven rebounds.

Becca Kanine scored six points and pulled down seven rebounds. McDonough had six points and five rebounds. Jenny Lopez added six points and seven rebounds. Way also had six points.

Charlevoix is in a four-way tie for second in the Lake Michigan Conference with a 6-3 league mark and are 11-3 overall.

The Rayders traveled to play at East Jordan (9-4 overall, 6-3 conference) on Tuesday, Oct. 21 but results were unavailable at press time.

Charlevoix hosts St. Ignace on Thursday, Oct. 23 in non-league play.

Rayders take another loss

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

If it's possible to have a moral victory in a 42-0 loss, the Charlevoix Rayders accomplished that last Friday night at Kipke Field against Division VII's top-ranked team in the state, Traverse City St. Francis.

The Gladiators outgained the Rayders only 431-347, but turnovers and Charlevoix's inability to punch the ball into the end zone led to the uneven margin.

The Rayders drove to the Glads' one-yard line in its opening drive, but were stopped on fourth and goal. St. Francis responded with a 99-yard drive of their own for a 7-0 lead that they held after one period.

The Gladiators led 21-0 at the half, but a 21-point St. Francis explosion in the fourth quarter put the game out of reach.

Rayder quarterback Cody Crain passed for 317 yards on 32 completion's in 53 attempts. Ben Bergmann hauled in 13 passes for 141 yards. Taylor Fisher caught 10 for 101 yards while Mitchell Klooster had five receptions for 32 yards.

Defensively, Fisher had 10 tackles to lead Charlevoix. Klooster had nine, Jamen Waha, six, and Will Kautz had five stops.

Charlevoix (1-7 overall, 1-5 conference) plays at East Jordan (5-3, 3-3) on Friday, Oct. 24.

How to protect yourself from telephone slamming

Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater passes on these tips from the National Fraud Information Center on Telephone Slamming.

Slamming occurs when your telephone service is switched from your current company to another one without your permission.

Contest entry forms, coupons, or other promotional materials might include an agreement to switch your phone service. Federal law requires that written agreements to change phone service must be separate documents, not part of a prize package or other materials. If the company offers a check to get you to switch, the check must state clearly on the front and on the back, in the signature area, that you are agreeing to change your service, so always read the fine print.

You can also agree to switch your service over the telephone or electronically. The company must verify that you agreed. You may be instructed to call a toll-free number that is used exclusively for that purpose or you may be connected to an independent verification company that will confirm your decision to switch.

Beware of impostors. Someone posing as a representative from your current telephone company may try to trick you by asking if you are satisfied with your service or if you're interested in a new calling plan or billing arrangement. A "yes" answer could be tape recorded and used as proof that you agreed to switch. Ask for the person's name and number; then contact your phone company to find out if the call was legitimate.

Check your phone bill carefully. If you notice a new company name, call the number that's listed on that portion of the bill and ask for an explanation. If you've been slammed, inform the company that you didn't agree to use its service. Contact the company you originally had to switch back and be reinstated in your old calling plan. Under federal law, you can switch back for free, and you don't have to pay for the first 30 days of service from the slammer. If you used the slammer's service beyond 30 days, you will pay your original company for that service from day 31 until the date you switch back.

For more information about your rights, contact the Federal Communications Commission at (888) 225-5322 or go to www.fcc.gov.

Council candidates discuss city spending

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

The way elected officials in the city of Charlevoix spend tax dollars is an issue city council candidates think is important.

"It's so easy to spend other people's money — that's the whole problem with government," first ward candidate, Bob Timms, said.

Each of the candidates running for first and third ward seats said in general they feel the city is fiscally responsible, pointing out a number of projects where money was well spent. But they also had a few gripes and plans for keeping a close eye on upcoming endeavors.

In the third ward, incumbent Shirley Gibson said there are a few changes she would like to see.

"I want the city to stop spending money frivolously for things that benefit a few," she said.

Gibson's biggest pet peeve is with the way money is spent on feasibility studies, like the recent traffic and conference center studies. She said in most cases the city isn't getting anything for its money because action is rarely taken based on the information gathered.

"A good example is the convention center. We spent about $25,000 for (Charles) Skelton (president of Hospitality Advisors Consulting Group) to come here and tell us it wouldn't work. Then we spent another $13,000 for him to tell us the same thing only not quite as harsh," she said.

However, Gibson is a big supporter of money being spent to renovate city hall.

"I think the city should be very proud of what that will look like when it's finished," she said.

Infrastructure spending is another place Gibson is happy to see money being distributed.

If re-elected she plans to keep a close eye on the conference center planning process, which she does not support.

She also plans to actively work toward getting a contract for city union workers, who have been without a contract for well over a year.

"Now that's money well spent," she said. "What would the city look like if they walked off the job?"

Her opposition, former third ward councilman A.J. Witthoeft said he doesn't have any major beefs with the way the city has chosen to spend money.

"Everything we've done has helped the city out," he said.

Another element of fiscal responsibility that Witthoeft cited as an example of the city at work for the taxpayers, is city treasurer Rick Brandi's efforts to spread savings bonds to several banks in town to get the best interest rate.

In terms of projects, Witthoeft, like Gibson, supports the city's efforts to continually update infrastructure.

He also thinks that recent park and beach improvements were a great example of the city working for the community.

"The beaches have been brought up to a very nice standard, especially for a city that depends on tourism to maintain its economy," he said.

Like Gibson, Witthoeft is also a supporter of the city hall renovation project.

If elected he plans to keep a close eye on the marina expansion.

To spend or not to spend is the question for city

ELECTION

"I want to make sure we can keep the flavor of the marina but enhance it at the same time," he said.

While Witthoeft and Gibson support the city hall project, Timms said the costs have gotten excessive.

"The city hall renovation started at $600,000 and the last number I heard was over $2 million. I'm sure there are a lot of things that need to be done but audiovisual equipment at $132,000, I can't quite buy that," he said.

Like Gibson and Witthoeft, Timms supports the city continuing to update its infrastructure, including spending on roads and water and sewer lines, but said its plan to curb and gutter the whole city isn't necessary.

"To replace it, I don't have any problem. But to go and have as a goal to curb and gutter the entire city is a waste of money," he said.

Timms also takes issue with parks and recreation spending which he referred to as "out of this world" and "one of those things that keeps snowballing."

He said the money being spent to install and test groundwater at the municipal golf course to serve both Mount McSauba and the course "isn't a great move."

He explained that McSauba is a nice asset, but isn't a Boyne Mountain and it isn't a money maker and never will be, so spending there should be kept within reason.

If elected, Timms said he will watch closely how dollars are allocated to the East Park and marina project and to the municipal airport.

Timms' opposition, interim first ward council memher Dave Novotny, offered polar opposite opinions on city spending.

He said the city hall project is money well spent.

"It's very antiquated. I'm not a spend thrift or anything, but that represents the city itself," he said.

He also disagreed with Timms when it came to recreation spending. Novotny supports the city's recent test well installation at the municipal golf course.

"It will actually save taxpayers' money in the long run and that's a plus," he said.

Novotny said the city could save money by scaling back the services it provides but those are part of what makes Charlevoix unique.

"Everything goes back to economics. We are trying to improve the city to keep tourism, our number one industry, going," he said. "If we continue to make that industry strong, it keeps the downtown strong and a strong downtown keeps the city strong — what comes around goes around."

Novotny said past and upcoming renovations to East Park are a good example of the city working to support tourism. But he said if elected he plans to keep an eye on marina renovations.

"I'm still up in the air on the marina. I don't want to fill Round Lake up with a marina, hut I understand that boater's are cramped for space," he said.

Board concerned about safety of crossing

into stationing a crossing guard at the corner of Garfield and Bridge streets before and after school and during special events.

The board discussed this possibility and formed a parent committee. After further investigation by specialists with the Michigan State Police and the city police it was concluded that the safest way for students in that area to get to school is by bus.

Bus routes were changed and four stops were added on the west side of Bridge Street to service all students, regardless of their proximity to school. School officials also sent home permission slips that parents had to sign, giving their consent for their student to cross the road.

In spite of all these efforts, Sturock said students are still risking life and limb when they cross Bridge Street en route to the middle school.

This reality prompted the board to launch its latest attempt at keeping its students safe.

"Just last week I observed a student crossing and a car had to come to a screeching stop to avoid hitting the student," Sturock wrote in the letter to Rise Rasch, manager of MDOT's Traverse City location.

Halverson said in the past MDOT has rejected proposals for stop lights at that intersection and at Carpenter Avenue and Bridge Street because they failed to meet the agency's warrants for installation.

"I'm not sure about the possibility of success with this either," he said.

And just in case, Halverson urged the board to come up with a "plan B."

"I would like to see a school rule prohibiting the crossing of that street," he said.

This idea was met with some opposition by members of the board.

Sturock said, "How do you penalize a kid because he walks to school?"

Boss added that this type of rule would be difficult to enact when the federal government and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) are urging students to walk or ride a bike to school.

Sheriff to offer annual clean-up

Sheriff George T. Lasater announced the Fall Clean-Up Program for senior citizens of Charlevoix County.

Lasater will be assigning county jail prisoners, supervised by a sheriff's officer, to assist senior citizens with raking and general clean up of their yards.

The program also includes townships in Charlevoix County where prisoners may be assigned, under supervision, to clean cemeteries, parks and other areas.

Lasater said only prisoners who are not a security risk to the community will be assigned this detail.

Marina, park to be discussed at Oct. 27 meeting dredging.

United Design also contracted with Soils and Structures, Inc. of Muskegon to do 13 soil borings and a report. They subcontracted with Sagasser & Associates, Inc. of Gaylord for further sediment sampling at the proposed excavated area hy the sea wall. It will assess potential contaminants in that area and determine how it will be required to be disposed of.

Pollack said this study did find contamination from fuel residue at the base of the marina.

Pollack was contracted to prepare preliminary designs and complete preliminary cost estimates for the East Park project. Pollack's work looks at land based facilities including buildings like the combined harbor master's quarters and marina support facility, a performance facility and a visitor information pavilion. The land design will also include lighting, promenades, parking, irrigation and grading.

He said they also found poor soils in the park, which was no surprise. Because the soil is soft and spongy, Pollack said a lot of underground work will he required before the buildings can be stabilized in the park.

City manager Mike Wiesner said that at the upcoming meeting council may decide whether to instruct them to move forward and apply for permits and draft final construction drawings.

If Pollack and United Design are contracted to move into the second design and construction phase, the two will work together in applying for permits to the United States Army Corps of Engineers, the Land and Water Management Division of the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality and the Michigan Department of Public Health.

This permit application process is expected to be underway in December.

Marina costs $10.66 million

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Charlevoix's city council gave the go ahead to marina and East Park renovation designers who will now move forward and apply for permits and draft final construction drawings for the $10.66 million project.

"We might as well get on board and see if we can get Waterways Commission funding because without it, we'll have to do it on our own," Waterways Commission chairman and Charlevoix resident John Winn said.

At the joint city council and Downtown Development Authority (DDA) meeting Oct. 27, Winn explained that Charlevoix has the second highest boater demand and the worst facilities. He said the time for that to change is now.

There was consensus that it is time to move forward because no matter what, the bulkhead and docks, which are the most expensive element in the project, have to be replaced soon.

The plan is to run the new bulkhead in front of the existing one in order to minimize the disruption of contaminated soils in that area. The cost to replace the bulkhead and install the dock system is $4.8 million.

Peter Pollack, principal designer with Pollack Design Associates of Ann Arbor and Jim Muschell and John Schlak of United Design Associates of Chehoygan will now work together in applying for permits to the United States Army Corps

Frightful fun-filled Halloween happenings

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Ghosts and goblins will be stalking the night Friday during the annual Halloween tradition of collecting treats door-to-door.

Charlevoix Police Chief Dennis Halverson said trick-or-treating hours in the city of Charlevoix will be from 6-8 p.m., Friday, Oct. 31. Anyone who is participating in the event is asked to turn on their porch lights.

Halverson said to make this holiday successful people need to be safe. He suggested parents make sure their children do not have on a mask that impedes their vision, watch for traffic and check over children's candy thoroughly before letting them eat it.

If you find any candy that has been tampered with, Halverson said parents should call 9-1-1 and police will respond to their home.

Halverson added there will be a larger police presence on Thursday, Devil's Night, and Friday, Halloween.

"We treat vandalism seriously," he said.

Halverson said vandalism in Charlevoix on these two days varies from year-to-year based on the weather and if the holiday falls on a Friday or Saturday.

"Obviously on Friday and Saturday nights there is more activity later into the night," he said.

Anyone caught participating in vandalism is guilty of a 93-day misdemeanor that will also cost you restitution and a $100 fine as well as a $100 cost.

In addition to the trick-or-treating, the crew of the United States Coast Guard Ship Acacia will once again be hosting the annual "Ghost Ship."

According to Ensign Sean Plankey, of the Acacia, the ship will be decorated for the holidays, with guided tours through its spooky corridors, from 7 to 10 p.m., Thursday, Oct. 30 at the city dock. Admission is one non-perishable food item that the Coast Guard will donate to a local charity.

Library needs over $7 million for project

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

The concept of a new, big, brilliant, brick, Charlevoix Public Library has been established and now the task at hand for library representatives is to raise over $7 million to make the conversion from an old school to a library, a reality.

"It's time to generate enthusiasm and interest to make this project a reality," Bill Williams, an architect with the library's design firm, Engberg Anderson Design Partnership, said.

The new library design team including Williams and Alyce Riemenschneider of Riemenschneider Design Associates in Ann Arbor attended the Oct. 27 final pre-funding design meeting at the library where full color schematic renderings of the future library were displayed.

Those who attended inspected the renderings closely and were enthusiastic to say the least. A $25,000 pledge from Charlevoix residents Don and Kay Heise was made on the spot.

Now, library director Valerie Meyerson said it's just a matter of coming up with the rest. She said they are looking to gather funds from other generous donors, grant agencies and voter approved bonds.

The first step is the fund-raising campaign which is currently under-

Council candidates discuss issues affecting Charlevoix

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

What: Charlevoix city election
When: 7 a.m. to 8 p.m., Nov. 4
Where: City Police Garage off of State Street

In this four-part series, first and third ward candidates for Charlevoix's City Council have showed their leanings on issues facing the city including a city funded conference center, assisted living facilities, affordable housing and fiscal responsibility.

It would seem the big issues have been aired. But when it came time for the candidates to dig up issues of their own for this final article before the election, no one was silent.

In the first ward, Bob Timms, takes issue with sign lighting in the city that he says poses a hazard for motorists.

"They're not supposed to shine in motorists eyes, but they are all over the place," he said.

He said if the city plans to maintain its ban on internally lit signs, it should also require that signs be lit from above to minimize the impact.

If elected, Timms also plans to work on two contract issues.

He wants to nail down a contract for city union workers who have been without one for over a year.

"I don't really think it has to be dragged out this way. So I would get on that as soon as I could to try and get it resolved," he said.

He is also discontent with the maintenance contract at the city's municipal airport which he thinks should be bid out to benefit the taxpayers.

"It's one of those cozy contract things," he said.

He said any "cozy" handling of taxpayers' dollars and issues effecting city residents won't go on under his watch as he would actively work to maintain open government.

"When people have to go through Freedom of Information requests to get information out of city hall, that's a sick day," Timms said.

Timms is 69 years old and has lived in Charlevoix since 1957. He has served on and off council for 18 years and currently serves on the city board of review, a position he would have to resign if elected to council.

His competitor, Dave Novotny was appointed to the first ward seat by council in the interim following the September resignation of former first ward councilman and deputy mayor Norm "Boogie" Carlson, Jr.

Novotny, 57, is a Charlevoix native and former mayor and city planning commissioner, who wants to finish what he started when he was mayor.

He said in 1989 during his previous term in office, council and the planning commission worked to update the city's master plan

Another election year brings endorsements

Jeremy McBain

'Just a thought'

Ah, that time of year is upon us once more.

The familiar decorations are displayed in front yards, newspapers are filled with information on it and people are talking about it everywhere. It is ELECTION TIME!

Election time is a great tradition in our nation. Each year, on the first Tuesday in November, we all go to the polls and take part in something that our forefathers fought and died for — the right to vote.

I get a warm feeling every time I make my picks in the ballot box, like I am truly someone who can make a difference in the world around me.

But, there is something that happens during this time of the year that I do not get excited about, but must do as the editor of this newspaper. It is during this time of the year that I must show my hand and make editorial picks.

I try to be fair and not show favoritism to one candidate or cause over the other in all of my regular stories — that would not be good journalism. But, in order for the Charlevoix Courier to be a lively and vital part of this community, I must help the citizens when making their decisions for leaders. It is a time honored tradition for community newspapers and something that all healthy guides of the community should partake in.

To be fair to the people who are running, I invited each one of them into my office to sit down and chat about the issues. I tried to treat each one the same and find subjects that challenge them. To be honest, it is kind of fun. I enjoy mixing it up with politicians and making people think.

But, after everything has been discussed with these brave individuals I have to make my picks for who I think would make good representatives for this community. This year we have two open Charlevoix City Council seats to pick for with two people running for each seat.

In the Third Ward, we have incumbent Shirley Gibson running against former city council member A.J. Witthoeft. In the First Ward, we have former council member Bob Timms running against former mayor Dave Novotny.

Let's start with the Third Ward. When I started as the editor of the Charlevoix Courier about four years ago, I remember Witthoeft was a decent council member. He did not seem like one that had an agenda or one that was afraid to go against the wishes of city officials in favor of his constituents.

Gibson also always keeps her constituents in mind in all of her decisions and tries to be as open as possible for them. What's new is with Gibson on the council I have noticed more people coming to the meetings to bring up their issues of concern and it seems that the council actually considers them.

Sometimes they are controversial, such as dogs in the park, but at least the council is giving them the time of day.

Now, the thing that stuck out with Witthoeft in his meeting with me was that he did not seem to know the issues facing the city right now and was at a loss for a solid opinion on several items. A big strike against him was when he said he was for a convention center, but was at a loss for words when asked what he would tell the community if the thing went belly-up — which is a great possibility.

Furthermore, Witthoeft seemed to be concerned about the tone of council right now, saying too much time was being spent on little issues like dogs in the park. I don't think that is a bad thing. The current council is still getting the things that need to be done in the city complete — like new sewer lines and road improvements — but is giving common people a chance to be heard. Having a community that feels empowered by its council is a wonderful thing.

Therefore, I believe I am endorsing Shirley Gibson for Third Ward.

Now for the First Ward. Both Novotny and Timms are good men who care for this community. They both have great experience with the council and both had solid ideas for improving the community.

But, it seems to me that Timms is more in line with my thinking. What was a real blow to Novotny was his support for a government owned convention center in the community. Everyone who reads my editorials knows I think a convention center will use taxpayer money to compete with existing businesses like Castle Farms and will suck taxpayer money out of the resident's pockets faster than a vacuum cleaner.

What I don't understand is why Novotny claims he is a big supporter of business in Charlevoix, yet he supports something that will use government money to compete with a private business.

However, Novotny did say to me that his mind could be changed if shown the right facts, let's hope he does if he is elected.

In the meantime, I am endorsing Bob Timms for First Ward.

Good luck to all of the candidates on election day. No matter who wins or who I endorse, I am proud that fine citizens like you are taking it upon yourself to help the community.

Trees keep on growing, even if there is snow on the ground

Roger Knutson

'Ear to the ground'

We left Charlevoix for the second week in October and relearned this great truth: In order to get a week in Iowa, you have to miss a week in Charlevoix.

That will not sound like much of a trade-off to most, but it can be rephrased. In order to get a week in Paris, you have to miss a week in Charlevoix. In order to get a week in Iraq, you have to miss a week in Charlevoix. In order to get a week somewhere, you have to miss a week everywhere else. In order to get a winter in Fort Myers, you have to miss a winter in Charlevoix.

We get to choose, but we don't get any more weeks or winters. I'm beginning to think that most of the weeks or winters not spent in Charlevoix represent a net loss.

While we were gone, Autumn happened to Charlevoix. We didn't get to see it arriving day-by-day, but it certainly was glorious when we returned. All those trees were letting us in on the secret they have been keeping all spring and summer. They were really red or yellow or orange all the time, but had managed to keep it covered with a uniform coat of green for the whole growing season. Trees spend the whole of the summer generating brilliant colors, but keep them a secret until the green goes away.

Trees manage other secrets as well. The gentleman who periodically cleans the tree roots from our sewer has told me that those roots grow year-round. While the above ground parts of a tree may look pretty much dormant in the winter, below ground, out of sight, trees are vigorously making new roots and expanding others.

I knew that lawn grass will grow beneath a deep cover of snow, but I wasn't sure about tree roots until our sewer informed us. Listen to your sewer, it can teach you things.

Vote against convention center

Editor:

Our "city fathers" are not looking out for the best interests of the citizens of Charlevoix when it comes to a convention center. As a resident of Charlevoix, I have chosen this avenue of communication to remind my fellow residents in wards one and three to get out and vote against the city council candidates Nov. 4 who want a convention center in downtown Charlevoix.

Thanks to the coverage of your paper, we have been made aware of the sentiment of the council candidates from the first and third wards. Therefore, those of us in the first and third wards can have impact on this matter by our vote on Nov. 4. In the first ward we must vote for Bob Timms. And those of us who live in the third ward must vote for Shirley Gibson.

If you live in either of these wards and are opposed to having a convention center in Charlevoix, cut out this letter as a reminder to vote for the appropriate candidate on Nov. 4. If you are not sure which ward you live in, watch for a map of the wards in this newspaper.

I hold to this belief for two reasons. One, I love all of the seasons in Charlevoix, and I am not just thinking about the four climatic seasons, but the mix of moods as well. I happen to like change: We have the excitement of heightened enthusiasm and energy levels in summer, the simmering, calming sweetness of fall and late spring and the festive nature of the holidays. Secondly, we have an incredibly interesting burgeoning convention center in the making already, and that would be, of course, Castle Farms.

City Council candidate Bob Timms put it best when he said, "It (a new convention center for Charlevoix) would be a money pit." And I might add, a bottomless money pit.

My husband puts it much more candidly: Convention center? Who wants it? Of course, the Downtown Development Authority. Who else? No one! Why let a small minority in the community suck us into more traffic and more congestion in our beautiful place. One more car on Bridge Street is one too many.

The promise that they will only have conventions in the spring and fall is absolutely bunk. I've heard this kind of wishful thinking before. A two-season convention center is not fiscally sound. It does not support itself. Charlevoix is such a popular place in the summer. Why would conventions want to come in just the spring and fall? Maybe we will have to change the name from Charlevoix the Beautiful to Charlevoix the Polluted, from traffic pollution, exhaust pollution and people pollution.

Paulette and Don Hodney

Vote for Timms

Editor:

I note with great interest the large political ad, in color, urging voters in the first ward to elect Dave Novotny to the City Council. Among his "credits" Mr. Novotny acknowledges past membership in the Downtown Development Authority. Shouldn't he have placed that at the top of his list, and underlined it?

He continues to advocate a tax-supported convention center boondoggle, although the tax supported consultants hired to study the situation have twice said it would have little chance of success. Could the supporters of the election of Dave Novotny be the members of the DDA?

I suggest that voters elect Bob Timms from the First Ward and encourage the free enterprise solution to Charlevoix's convention needs in the work of Dick and Linda Mueller at Castle Farms.

Incidentally, Dick Mueller's people date back to 1878 in Charlevoix — the Allens from Kalamazoo.

Against Wal-Mart

Editor:

After reading one of the responses in favor of the construction of Wal-Mart I had to wonder why people don't see the big picture?

So often we look at making decisions solely based on the economy. The truth of the matter is Charlevoix and its surrounding area are uniquely, aesthetically appealing. Why do people choose to vacation and live in Charlevoix versus overdeveloped, polluted areas such as the cities down state? I'm sure it's for the pristine water, hilly landscapes and open green spaces or as one reader called it, unused land (unused by what species?).

Charlevoix is an area that if not taken care of will one day look like the cities of southern Michigan. Is that really what we want? I know I don't.

If you cherish Charlevoix for its beauty and small town atmosphere, make decisions that reflect that thinking. Treat Charlevoix and the north like the beautiful gem it is. Besides, it's time we stop feeding Jabba the Hut (a.k.a. Wal-Mart).

Against Wal-Mart

Editor:

Jeanne Blumberg's very excellent letter spoke for many of us who read it. Her presentation was comprehensive and fair. It points to a conclusion that far more would be lost than gained if Wal-Mart is to carry out its plan, both to Wal-Mart and to the community.

For the long years that I have loved Charlevoix, there has been a close and lasting relationship with the local and smaller businesses. It is to be hoped that this will always remain true. They deserve our concern.

Lucky trees enjoy all the seasons

What seems to us from our above ground perspective to be dormancy is really just rearrangement.

A close examination of many tree buds reveals other secrets. Nearly all of next year's leaves and flowers are already enclosed in the buds and need only to increase in size to reveal themselves. An October bud will be less well developed than the same bud in March. Poetically the buds can be described as sleeping, but they are at work making up next year's branches.

Trees don't have the presumed luxury we have of spending our time in a place we choose. What they must do is make the very best of where they are, and make the most of each day they are here. Trees that haven't done that are no longer with us.

Looking around us we see the best solutions to the problem of being a tree in Charlevoix that thousands of years of evolution have helped devise.

Not only do our trees not move south for the winter, they use the whole of the winter for necessary growth and maintenance. They never miss a week in Charlevoix.

In a way I envy them.

Insurance company gives Halloween safety advice

Youthful ghosts, goblins and ghouls are excited and excitable as they go trick-or-treating on neighborhood streets at Halloween, so parents, youngsters and motorists should use extra caution to prevent accidents, according to AAA Michigan.

"Halloween can be a safe and enjoyable time for everyone if motorists are on watch for costumed creatures who may dart out between parked cars," said Richard J. Miller, AAA Michigan Community Safety Services manager. "Drivers should also be especially careful when pulling in or out of driveways, and realize that the normal residential speed of 25 m.p.h. is way too fast when the night is full of excited kids moving from house to house."

Darting out into the street, often from between parked cars, accounted for more than half of the 304 pedestrian casualties among children 4-10 in Michigan in 2002.

"Parents should urge children to cross only at corners, never between parked cars of mid-block," Miller said. "A safe Halloween means seeing and being seen by motorists."

To make sure children enjoy a safe Halloween, parents should follow a few easy steps. Instead of masks, which can block vision and make traffic difficult to see, use makeup on children's faces.

"Costumes should be easy to walk in and made of white or light-colored materials," Miller said. "Reflective tape sold at craft stores makes for great decorations and it's ideal to help drivers see young trick-or-treaters."

Parents should walk with the youngest children. Choose safe routes near home on well-lighted streets. Try to complete trick-or-treating before dark, take a flashlight along and always go with friends.

While trick-or-treating, tell children to walk, not run, to avoid falling or tripping over costumes. Encourage them to follow the traffic rules: stop at all corners; look left-right-left again before crossing the streets.

"Older children who trick-or-treat with friends should always have family-planned routes and home arrival times," Miller said. "Treats should be inspected. Discard anything that looks like it has been unwrapped or tampered with. Wash fruit and cut it into small pieces before eating. Never enter a stranger's house, even if invited."

Parents may also encourage children to participate in other planned Halloween activities as an alternative to trick-or-treating, Miller added.

Popular speaker returns to Charlevoix Area Hospital

If healthy harvest meals sound good, then you may want to attend the next Deanna House program at 7 p.m. Nov. 5, at Charlevoix Area Hospital or at noon, Nov. 6, at the Boyne Public Library.

House, whose "performance style meals" and programs are presented by the Community Relations Committee of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation and underwritten by DeSoto and Associates, will present her first program at 7 p.m. in the large conference room at the hospital in Charlevoix. The program titled "Healthy Harvest Foods" offers a cooking and tasting demonstration along with copies of the recipes so participants may repeat the process at home.

That same program will be repeated in Boyne City at the Library the following day at noontime. Those attending the program will have the opportunity to watch the preparation of the meals, receive recipes and taste samples of the prepared items.

Prizes play an important part in House's program — and they are given with casual abandonment as House asks if anyone is from a particular area or has a birthday. Packages of colorful paper napkins are a typical prize, with spatulas and other kitchen items frequently offered. Hopefully those attending will go home with new meal favorites helping to provide them and their families with new taste sensations.

Tickets for the program are $5 per person, $4 for those 60 years old and above and may be reserved by calling 547-8502. All programs are presented by the Community Relations Committee of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation Development Council.

A freelance food writer appearing regularly in the Kalamazoo Gazette and The Grand Rapids Press newspapers, House is the author of four cookbooks. She is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin-Stout and has taught junior high, senior high and adult home economics classes.

Group fighting Wal-Mart to meet again

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Plans for a citizens group that will oppose the construction of a Wal-Mart south of Charlevoix are still being made.

According to group member Robert Hoffman, of Charlevoix, it met last week to discuss organizational matters and to talk to Keith Schneider of the Michigan Land Institute. Hoffman said Schneider gave the group members some ideas to combat Wal-Mart.

Another organizational meeting is being planned for 7 p.m., Nov. 4, at the Edgewater Inn Conference Center on Michigan Avenue. Hoffman said the meeting is not a public forum, but more of a work session for members.

Hoffman said the organization should be ready to start actively developing more support for its cause soon. He added he has received calls almost every day from people wanting to know how to stop Wal-Mart.

"Hopefully we can show Wal-Mart it is not in the best interest of Charlevoix to have it here," he said.

In the meantime, according to Vicki McWatters, co-owner of Family Affair Arts and Crafts in the Captain's Corner Plaza on M-66, the Wal-Mart has already claimed its first victim.

McWatters has decided to close down her arts and crafts business mostly because Wal-Mart wants to come to Charlevoix. Her last day after five-and-a-half years of business is Friday.

"Wal-Mart had a lot to do with it. We knew we would eventually have to (close) any way," she said. "We could not compete with them. Even loosing a small amount of business would be too much."

As for the group fighting the Wal-Mart, McWatters said she hopes it is successful, but doesn't think it will be.

"I very much back them. Hopefully I will have some time after the sale to join them and fight (Wal-Mart)," she said. "I am against the fact they don't need to put them every 20 miles. I am fearful for other businesses."

Wal-Mart currently has a supercenter in Petoskey.

At a Charlevoix Township planning commission meeting in September, Wal-Mart officials presented a conceptual plan for a supercenter to be located on US-31 South, near Marion Center and Stover roads.

It would have 40,000 square feet of grocery space on the left side of the store and over 100,000 square feet of retail space on the right side. The store would be a total of 157,400 square feet.

There is also room for seasonal sales, such as Christmas trees and garden supplies, as well as an automotive department for tire, oil and lube changing.

The supercenter will have two main entrances, not including a truck entrance on US-31. One entrance will be on US-31 and the other will be on Marion Center Road. Plans also show the addition of a lighted signal at the US-31 entrance and the addition of deceleration and acceleration lanes and turn lanes on US-31.

These road plans are subject to approval by the Michigan Department of Transportation. A traffic study is currently being worked on.

Wal-Mart officials said they hoped to have the store open in 2005.

Charlevoix troop gets another Eagle Scout

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Charlevoix's Boy Scout Troop 11 has churned out another leader.

William Barrett started his scouting career in 1996 as an 11-year-old boy with a taste for the outdoors.

Now, at 18, he graduates from scouting with the highest title, Eagle Scout.

"It is a very big achievement. Only one percent of all scouts get Eagle Scout. It was a challenge for me," he said.

Barrett will now carry the designation with him the rest of his life.

"It opens up a lot of doors," he said.

Troop 11 Scout Leader Tim May said it is known that the Eagle honor is awarded to scouts that exhibit exceptional leadership and organizational capabilities and in the private world of college and career development Eagle status is a great resume builder.

He added that Eagle Scouts who enlist in the military are given raises in pay and rank just by being an Eagle Scout.

Barrett said the greatest challenge in his race for eagle status was his final project which May said is designed to test a scout's ability to oversee and supervise major undertakings while providing a benefit to the community.

Barrett said recreation enthusiasts will benefit from his project through which he identified and marked 10 tree species around Fisherman's Island State Park.

He started the project in April and just made the cut for Eagle Scout by the skin of his teeth. Requirements for Eagle Scout must be completed before a scout reaches his eighteenth birthday and he completed the paperwork May 11, two days before he turned 18.

He said in carrying out the project he not only provided an educational resource to the community, but also learned a lot about himself and about leadership.

Eagle Scout is the pinnacle of traditional scouting and Barrett ended his career with 26 merit badges, five more than are required. Barrett's Court of Honor Ceremony is currently being planned.

But while Eagle is the highest scouting title, reaching it doesn't mean Barrett's scouting days are over.

He is now actively involved in the Order of the Arrow, scouting's national honor society, and Venture Crew 11, a club associated with the scouts aimed at "diehard, outdoorsy" boys and men ages 14-20. He also recently registered to become an adult member of the Charlevoix troop.

Currently, when Barrett isn't busy scouting, he is hitting the books in his first year at North Central Michigan College. He is pursuing general studies and is looking to transfer to Central Michigan University in Mount Pleasant to study theater arts and work toward a teaching certificate.

Those interested in joining the Boy Scouts of America or inquiring about its services can contact the council office in Traverse City at (231) 938-2200.

Family Video will save trees on its Bridge Street property

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

A new business coming to town has agreed to save some old trees.

The original site plan for the new Family Video that will be constructed at the location of the former McDonald's showed 12 existing Douglas Fir trees would be cut down and replaced with crimson maples.

Family Video's Regional Manager, Tammy Van Sumeren, said she visited the site, located at 1402 Bridge Street, when she developed the plan to see what she could salvage to save money. She said she soon found the trees weren't one of the items she planned to save.

"They are ancient trees and they don't look like they are in very good shape and they certainly don't provide any shade," she told city council at the site plan review Oct. 20.

But when she made the decision to cut them down, she had no idea the community would react.

At the council meeting the room was full of "tree huggers."

Representatives with Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, the city Shade Tree Commission, the Charlevoix Historical Society and interested residents, attended on behalf of those old trees.

Charlevoix resident and former president of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful Bruce MacArthur said local botanist and shade tree commissioner, Roger Knutson, checked the trees on Oct. 18 and found one was dead and the rest were healthy.

"There is no need for the trees to come down because construction will take place there," MacArthur said.

Bob Heath, a member of the historical society and the ad hoc preservation committee, said, "I think it would be a travesty to remove these trees; they are healthy trees that improve the quality of the entire neighborhood."

The majority of council agreed.

Third ward councilman Sherm Chamberlain superimposed the site plan with the layout of the existing trees and said, "it looks rather nice."

Mayor, Gabe Campbell said he is opposed to tearing things down just to tear them down.

"I have a problem with cutting down trees. I guess I'm a tree hugger. I wasn't even happy cutting those trees down on Belvedere and they were ugly," he said.

Third ward council representative Shirley Gibson suggested council make site plan approval contingent on saving the 11 healthy trees.

While the majority of council supported this approach some questioned it.

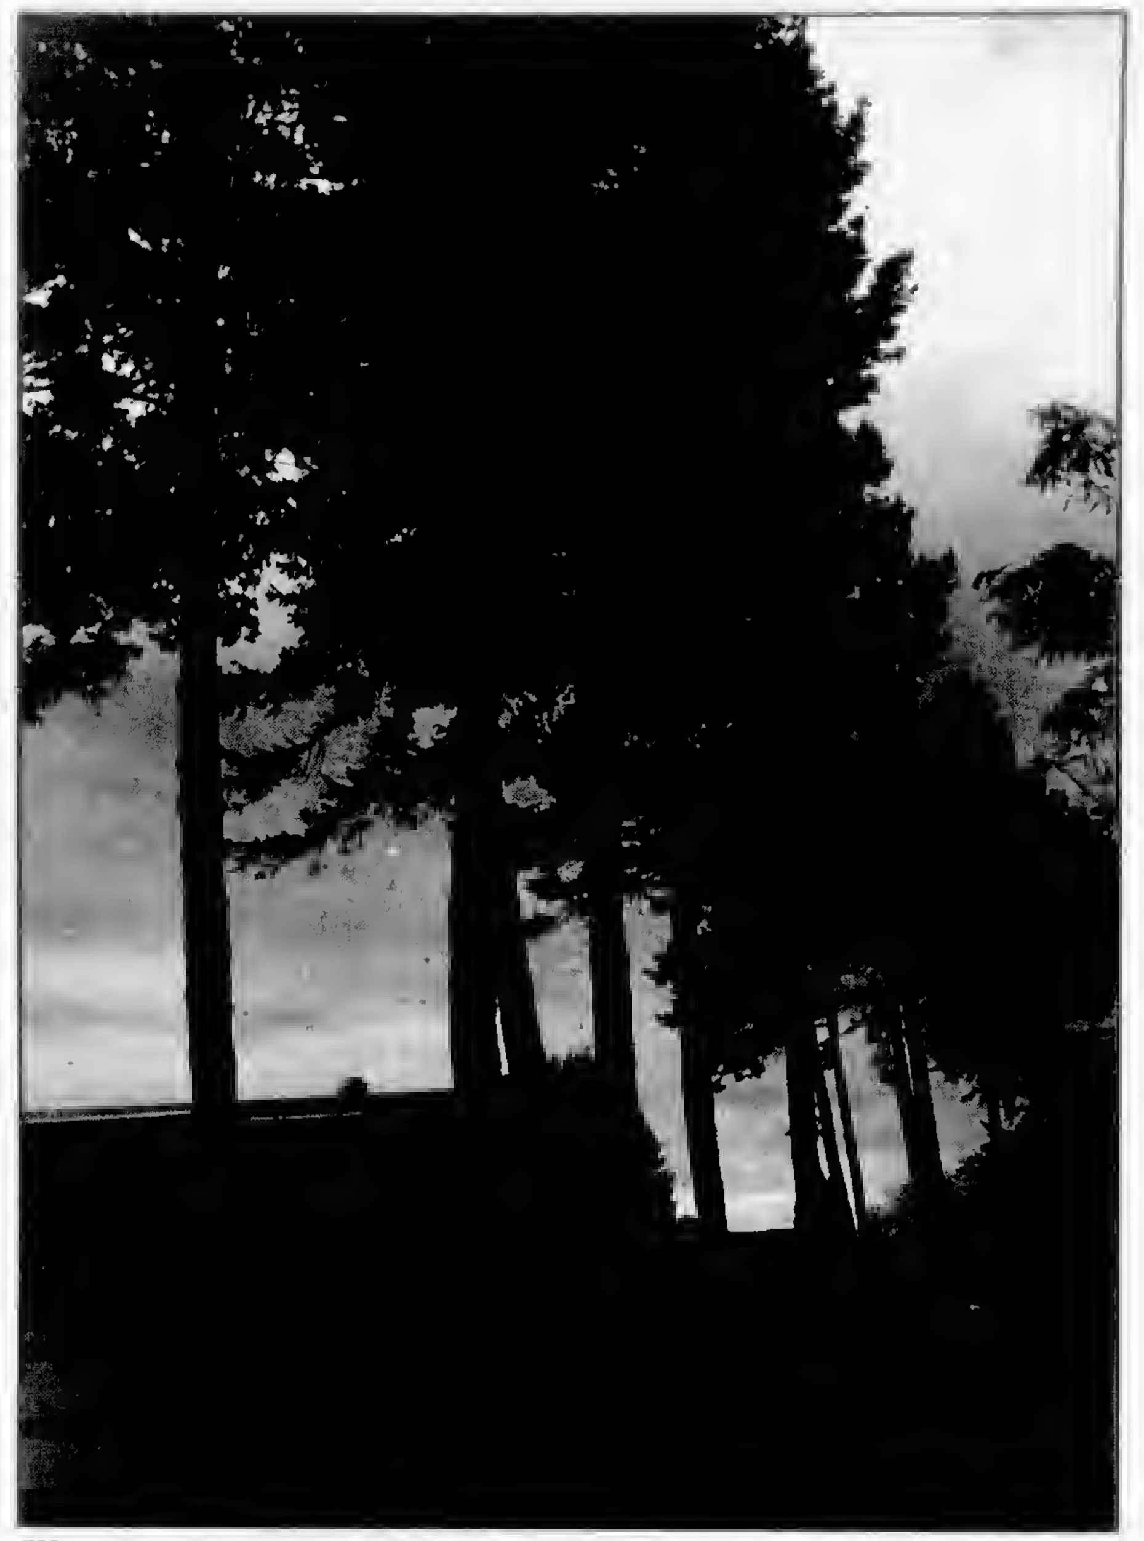
Interim first ward councilman Dave Novotny, said, "I think those trees are ugly. You get a nose bleed just looking at the branches. I don't know why you guys fell in love with them, but something else could be put in their place."

Second ward councilman Bill Bellows asked why council would tweak the site plan when the planning commission didn't recommend saving the trees at its public hearing Oct. 13.

But planning commission members who attended the council meeting, including Francis Flanders and Patti Sitzema, said they didn't connect that "removal of all vegetation," as was stated in the site plan, meant the trees would go.

Van Sumeren agreed to work around the trees and council ultimately unanimously approved the site plan contingent on the 11 trees staying put.

In the next month Van Sumeren will get to work removing the vacant McDonald's building to construct a one-story building with 6,400 square feet of usable space and 54 parking spots. In addition to video rental, the store will offer a "food center" at the east end of the building with 1,200 square feet of usable space.



These old Douglas Fir trees were a recent topic of dissent when Family Video proposed to remove them in their site plan for this former McDonald's location. (Photo by Julie Witthoeft)

Recycling program considered a success

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Recycling efforts in Charlevoix County are making a difference.

"It's one way to save the environment. If every one of us does our own little part we will make a difference for generations to come," Shirley Roloff, chairperson for the Charlevoix County Recycling Committee, said.

Recycling was started in the county in 2001 when voters agreed to a fraction of a mill to help fund the program.

This millage is up for renewal in November of 2004 when Roloff said the committee plans to ask for the same .15 mill.

Since the program's inception, the Emmet County Transfer Station has accepted oodles of recyclable materials from six sites across the county including Charlevoix, Boyne City, Beaver Island, Boyne Valley, East Jordan and Melrose Township.

Early this month, the recycling program hosted its third household hazardous waste collection day to gather electronics, paints, oven cleaners, antifreeze, brake fluid, insecticides, household batteries and other items that can't be thrown away.

The collection brought in 3,000 pounds more material than was gathered in the second collection which took place in June.

"It's good to get them out of the house and disposed of properly, not into the landfill where it will go into your water, the air and the earth," Roloff said.

The next household hazardous waste collection day will be in June of 2004.

While groundwater and soils are being saved from contamination by hazardous waste collections, the air is being kept clean and forests are getting a break due the efforts of those recycling everyday materials like tin, glass, plastic, paper products and cardboard.

In 2002, representatives with the Emmet County Recycling Program tallied the number of pounds of recycled materials that came from Charlevoix County and measured its environmental impact.

County users recycled just under 11 tons of colored glass, over 102 tons of clear glass, 34.4 tons of plastic and 44.1 tons of steel, tin and aluminum.

According to statistics complied by the Emmet County group the 388 tons of cardboard and over 574 tons of newspaper that was recycled saved close to 12,000 trees.

The information from the Emmet County committee states that overall, the effort saved over 10 billion BTUs of energy, enough to power over 102 households for a year.

Emmet County representatives further pointed out that Charlevoix County's recycling program prevented an estimated 1,432 tons of emissions to the air, over five tons of emissions to water resources and reduced greenhouse gas emissions by 701 metric tons of carbon.

Jim Jinsky of Charlevoix was recycling plastics and newspapers Oct. 27 at the Charlevoix County recycling drop-off center stationed at the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office. Jinsky said he recycles there once a week. (Photo by Julie Witthoeft)

"Everything is going really well — we've recycled quite a bit. And that's what this is all about — getting people to start using the drop-off sites instead of throwing all this into your garbage," Roloff said.

And she added that the amount of recyclable material collected in 2003 has already surpassed those 2002 numbers and the environmental impact from Charlevoix County recyclers will be even greater.

The recycling committee expects tonnage numbers for 2003 to be compiled by January of 2004.

which hadn't been revised since its inception in 1980. However, the recommended changes were never ratified.

"That plan should be updated every five years," he said.

If elected he plans to not only work to update the master plan but also to clarify the city's zoning ordinance.

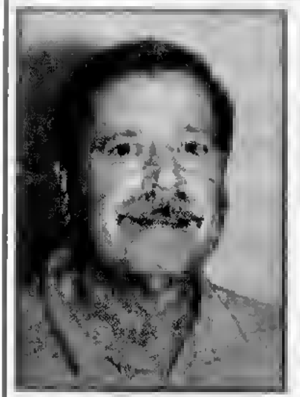
"There are some misconceptions about what its really there," he said.

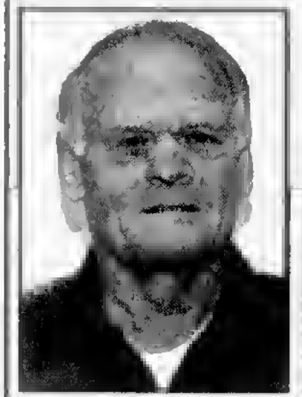
Novotny would like to start seriously investigating establishing a second industrial park to get good paying jobs in the area.

"Problem is there is no land in the city to do that," he said.

Candidates for the contested third ward seat include incumbent Shirley Gibson, 55, a former planning commissioner who is finishing up her first council term, and her challenger, former councilman A.J. Witthoeft, 36, an active member of city politics for the past 10 years as a councilman, planning commissioner and member of the zoning board of appeals.



Dave Novotny



Bob Timms

Both Witthoeft and Gibson share some of the same concerns Novotny and Timms pointed to.

Like Timms, Gibson wants to see more accountability at the airport including bidding out the maintenance contract. To ensure operations run smoothly at the airport, Gibson said if she is reelected she will work toward establishing an airport commission to oversee its operations, with a membership including pilots.

"Who knows what's going on behind the scenes out there," she said.

Gibson is also a member of the city's ad hoc historic preservation committee and said she would like to see a district established to preserve old buildings and trees.

While she is looking for rules to govern historic buildings she is also hoping to see rules that are already established enforced.

"We need to enforce our laws fair and square. We might as well throw that code book in a burn barrel for all the good it is — the city staff picks and chooses how it's enforced," she said.

She said one example of this lack of enforcement is existing uninhabitable structures in the city that are allowed to remain in spite of the city's blight ordinance. If reelected she plans to make sure those sites are taken care of in a more timely manner.

Witthoeft said if he is elected to represent the third ward again, he too plans to make getting these buildings spruced up or torn down a priority.

"The city needs to sharpen its pencils on getting rundown buildings attended to," he said.

Witthoeft also shares Timms' lighting concern. He said he will work for dark skies at night and that means no "up lighting" of signs. His concern was based less on a threat to motorists and more on light pollution.

Like his competitor, Witthoeft is also a supporter of establishing a historic district.

"Charlevoix has a neat history and we should preserve as much of it as we can. If we can do it in a district, I'm all for it," he said.

While Witthoeft is concerned about preserving what we have he also wants to see new business in town. In order to get the economy up and running he said the city needs to pay more attention to the needs of its industrial park.

He suggested "sweetening up the deal" to get tenants in vacant sites and buildings by offering lease breaks and tax abatements.

"Today we need whatever leverage we can get to get people in," he said.

He also wants to see the city use its status as a political entity as leverage in keeping area students safe. He said whether it's a crossing guard at the intersection of Bridge Street and Garfield Avenue or a traffic light, something needs to be done.

"I don't have any agendas I live and die by. But if I had an agenda it would be this — I would like to see the city get involved with Charlevoix Middle School kids crossing Bridge Street. I want to be proactive rather than reactive after an accident or something else horrific happens," he said.

Aside from these contested seats, current second ward councilman Bill Bellows is running uncontested. Bellows has represented the second ward for five years.

City clerk Liz Gooch will also run uncontested.

Ballots must be cast from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m., Nov. 4 at the City Police Garage, located at 210 State Street, in Charlevoix. Signs will mark the State Street entrance to the garage and angle parking will be permitted in front of the fire department's garage doors.

Art center to have its Ghost Supper

The Crooked Tree Arts Center will host a Ghost Supper, as a part of its Anishnaabe Festival, beginning at 6 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 1.

There is no charge for the supper and the public is encouraged to attend.

A buffet of native foods, turkey, smoked whitefish, frybread and family recipes will be offered. Serving as Ghost Supper chairmen are Karen and Tom LaVanway of Charlevoix.

"We welcome people to bring a dish to share, but it is not necessary as we will have plenty of food," Tom LaVanway said.

The chefs of Shanty Creek have once again volunteered to cook and serve the supper. Drumming, a ceremonial fire and storytelling are all part of the evening's traditional events.

The Anishnaabe visual arts exhibition for 2003 is titled "Sisters of the Great Lakes: Art of American Indian Women." Baskets, clay work, paintings, quill boxes, dolls and beadwork are on display through Nov. 1.

This exhibit is on loan from the Michigan State University Museum. The arts center was awarded a grant from the Michigan Humanities Council Arts and Humanities Touring Program for this exhibit.

For more information, call the Crooked Tree Arts Center at 347-4337 or visit www.crookedtree.org. The arts center is located at 461 E. Mitchell Street in downtown Petoskey.

Computers for sixth graders under debate

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Michigan Governor Jennifer Granholm's new technology program aimed at improving education may be a mixed blessing for Charlevoix Public Schools and Northwest Academy.

"I think that anything that helps students move forward in technology is a great thing and it's a great idea. It's just a question of how do we pay for it?" Scott Cochran, Northwest Academy's administrator, said.

The program Cochran is referring to is called "Freedom to Learn," an expansion of a pilot program formerly known as "Learning Without Limits" that was in place last year.

Neither Charlevoix Public Schools or Northwest Academy participated in the pilot and it is unlikely either will be part of its latest extension, because of the burden administrators said it will likely be.

In August, Granholm signed the state's education bill, approving $39 million, $10 million of which is federal funding, to provide wireless technology to sixth grade students before the end of the current school year. This will include equipping each student with a laptop computer or other technology.

The state is currently accepting bids from technology providers which are due back Nov. 5. They are looking to run the program through a single partner.

Freedom to Learn is jointly administered by the Michigan Department of Education and Michigan Virtual University and is expected to be administered in January.

If the program becomes a reality, Michigan will be the second state to provide an entire grade of students with computer devices. In 2001, a similar initiative was undertaken in Maine when seventh and eighth grade student were equipped with laptop computers.

According to the state's website, www.michigan.gov, the program's goals include improving student learning, empowering teachers with new learning tools, helping parents get involved, bridging the "digital divide" and preparing students for the twenty-first century workforce.

While both Cochran and Superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools, Dr. John Sturock, support the program's goals, they said that based on the state's major budget problems its timing is questionable.

At the Oct. 15 state revenue projection conference, Liz Boyd, spokeswoman for Granholm, said it was determined that the state has a $900 million deficit to make up in the current fiscal year.

"We've already cut $1 billion out of this year's budget and now we have to cut almost another billion," she said.

Sturock said $349 million of that is a shortfall in the school aid fund.

Boyd said the deficit has to made up somewhere and where that money will come from has not been determined. While Granholm has said everything is on the cutting board except the school foundation grant even its safety is in question.

Boyd said that the governor's office is hearing from school administrators that it should be on the table and they want more input into where cuts to their budgets are made.

State funding goes is to the foundation grant and categoricals for special programs.

Sturock said it would be to the advantage of Charlevoix Public Schools if categorical funds were cut because the district doesn't get a lot of money there. While the probable cut to the foundation grant at $200 per student will cost the district $276,000.

"Timing wise, it's just not logical. When you are looking at the state of the economy, how can you spend $29 million on computers when districts have to cut teachers in classrooms?" he said.

He said the Charlevoix School District planned for this and won't have to make major cuts to program. But they will draw on the fund equity once again which can't continue to be used as a crutch.

The program itself will also cost school districts money to implement.

School districts will have to lease the laptops paying $25 per pupil to participate in the program with the state providing grants of $250 per student. The school contribution will help pay for a wireless network and support costs.

This would cost Charlevoix Public Schools about $2,500 and would cost Northwest $100.

"I think there is merit to the program, but I don't know how in good faith you can give us computers when we will have to go out and pay money and take a $200 hit in the basic foundation grant. The state could take that $29 million to offset the costs," Sturock said.

Charlevoix Middle School technology teacher Josh Block said he would rather see the state invest money in a wireless computer lab that all the students can use. The middle school currently offers three computer labs and he sad there is no room for more. If the wireless lab was added it could be moved to whatever classroom it was needed in.

"Getting kids more access to computers is a great idea. To give all sixth graders a laptop I don't think is a good idea," he said.

Boyd said the state will know more next month as to how the deficit will effect education and the "Freedom to Learn" program. Granholm will be on the road during the first two weeks in November gathering data from Michigan residents as to where they want and don't want to see budget cuts.

Holly Daze plans being made

The Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation Holly Daze Committee has announced this year's fund raising goals and in a move to support area businesses, a change in dates from Thanksgiving weekend to the following week for this annual event.

"This year our goals will directly benefit all the communities in our service area," committee chair Patti Barraw said. "We want to purchase a Gamma Probe System for Charlevoix Area Hospital, equipment for the new Jordan Valley Rehabilitation Center in East Jordan, and automatic external defibrillators for Jordan Valley, Boyne Area Medical Center and Boyne Rehabilitation Center."

With a total price of $51,486 Barraw says the committee feels certain that area businesses and individuals will support this goal because each community will receive a direct benefit.

Dates for the event have been scheduled to coincide with the Charlevoix downtown merchants' open house on Dec. 5 and 6.

Barraw said they hope to encourage individuals, doing holiday shopping, visiting area merchants and the hospital during its silent auction and Holly Daze sale will benefit everyone.

Holly Daze at the hospital will open at 8 a.m. and close at 6 p.m. on Friday, Dec. 5. Hours will be from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday.

The popular Elf School for children will return on Saturday, with reservations required.

"Our live auction will take place on Dec. 3, at the Charlevoix Country Club," Barraw said. "We already have wonderful things donated and anticipate this being our most popular auction yet. There will be a very small number of Christmas trees with the focus this year on packages and items ideal for gift giving."

Items the committee plans on purchasing include a Gamma Probe System for Charlevoix Area Hospital which will help detect tumors smaller than 1 gram and has the potential to spare thousands of women from the side effects of major breast surgery. Equipment for Jordan Valley Rehab in East Jordan will include a stationary whirlpool, a variety of weights, models, treatment tables and parallel bars.

Over $15,000 will be spent for East Jordan and another $6,200 will be directed to Boyne City.

For more information regarding Holly Daze or to make a donation, call 547-8658.

Residents object to housing development

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer
And by JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

A big affordable housing development won't move to Loeb Road in Marion Township without serious opposition from neighbors.

"My concern is I don't want to see my property values take a nose dive," said Chris Siegmund who is building a house near the proposed development.

On Monday night, Oct. 27, Wayne Boss and his family members, who are partners in Legacy Development Group, LLC, asked the Marion Township Planning Commission to rezone land they own from agricultural, to R-1, single family residential to make way for the development.

The request applies to two parcels totaling 53 acres both fronting on Loeb Road. One 40 acre parcel is on the west side of Loeb Road, one eighth of a mile north of Veenstra Road.

The other 13 acres lies just south of Veenstra Road off Loeb Road.

At the public hearing, the commission did not make a decision as to whether or not to recommend approval to the township board. Instead, they voted to table the issue. In the meantime they plan to hire a consultant to take a look at the request.

The Legacy group presented their development plan at the hearing.

In a previous interview planning commission chairman Tim Matchett, said it is a "fairly dense R-1 development for what is there now."

In Marion Township's R-1 district, each home must be on a lot that is a minimum of 18,000 square feet, or just under half an acre.

Boss said he is planning to bring 85 "affordable" home sites to lots that will be a minimum of 20,000 square feet. He said he is aiming to keep purchase prices under $120,000.

"From our perspective I am really looking at the broader picture. I know there is a need (for homes under $120,000)," he said.

Boss pointed out the Charlevoix school district is losing students and money because young families are not coming to Charlevoix due to high housing costs.

But, many residents of the area questioned the need for such housing.

"If there is such a need for those homes why are there so many available homes?" said Loeb resident Mollie Angel.

She and others at the meeting said real estate agents have told her that there is a "glut" of affordable housing in this area.

Marion Center Road resident Joe Seidel suggested maybe the schools are losing students not because of a lack of affordable housing in the area, but because students are going to better schools which have "better opportunities."

However, RE/MAX Real Estate agent Joe Vogelheim, who was at the meeting, did not seem to agree. He said the average price for a lot, that isn't special or has any views, in the Charlevoix school district is $54,000.

Loeb Road resident Albert Soloman also did not agree.

"Society as a whole has an obligation to sometimes do things for other people to fulfill their needs. Some things have to happen to keep civilization going. You have got to look at the betterment of the whole," he said.

Residents also questioned the property's ability to maintain a good septic system and what kind of water it has. Many residents said the property, especially on its south side, is too wet for such a development.

Loeb Road resident Angie Robarge said, "The last time I walked all thought the south part (of the property) it is considerably wet."

But, Boss said this is only a small portion of the property.

"Limitations for the septic is minimal. Five to 7 percent of the total area contain 'hydra soils' (wet soils), but that doesn't preclude the site from being developed," Boss said.

He added there are no plans to develop the wet areas of the property.

But, it was this issue the planning commission members were the most concerned about and said they would feel more comfortable having an outside consultant look at the site sewage and water needs.

A motion to table the issue was make by commissioner Jim Schull and supported by commissioner John Martin. It passed unanimously.

Once the planning commission makes its recommendation to the township board, the Charlevoix County Planning Commission will review the request and make its recommendation.

Then the township board will review it and make its decision.

Work starts on Christmas Project

The opening meeting of the Charlevoix Community Christmas Project was Wednesday Oct. 22, at the Community Reformed Church.

In her second year as chairperson of the project, Bev Boss presided over the business portion of the meeting.

Various chairs and co-chairs of the many committees within the project were present, many of them new to the project. Mary Helen Riggle, founder of the Christmas Project many years ago, will act as co-chair but was unable to attend this meeting. She is from the Congregational Church.

Plans for organization were discussed, and a calendar for the various steps necessary in the project was set.

The Charlevoix Community Christmas Project is an ecumenical effort by various churches in Charlevoix and sponsored by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association, to help seniors, children and others who need a little extra hand to have a merry Christmas.

The chairs and co-chairs in attendance and the churches they represent were: Carolyn Batdorff, Community Reformed Church, treasurer. Rosemary Horton, St. Mary's, publicity chair this year and co-chair of the Calling Committee. Kay Smith, United Methodist Church, Chair of the Non-perishable Food Committee, who will be assisted this year by Dianna Shull of the Nazarene Church, Mary Eveleigh of St. Mary's and Carolyn Wiebe. Becky Wimmer, St. Mary's, co-chair of The Giving Tree. Maggie Hosler, chair of the Senior Gift Committee, from the Church of God. Debbie Gelderblom, Christ Episcopal Church, chair of the information coordination Committee. Marilyn Miller of the Congregational Church and Ruby Curtis, Community Church of God, mitten, socks, and hats committee. Lois Lews, chair of the delivery committee, Congregational Church. Mary Seaman of the Community Reformed Church will assist the double bagging procedure, arrange for National Honor Society members to assist clients on delivery day, and will also take care of the Christmas cards.

Not able to attend this meeting were Alida Klooster of St. Mary's, who will co-chair the Giving Tree; Cynthia Garland of the Congregational Church who chairs the labeling committee; and Janis Dietrich, St. Mary's, co-chair of the calling committee.

Planning got off to a good start, and it is hoped to find representatives from more churches to join the group in this truly ecumenical effort. The group would like to have all Charlevoix churches represented.

If you are interested in working on this Christmas project call Mary Helen Riggle at 547-9515

Much money is needed to fund this project, all from donations, so if your organization, business, club or group wishes to donate to a good cause, please send a check, made out to the Charlevoix Community Christmas Project, to Carolyn Batdorff, 4903 Marion Center Road, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Keep an eye out for online scam

Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater would like to advise citizens of an online hi-tech scam known as "phishing" or "carding."

This Internet scam uses spam to deceive consumers into disclosing credit card, social security or bank account numbers along with other sensitive information.

According to the Federal Trade Commission, the e-mails pretend to be from businesses the potential victims deal with, for example, their Internet service provider, online payment service or bank. The fraudsters tell recipients that they need to "update" or "validate" their billing information to keep their account active and direct them to a "look-alike" web site of the legitimate business, further tricking consumers into thinking they are responding to a bona fide request.

Unknowingly, consumers submit their financial information not to the businesses but the scammers, who use it to order goods and services and obtain credit.

To avoid getting caught by one of these scams, the FTC, the nation's consumer protection agency, offers this guidance: If you get an e-mail that warns you, with little or no notice that an account of yours will be shut down unless you reconfim your billing information, do not reply or click on the link in the e-mail. Instead, contact the company cited in the e-mail using a telephone number or Web site address you know to be genuine.

Avoid e-mailing personal and financial information. Before submitting financial information though the web site, look for the "lock" icon on the browser's status bar; it signals that your information is secure during transmission.

Review credit card and bank account statements as soon as you receive them to determine whether there are any unauthorized charges. If your statement is late by more than a couple of days, call your credit card company or bank to confirm your billing address and account balances.

Report suspicious activity to the FTC or local law enforcement.

Send the actual spam to uce@ftc.gov. If you believe you've been slammed, file your complaint at www.ftc.gov, and then visit the FTC's Identity Theft Web site (www.ftc.gov/idtheft) to learn how to minimize your risk of damage from identity theft.

Girls' cross country team going to state

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The Charlevoix girls' varsity cross country team is going to the state finals following a second place finish in the regional tournament on Oct. 25.

According to coach Mary Plude, the top three regional teams move on to the state meet. Elk Rapids was in first with a score of 52, Charlevoix was in second with a score of 87 and Boyne City was in third with a score of 116.

"These were the team's best times of the season. Emily Westenbroek and Sonya Plude had outstanding races. It was their first time under 22 minutes," Mary said. "Our 1-5 gap is staying tight, which is what we need at the state meet to place well."

Individual finishes at the regional meet were Lindi Edger in fifth, with a time of 20 minutes, 18 seconds; Theresa Martin in eighteenth, with a time of 21 minutes, 23 seconds; Brenna Bergmann in twentieth, with a time of 21 minutes, 34 seconds; Westenbroek in twenty-first, with a time of 21 minutes, 39 seconds; Sonya Plude in twenty-third, with a time of 21 minutes, 53 seconds; Anna Taylor in thirty-eighth, with a time of 22 minutes, 53 seconds and Mia Matchett in fortieth, with a time of 23 minutes, 2 seconds.

On Oct. 14, the team finished third in the conference championships out of seven teams. Elk Rapids was in first and Traverse City St. Francis was in second.

After this meet, Mary said, "We finished right were I had placed us. Elk Rapids is number four in the state in Division III and St. Francis is number one in Division IV."

At the meet, Edger finished fifth with a time of 20 minutes, 43 seconds for All Conference honors.

In addition to the girls' team, the boys' team also did well at the conference meet and finished second behind Harbor Springs.

For the boys' team, Brandon Stevens placed sixth with a time of 17 minutes, 35 seconds to get an All Conference honor. All Conference Honorable Mentions went to Jared Hunt, who finished eighth, with a time of 17 minutes, 48 seconds; Scott Plude, who finished eleventh, with a time of 18 minutes, 3 seconds and Jacob Wimmer, who finished twelfth, with a time of 18 minutes, 3.7 seconds.

At the regional meet, the boys team finished fifth out of 14 teams.

The state finals will be at 11:30 a.m., Nov. 1 at Michigan International Speedway in Brooklyn.

Lady Rayders drop two more

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

The Charlevoix Rayders basketball team suffered two more defeats last week at the hands of East Jordan, 71-63, and St. Ignace, 79-43.

Worse yet, perhaps, the injury bug continued to plague Charlevoix as the team's second leading scorer, Jamie Pettis was injured in the St. Ignace game and was questionable for action this week. Earlier in the season, the Rayder's leading scorer, Grace Farrell, was lost for the season due to injury.

Charlevoix posted a 10-0 record prior to Farrell's injury during pregame warm-ups at Traverse City St. Francis. Since the injury, the Rayders have limped to a 1-5 mark.

The East Jordan game was close throughout. The Red Devils held a 31-22 halftime lead, but Becca Kanine's eight third-quarter points keyed a Charlevoix comeback that cut the lead to 48-44 headed into the fourth period.

Down the stretch, East Jordan turned to its all-conference star, Courtney Hammond, who scored 16 points in the final eight minutes of action to hold on for the win.

Alyssia McDonough led the Rayders in scoring with 12 points. Pettis scored 10 points and grabbed five rebounds. Kari Way had eight points and 10 rebounds.

Kanine and Rachel Wyniawskyj each added eight points. Sarah Cross scored six points and pulled down nine rebounds. Betsy Dennis had five points and four rebounds.

The number-two ranked team in the state, St. Ignace, wasted no time jumping on the Rayders, leading 25-9 after one period and 51-27 at the half.

Cross scored 11 points and pulled down 13 rebounds to lead Charlevoix. Wyniawskyj scored nine points. Way had eight points and six rebounds. Dennis added six points.

Golf team ends season fifteenth in state

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The Charlevoix High School varsity golf team finished fifteenth in the state finals Oct. 18 at Michigan State University.

To get to final play, the Rayders placed in the top fifteen teams on Oct. 17 in semi-final play. Usually, the top 12 teams go on to final play, but there was a three way tie for that twelfth place.

"Moving on to the second play is a fine accomplishment and the team played well," coach Jim Glynn said. "It was not just the cream of the crop, but now the cream of the cream to play."

Taking the top spot in the state was Grosse Ille, with a score of 591. Charlevoix's score was 664.

Some of Charlevoix competitors over the season also scored well. Grayling was in fourth with 627 in Division III, Traverse City St. Francis was in second in Division IV and Harbor Springs was twelfth in Division IV.

"This might be one of the toughest conferences for golf in the whole state. Four teams in the top 15 in two divisions is unheard of," Glynn said.

Individual scores at the state meet were: York Smith with an 83 on Oct. 17 and a 89 on Oct. 18; Jordan Nystrom with a 76 on Oct. 17 and a 77 on Oct. 18; Kyle DeYoung with a 90 on Oct. 17 and a 80 on Oct. 18, Ryan DeYoung with a 106 on Oct. 17 and a 93 on Oct. 18 and Chris Wyniawskyj, with a 80 on Oct. 17 and a 89 on Oct. 18.

The team will be losing its nucleus next year to graduation as Nystrom, Smith and Ryan DeYoung are seniors.

"I'll miss the senior leadership of this team," Glynn said. "Ryan DeYoung, 'the big easy,' has been a fine contribution to our team's success for the past two years and I wish him well. He is a fine athlete and should have a good basketball season. York Smith has spent four years on the team and a three year letter winners. York has been a solid, positive influence on the team and I will miss his smile and enthusiasm."

Football team ends season with loss to East Jordan

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

The Charlevoix Rayders closed out a tough 2003 campaign with a 35-24 loss at the hands of playoff-bound East Jordan.

"We played two and a half good quarters," Rayder coach Don Jess said. "That's been the story of our season. We weren't able to put together four good quarters all season long."

Charlevoix led 17-14 at the half and extended the lead to 24-14 on an 80-yard kickoff return by Taylor Fisher to begin the second half. The Red Devils scored the last 21-points of the game to ice the victory.

"We couldn't stop the run," Jess said. "The run has given us trouble all year long."

Cody Crain passed for 320 yards and two touchdowns on a 24 for 33 night. Fisher caught one scoring toss and Mitchell Klooster grabbed the other.

Fisher caught nine passes for 113 yards while Ben Bergmann reeled in nine for 101 yards. Jake Burns had four receptions for 72 yards.

Defensively, Will Kautz had 12 tackles. Fisher and Klooster each added 11. Jamen Waha had nine while Troy Coen had seven, including a sack.

Charlevoix finished with a disappointing 1-8 mark, but the season included many close games.

"The only games we really weren't in all season long were Boyne City and St. Ignace," Jess said. "We were able to play with all the other teams on the schedule."

With the junior varsity posting a 7-2 mark and the middle school going 4-1, the future could be bright for Rayder football.

"We didn't really think of this season as a rebuilding year going in, but with all of the key injuries we faced, it turned into one. We just couldn't afford to have all those guys go down," Jess said. "You hate to say it, but it was good for the juniors to go through this. It shows them what we have to do to get to where we want to be."

The injury list included both starting running backs from the start of the season, Josh Carter and Jeff Urban. Russell Williams was called up from the JV squad and he was injured in the St. Francis game.

On a positive note, Jess praised the play of two seniors: end/safety Fisher and lineman Luke Whitley and of two juniors: end Bergmann and quarterback Crain.

"Fisher had an outstanding year for us on both sides of the ball. He was solid game in and game out," Jess said. "Whitley was tremendous. He rarely missed a block. Actually I can only remember one time all season where he did and that's quite an accomplishment."

Jess added, "Bergmann just has a knack for making big plays. Many times we threw him a five-yard pass and he would turn it into a 20-yard gain, Crain played real well, especially considering the position we put him in. We couldn't mix the run much with the pass, especially with all the injuries to our running backs, and he was in his first year at quarterback."

Jess concluded his first year at the helm of the Rayders and displayed the same enthusiasm after the rough season as he had at the start.

"We have already started preparing for next season," Jess said. "As soon as the game was over, we were making plans. We've had one meeting already and are working on scheduling the weight room and things like that. We're really looking forward to next year."

Funding for new library discussed at meeting

LIBRARY

way. A feasibility study being conducted by Monaghan Associates of Grand Rapids, which is expected to be complete in February, will establish a goal for the capital campaign.

In the meantime, Meyerson is hard at work writing grant requests to different library construction funding agencies.

She said these two pieces in the funding puzzle will take a chunk off the bottom line and the rest is up to the community. The size of the bond and operational millage request is being explored. The library currently levies .46 mill for its operational expenses. But Meyerson said in doubling the size of the library that won't be enough to cover, maintenance, utilities and staff expenses.

The library board of trustees will decide the election date for the bond request at its next meeting scheduled to take place at 4 p.m., Nov. 13 at the library located at 109 Clinton Street.

If the library's money puzzle is pieced together, Meyerson said the board is hoping to break ground in the spring of 2005 with about 14 months of construction to follow and a grand opening in the summer of 2006.

"We have a lot of work to do before that," she said.

After the library moves in, it will sell its current site and will use proceeds from that sale to pay off the bond.

Joe Feidel, a representative from Clark Construction, the project manager, said the construction costs will not change unless the project is held off until 2005 or 2006 at that point costs go up about 3 percent annually.

Duane Wixson of Clark Construction, said there shouldn't otherwise be any surprise.

"Our job is to be the budget policemen. If the numbers get out of line we're raising the red flag," he said.

Feidel assured those who attended the recent meeting that Clark plans to use as many local contractors as possible.

And if the current design becomes a reality, there will be plenty of work to go around.

Patrons who park in one of 47 spaces in the lot and enter from the northeast into a landscaped plaza area will see a brick library spanning 22,000 square feet.

Once inside, users will find the facility easy to navigate with all its main functions on the first floor. To fit everything in this single floor model, two small additions, totaling just under 4,000 square feet of space, will be added. One will house the program room and the other, a children's activity room.

Both additions are covered with windows to incorporate both natural light and a feeling of openness. The activity room will look out onto a children's garden area.

The program room is a large meeting area equipped with a kitchen and storage area that will seat 150 people. This room will be attached to the adult collection area off the current gymnasium.

Those who want to check out books will be able to use a self check out or the staffed circulation desk.

Others may enjoy sitting in the popular reading room and flipping through a magazine by the fireplace or grabbing a book and settling into plush seating in the mezzanine area overlooking the adult collection.

Williams said the facility is packed with unique spaces.

"The major goal was to save the middle school. And why save the middle school? It's about memories. Our goal now is to create things that will create memories."

he said.

As funding options become more established, so will the design. Williams explained that the design is really only about 10 percent set in stone and funding will decide what stays and what goes.

At Monday night's meeting Meyerson urged members of the community to come to the library to see the schematic renderings.

CAUSE NO. (A) 13-11-03

NOTICE OF HEARING

Take notice that a contested case hearing will be held before the Supervisor of Wells (Supervisor) in the city of Lansing, Michigan, on the TWENTY-FIFTH DAY OF NOVEMBER (NOVEMBER 25) 2003, BEGINNING AT 9:00 A.M., IN THE DEPARTMENT OF ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY STEPHEN NISBET HEARING ROOM, ATRIUM LEVEL, SOUTH TOWER, CONSTITUTION HALL, 525 WEST ALLEGAN STREET, LANSING, MICHIGAN. The hearing will be conducted pursuant to Part 615, Supervisor of Wells, of the Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Act, 1994 PA 451, as amended (NREPA); MCL 324.61501 et seq., the administrative rules, 1996 AACS, 2001 MR 2, 2002 MR 23, R 324.101 et seq., and the Administrative Procedures Act, 1969 PA 306, as amended, MCL 24.201 et seq.; MSA 3.560(101) et seq.

The hearing is for the purpose of receiving testimony and evidence pertaining to the need or desirability of issuing an order in the matter of the petition of O.I.L. Energy Corp. (Petitioner), 954 Business Park Drive, Suite 5, Traverse City, Michigan 49686.

Petitioner seeks an order of the Supervisor, pursuant to R 324.302 to establish a Uniform Spacing Plan (USP) consistent with Order No. (A) 14-9-94, and pursuant to R 324.304 to compulsory pool all interests into the proposed USP. Proof of mailing or delivering the answer shall be filed with the Supervisor on or before the date of the hearing. The answer shall state with specificity the interested persons position with regard to the petition. Failure to prepare and serve an answer in a timely manner shall preclude you from presenting evidence or cross-examining witnesses at the hearing. SCRAPBOOK

Two boats go on rocks in fog

Members of crews taken off boats by local Life Savers.

Heavy seas rolling made work of tugs releasing boats impossible.

Saturday night the Life Savers were called to the rescue of the Schnoden in command of Captain Allard which went on the rocks about three and one-half miles north of Charlevoix, at 7:30 o'clock. The crew of four was rescued and returned to the local station.

The Schnoden was on her way from Cross Village with a 20 ton cargo of grain for the Argo Milling company, of this city when she became lost in the fog. Tuesday the Life Savers went out with the tug Parmelee at 7:30 in the morning returning at 1:30 p.m. The seas were so high that the tug could not reach her to do anything.

At 11:00 o'clock Saturday night the life saving crew to the rescue of the Arbutus, the Booth Fisheries Boat and took Amos Webster off, where she went aground in the fog on Big Rock Point. The Arbutus was returning from Northport. The Life Savers boat was taken up to Big Rock Point with a team of horses and the crew did not return home until 3:00 a.m. Sunday morning. At 9:30 a.m. the tug Geiken and the life saving crew went out to pull the Arbutus off, but were unsuccessful owing to the heavy seas and they returned at 3:30 p.m. Sunday.

Captain Partridge of the local station informs us that no more attempts will be made to release the boats until the lake is calm as the tugs cannot get to either boat when the sea is rolling. He also informs us that no particular damage has been done to either vessel so far as can be seen. Weather indications are pointing to northwesterly gales which will make the release of the stranded boats indefinite.

Watch out for the "flu"

City takes extreme measures against plague

Spread of disease throughout entire county causes extraordinary precautions - few cases here.

If you have a friend or relative who lives in a community infected with the "flu," get busy and tell them they are not wanted in Charlevoix. If they do attempt to visit the city, they will be stopped and asked to return to the place they came from.

Such is the text of the new order passed by the Charlevoix board of health which went into effect Monday morning. Deputies have been placed on all roads leading into the city, and to gain admittance, you must show a clean bill of health. The order issued is as follows:

"Notice - This is to notify persons from surrounding towns and places afflicted with influenza, that Charlevoix has been quarantined against such places, and that persons from such places will be prohibited from stopping in Charlevoix.

"Watchman have been placed at entrances to the city with orders to enforce the above order of the Board of Health of the City of Charlevoix." Signed by board of health officers.

With the exception of a few minor cases, Charlevoix is at the present free from this dreaded disease that has paralyzed business throughout the entire country and caused thousands of deaths. Every precautionary measure is being taken to prevent the spread of the disease, and it is hoped that the city will be fortunate enough to escape its ravages. Schools, churches, lodges, societies and meetings or any nature whatsoever are strictly forbidden. But three people, besides the clerks, are allowed in any business place. The same rule applies to barber shops and pool rooms. On Monday the board of supervisors adjourned their yearly meeting, and if the "flu" gains any headway in the city, it will not be the fault of the local board of health.

Conditions in Petoskey the latter part of last week were much improved, but on Tuesday four deaths occurred, and on the following day three more have been reported. More new cases were reported on Wednesday than on any day for a week, indicating that although the disease is being checked to a certain extent, yet it seems to gain despite all that is being done to prevent it.

Two deaths took place at Boyne City on Monday, and reports indicate a gradual spread of the disease. At East Jordan conditions remain the same. In rural districts, especially in Hayes Township, many cases have been reported.

Detroit, Grand Rapids and many of the larger cities report the disease on the increase. At Camp Custer the danger point is reported to have been passed, but in other training camps, new cases and deaths are reported in large numbers.

Armistice Day November 11th

Charlevoix will observe national holiday

Program under direction of American Legion from Eleven to One - to plant trees

Armistice Day will be fittingly observed in Charlevoix Friday, November 11th, and every citizen is asked to co-operate with the local American Legion in carrying out the program as arranged.

The program will start at 11:00 and continue until 1:00 p.m. Trees planted to the number of each soldier from the vicinity of Charlevoix who lost his life in the great World War. The trees will be planted on Bridge Street, between Belvedere and Hurlbut avenues, on the east side of the street, and will be accompanied by appropriate ceremonies.

After the tree planting, dedication services will be held in the Palace Theatre, conducted by Chaplain James Smith of the Legion. At this time a short biography of each departed soldier will be ready by individual members of the Legion.

From 12:00 noon until 12:02 all are asked to pause in silent prayer. The time will be proclaimed by the tapping of the Congregational church bell eleven times. This observance is also asked by Mayor Wilbur, in a proclamation published in this issue.

November 11th has been proclaimed a national holiday everywhere in the United States, and a like observance of the day will be held in all parts of the country.

HOW TO KILL A BUSINESS...in ten easy steps

1. Don't Advertise
Just pretend everybody knows what you have to offer.
2. Don't Advertise
Tell yourself you just don't have time to spend thinking about promoting your business.
3. Don't Advertise
Just assume everybody knows what you sell.
4. Don't Advertise
Convince yourself that you've been in business so long customers will automatically come to you.
5. Don't Advertise
Forget that there are new potential customers who would do business with you if they were reminded.
6. Don't Advertise
Forget that you have competition trying to attract your customers away from you.
7. Don't Advertise
Tell yourself it costs too much to advertise and that you don't get enough out of it.
8. Don't Advertise
Overlook the fact that advertising is an investment in selling ... not an expense.
9. Don't Advertise
Be sure not to provide an adequate advertising budget for your business.
10. Don't Advertise
Forget that you have to keep reminding your established customers that you appreciate their business.

Officials to look at marina funding options

MARINA

of Engineers, the Land and Water Management Division of the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality and the Michigan Department of Public Health.

At the meeting, there was some talk about the 67-slip approved dock layout extending too far into Round Lake. The city agreed to produce an aerial photo of the lake with the docks superimposed.

Piers in the plan extend 220 feet at the furthest point. The northernmost pier extends 186 feet with a viewing pier running perpendicular to it. The pier below that extends 195 feet from shore, the pier south of it 220 feet and the southernmost pier 175 feet. Wide, open fairways in between, open view corridors to Round Lake from shore.

Intrusion into the lake and obstructed view concerns surfaced in June of 2000 after the first plans drafted by United Design Associates were released. United Design's initial blueprints showed dock's extending over 400 feet into Round Lake, a huge expansion from the 17 current docks that extend 75 feet into the lake.

East Park plans heard fewer objections at this week's meeting.

After the bulkhead and dock project is complete, the second priority is construction of the new $1.5 million marina support facility and harbormaster's office where boaters can shower, do laundry, use bathrooms and check the weather and the harbormaster can watch marina activity and coordinate boat movement. It is designed as an underground building with glass walls located at the foot of Clinton Street.

A walkout seating area and fish pond will be at this marina support facility at dock level. And a short series of stairs will walk up from Clinton to a viewing deck on the roof of the building.

At Monday's meeting there was some discussion of grant money from the Great Lake's Fisheries Trust being available for the fish pond.

After this is complete, the plan is to tear down the existing harbormaster's office and then start on the new $1.2 million performance venue to be located at the south end of the property where Antrim and Bridge streets meet.

After this is complete, the current bandshell will come down.

Other costs in the project include $3 million for walkways, irrigation and lighting and $160,000 for a 60-space off-site parking lot.

The specifics of East Park renovation plans will not be immediately explored. Right now Pollack, Muschell and Schlak are working on permit applications which are about two weeks away from being ready to submit. After the application process gets rolling, they will focus on generating more detailed designs.

Pollack said costs may seem high, but the emphasis is on using quality materials that will minimize the long-term maintenance costs.

At the meeting, City Manager Mike Wiesner, said, "I don't know about the rest of you, but I got sticker shock when Peter said $10.66 million."

He explained that the city plans to explore all its funding options and anticipates there being a local share. He said his goal is to cover the cost through the DDA and grants but there is no guarantee a bond request won't come before the voters.

Mayor Gabe Campbell questioned how much funding Charlevoix will be eligible for through the state funding agency, the Waterways Commission, because the plan doesn't maximize the number of docks Round Lake could potentially handle.

Winn said, "This will work."

The city was trying to have these permits and cost estimates ready by April of 2003 for review by Waterways to be included in its 2005 funding cycle. If it met that deadline, Winn said the commission would likely fund 75 percent of the marina project and marina related land facilities.

But the city missed the deadline and now, after former Governor John Engler "robbed" Waterways of about $8 million, funding is tighter and Winn said is more likely to come in at about 50 percent.

Winn said the sooner the permits are in the better and construction could begin as early as Labor Day of 2004 with the new bulkhead and dock system in for next year's boating season.

Schlak said we may lose a couple of weeks in the early June boating season while construction is underway.

Gibson, Timms elected

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Incumbent Shirley Gibson and former council person Bob Timms were elected to the Charlevoix City Council Nov. 4.

Election day started bright and early at 7 a.m. But some of those early risers and voters throughout the day found the new polling location, in the city police garage at city hall, confusing.

People went to the former post office that is currently housing the city's administrative offices, looking to vote and city staff escorted them on a winding walk to the garage.

Others brambled through the construction zone looking for those familiar voting booths that used to be set up in city council's chambers.

Former first ward councilman Norm "Boogie" Carlson said he even called city hall to see where to vote.

But all in all, city clerk Liz Gooch said the inconvenience only resulted in a few complaints, including concerns about signs being placed out of view, and those were quickly addressed.

City manager Mike Wiesner, who made the call to keep the polls at City closes on middle school

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Last week, after almost two years of planning, the city of Charlevoix closed on the former Charlevoix Middle School property.

"We're excited to have seen this through," Hugh Mason, chairman of the Downtown Development Authority (DDA), said.

The property remaining in public hands was an established goal of Charlevoix's City Council. The city was able to meet this goal through the DDA who paid the $635,000 price tag for the school property through an Act 99 loan.

The city now owns 13 lots bordering Clinton, Grant and Mason streets, not including the school's current central office site off Clinton Street. But in the end, the city's 13 lots will likely dwindle to just three.

City manager Mike Wiesner said the three lots the city plans to keep are located on the Mason Street side of the property and they will probably be used for marina parking.

The plan is to sell the remaining 10 lots to the Charlevoix Public Library for $488,460. An option agreement for these 10 lots between the city and library was signed in May and the contract states that this agreement will expire in February of 2005.

The library has until then to Power outage struck Charlevoix Thursday

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix residents and business were left in the dark Thursday morning.

Around 8:30 a.m., a major power line coming into the city grid from Consumer's Power burned out, thus taking out power throughout the city. Crews had the lights back on around 11:30 a.m.

According to Don Swem, city engineer, the line was fixed by Consumer's Power crews.

Charlevoix Police Chief Dennis Halverson said the outage did not cause any severe problems. He said his officers did have to contend with intersections whose traffic lights were out and one person that was trapped in an elevator at the Sleep Inn on Bridge Street.

Halverson said the person in the elevator was freed after about 15 minutes and officers directed traffic at the intersections until temporary stop signs could be set up. Other than that, Halverson said he dealt with several calls from concerned residents about the outage and a few alarms that had been tripped.

"It was a busy morning," he said.

The outage caused several businesses in the city to close their doors temporarily and shut down the schools.

Halverson, who is also the president of the school board, said the schools closed food preparation issue and other miscellaneous troubles caused by the electric failure.

Like the city, area grocery stores did not report any trouble with the outage. Ann Kesseler, assistant manager at Glen's Market on M-66, said the store did not lose any perishable items due to preparations made for such an incident.

Charlevoix Area Hospital also reported it was well prepared for an outage like this through the use of back-up generators.

Hospital president Bill Jackson said, "We didn't even miss a beat."

Even the Charlevoix bridge was able to operate normally and was able to let the Beaver Island ferry Emerald Isle get to its dock in Round Lake. Halverson said the bridge uses backup power from the city water plant to open and close when there is a power failure.

How not to argue against a development

Jeremy McBain

'Just a thought'

As a journalist I do not usually get worked up about issues and I usually remain quiet.

I like to let other people spout off and tell their side. But, there is one issue that gets me going — housing.

Recently, I have been thinking more about this subject, especially after attending a meeting in Marion Township on an affordable housing project that developers want to build on Loeb Road. While I attended the meeting as a journalist, I am also a resident of Loeb Road and was keenly interested in the subject.

But, while listening to the reasoning many of the residents in the area had against the development or for the development, I found myself starting to get angry. No, I was not angry one way or the other about the development itself, I was getting angry at the rational that I was hearing regular folks use.

When I arrived home that night, my wife can tell you I spent the next hour fuming about what I had just heard. They were the exact arguments people use against development that I do not buy, even though I consider myself a staunch environmentalist.

I am against a housing development when it harms the environment around it through polluting the water, causing flooding to neighboring properties or other direct assaults on neighboring land. If the Loeb project has these problems, then it is a bad project.

But, there are just some reasons people use to oppose a development, especially housing, that I think are just wrong. So, if you are going to convince me that a housing development is bad for the community, here are the arguments I would suggest you stay away from:

- There is no affordable housing problem — I heard this argument at the Marion Township meeting. As a reporter that has investigated this issue in the past, I can tell you this argument is false. First of all, affordable housing does not mean "low income housing." Affordable housing in Charlevoix County is a single family home under $120,000, according to the household incomes of the county. Low income housing is generally defined as housing that is government subsidized. While there are many low income housing projects going on in the city of Charlevoix and the surrounding area, there is a serious lack of affordable housing. I can say this not only as a reporter that studied the issue, but as someone who is currently in the market for a new home and has been keeping an eye on real estate.

This is causing a serious decline in young families in the area simply because they can not afford to live here. And this causes a ripple effect in the community. With fewer young families there are fewer students in the school districts. With fewer students in the school districts, there is less money for the schools. With less money for the schools, education suffers. When education suffers, the community suffers. When the community suffers, the housing values suffer.

- This housing project will hurt my property value — First of all see above. Second of all, I seriously doubt that many developments will actually cause the property value of your Charlevoix home to plummet to the point where you will not make a profit if you sell it. This is especially true if you have homes valued at $120,000 around your home that is valued at $200,000. A new $120,000 home is not a dirthole. Many of these homes are very nice. By the way, even a $120,000 home will be tough for many young families to afford. To afford a $120,000 home, a family probably would not have any other bills.
- I didn't move out here to live by that/This will hurt the scenery — These arguments are just silly. Even I know that the only way to truly control what your neighbor does with his or her property is to buy it from them.
- I don't want those people near me — This argument gets me the most angry. Generally, the person saying this really is not talking about affordable housing, but is talking about low income housing and is basically saying people of a low income are not desirable people. How dare they?

I grew up in a very poor single-parent household. My mother worked her butt off to make ends meet and keep our house looking nice. And the neighborhood I lived in had other families in the same situation. Generally, I found these to be the most decent people on the face of this Earth and the kind of people that worked hard to keep their homes and selves looking respectable. So, they didn't have money to buy the newest and most fashionable clothing or toys. I would take a decent poor person as my neighbor any day over a snobby rich jerk.

I should end this column here. I am starting to get red in the face and am beginning to shout out the lines I am writing.

Even objective journalists have their touchy issues.

The 'midnight ride' of the tree loving Bruce MacArthur

Edith Gilbert

'Behind the news'

If you plan to buy property in Charlevoix, you better not mess with our trees!

Bruce MacArthur will be ready to ride like Paul Revere "to spread the alarm through every Charlevoix village and farm for country folks to be up and arm...."

The result of his recent alert, "the trees will fall!" generated so much citizen's response that there was standing room only at the city council meeting on Oct. 20.

Everyone was there. Mary Adams from Keep Charlevoix Beautiful; Dave Garland from the historical society, Paul Novak from the garden club, Roger Knutson and Bob Irving from the Trade Tree Commission, Linda Mason from the Charlevoix Merchants Association, Bob Heath from the Historic Preservation Committee; Brownie Flanders, John Campbell and Patty Sitzema from the City Planning Commission and several members of the Lions Club and President of the DDA Hugh Mason.

Briefly, the issue before the council was — should the recommendation from the City Planning Commission to cut down 12 Douglas fir pine trees on Bridge Street, on the former property of McDonald's, be approved? Cutting down the hundred feet high, two foot in diameter trees was solely at the request of Tammy Van Sumeran, representing the new proposed Family Video store. In defense of the City Planning Commissioners: 1) Public comment was invited, but none was given. 2) The request to remove all "vegetation from the area" was not interpreted to mean removing the stately pines!

This is not the first time the trees have been threatened and saved. In checking with the register of deeds in the County Building,

The fight to save the pine trees on Bridge

GILBERT

ing, MacArthur learned that the trees had been planted by Betsy Mason's grandfather, who rented cabins at that site. Betsy is now married to Hugh Mason, President of the DDA.

Betsy's father, Charles Papineau told MacArthur that when he sold the property to MacDonalds' in 1981, the city said that 100 parking spaces were needed and the trees would have to come down. MacDonald's owner refused and told the city "sue me!"

In 1995 the new owner of McDonald's wanted to cut the trees down and was persuaded by Vince Currier to "limbing" them up, thereby saving the trees again.

Although Family video is within its legal rights to cut down the trees, considering the hue and cry from the citizens of Charlevoix, they decided it would be foolish to do so.

Finally, the famed poet Longfellow concludes in Paul Revere's Ride: "For borne on the night-wind of the Past Through all our history, to the last In the hour of darkness and peril and need The people will waken and listen to hear...." how the people of Charlevoix feel about their trees!

The next time you drive through Bridge Street take a look for yourself at these stately old pines and remember why Lake Charlevoix used to be called Pine Lake.

Veterans' Day

Editor:

On Tuesday, Nov.11, 2003 at 11 a.m. we will be remembering the fiftieth anniversary of the day known as Veterans' Day. What are you planning to do on that day? Will you be doing anything special as a group? Or, will you be voluntary service at a hospital, nursing home or other veterans service organizations? It is our duty to remember our veterans and teach the younger generation of the sacrifices that our veterans made for all of us. If you don't know what Veterans' Day is, please take the time to learn the history of this date.

Nov. 11, is the anniversary of the Armistice, which was signed in the Forest of Compiegne by the allies, and the Germans in 1918, ending World War I, after four years of conflict. In November of 1919, President Woodrow Wilson issued his Armistice Day proclamation. In 1927 Congress issued a resolution requesting President Calvin Coolidge to issue a proclamation calling upon officials to display the Flag of the United States on all government buildings on Nov. 11, and inviting the people to observe the day in schools and churches. But it was not until 1938 that Congress passed a bill that each Nov. 11 "shall be dedicated to the cause of world peace and.... hereafter celebrated and known as Armistice Day."

After World War II, there were many new veterans who had little or no association with World War I. The word, "armistice" means simply a truce; therefore as years passed, the significance of the name of this holiday changed. Leaders of Veterans' groups decided to try to correct this and make Nov. 11 the time to honor all who had fought in various American wars, not just World War I. In Empoiria, Kansas, on Nov. 11, 1953, instead of an Armistice Day program there was a Veterans' Day observance. Ed Rees, of Emporia, was so impressed that he introduced a bill into the House to change the name to Veterans' Day.

The name was changed to Veterans' Day by act of Congress on May 24, 1954. In October of that year, President Eisenhower called on all citizens to observe the day by remembering the sacrifices of all those who fought so gallantly, and through rededication to the task of promoting an enduring peace. The president referred to the change of name to Veterans' Day in honor of the servicemen of all America's wars. I hope when you go out into your community you can use this information to educate our youth of today.

Wal-Mart

Editor:

I take my computer to lap to tap out my joy at the prospect of a Wal-Mart in our little village.

"Why?" you ask. Because of their policy of lower prices no matter what the hidden costs.

What hidden costs? Hiring with their knowledge, sub contractors who use illegal aliens (Traverse City Record-Eagle; Oct. 24).

Selling illegal invasive Loose Strive until stopped by citizen action in the Petoskey store.

Taking out life insurance on all their employees, with Wal-Mart being the beneficiary.

Locking the doors at quitting time and forcing workers to continue at their tasks.

Keeping female employees at lower jobs and lower pay while advancing males with less time and experience.

Keeping unions out of their stores so that it is always one poor employee against the entire weight of the giant Wal-Mart structure.

Selling items at higher costs than local markets. Example: Bite size carrots at $1.65 a pound compared to Glens, Charlevoix for $1 a pound; including organic!

So let's all give a cheer if Wal-Mart gets in (to us!)

Round two was won by Mary Jo Jay and Kathy Cooley of Petoskey with 7,940 points.

Land donated to conservancy

Longtime Conservancy supporter Rik Lobenherz recently took a step to further land protection along a stretch of US-31 that will enhance the beauty of that travel corridor for both motorists and recreational trail users.

Lobenherz amended a conservation easement over his private land, ensuring that 1,800 additional feet of road and pathway will forever be void of development.

"I strongly believe in and support the Conservancy's initiative to have a significant role in preserving and enhancing the landscape between Charlevoix and Petoskey," Lobenherz said.

"With the completion of the bike path and the continuance of conservation easements such as this, we can have a model corridor linking our communities. We have a wonderful opportunity to create a permanent benefit to the future generations that live and travel in our area."

The newly protected property includes nearly 20 acres that lie adjacent to 94 acres protected in 1995 by Lobenherz and his partners with the Charlevoix County Club. All told, a total of 1.2 miles of continuous scenic road and pathway are included within the protected land.

"Everyone who travels this stretch of US-31 can he grateful for the foresight and generosity that Rik has had," said Tom Bailey, executive director for Little Traverse Conservancy.

"None of these views can be taken for granted anymore, but nothing is more permanent than land protected this way."

The Little Traverse Conservancy has worked with landowners along this stretch of US-31 to protect nearly 650 acres of land and more than five miles of US-31 frontage.

Most of this land protection has occurred since 2000 when the conservancy launched its US-31 Scenic Protection Program with the support of several individuals and foundations.

For more information about conservation easements or the Little Traverse Conservancy, please contact their office at (231) 347-0991.

The Little Traverse Conservancy was established in 1972 as a non-profit land conservation organization working in five counties: Emmet, Cheboygan, Charlevoix, Chippewa and Mackinac.

Its mission is to protect the natural diversity and beauty of northern Michigan hy preserving significant land and scenic areas, and fostering appreciation and understanding of the environment.

With the support of more than 4,100 members, it has worked with landowners to protect more than 20,000 acres of land with more than 60 miles of shoreline along northern Michigan's streams, rivers and lakes.

Big Rock reactor arrives in South Carolina

A major decommissioning milestone for Consumers Energy's Big Rock Point Restoration Project was completed Oct. 30 when the plant's reactor vessel was delivered to a licensed disposal site in Barnwell, S.C.

"The safe transport and disposal of the reactor vessel is a testament to the precise planning that has taken place over the past several years and represents a giant step forward toward our mission of returning our site to a green field status, free for unrestricted use," said Kurt Haas, Big Rock Point site general manager.

The reactor vessel was packaged inside a steel canister that is 25 feet long, 13 feet in diameter, and has walls up to seven inches thick. The vessel and entire canister were filled with 114,000 pounds of concrete, creating a solid package.

The entire package weighed more than 565,000 pounds.

Its journey to the disposal site began Oct. 7 when it was transported 52 miles in two days over public roads from the plant in Charlevoix, Mich. to a railroad site south of Gaylord. It was moved on a heavy haul trailer with 36 independently controlled axles and 144 tires.

Two 1,000 horsepower engines, nicknamed "Elvis" and "Big Daddy" moved the load over the roads.

At the Gaylord railroad site employees removed the container from the heavy hauler, transferred it to a special rail car and then secured the container to the rail car.

The rail journey from Gaylord to Barnwell began Oct. 14. The trip took eight days to complete and covered approximately 1,200 miles. Due to the weight of the container, the rail journey was limited to a maximum speed of 10 miles per hour in northern Michigan and 25 mph for the rest of the trip. Four rail companies were involved in the move that saw the shipping container pass through the states of Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky Tennessee, Georgia, North Carolina and South Carolina.

BNFL was awarded a $35 million contract from Consumers Energy in 1999 to remove major components from the plant and demolish plant structures.

Consumers Energy and BNFL employees accompanied and documented in photos the shipment to Barnwell. They traveled in a rail passenger car that was located at the rear of the several rail cars employed to move the container.

Big Rock Point was the world's first high power-density boiling water reactor and an important research site for the nuclear power industry. The plant was shut down on Aug. 29, 1997, after 35 years of service, making it the nation's longest running nuclear plant. Due to its many contributions to the nuclear and medical communities, Big Rock Point was named a Nuclear Historic Landmark by the American Nuclear Society.

Consumers Energy, the principal subsidiary of CMS Energy, provides natural gas and electricity to more than six million of the state's nearly 10 million residents in all 68 Lower Peninsula counties.

Steam drum move expected to be complete this week

Another major part of Consumers Energy's Big Rock Point Restoration Project is being shipped out, marking another step toward returning the site to a green field.

Shipment of the steam drum was scheduled to begin early Tuesday, but could be rescheduled in the case of bad weather. The road portion of the shipment was expected to be completed by 6 a.m. on Tuesday.

A heavy haul trailer will move the steam drum over surface roads from the plant to a railroad siding in Petoskey. At the railroad siding, a crane will be used to transfer the steam drum from the heavy haul trailer onto a rail car. This work is expected to take approximately one day.

The steam drum will then be transferred by rail to a licensed disposal facility in Clive, Utah. The rail portion of the trip is expected to take approximately 10 days.

The steam drum is almost 41 feet long and has a maximum outside diameter of 10 feet. It weighs approximately 200,000 pounds. It was used to remove moisture from steam during plant operation. It is classified as low-level radioactive waste.

Big Rock Point's reactor vessel was shipped in a similar manner last month to a disposal site in Barnwell, S.C.

Stock trader opens office in Charlevoix's downtown

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The trading game is thriving well in Charlevoix with the start of a new local stock brokerage I-Trade Direct.

The company opened the doors of its new office on July 1, 2003 located on Bridge Street, right next to the bridge and Round Lake, above the dental office of Jeffrey Porter.

I-Trade Direct has two offices in Florida and did have one in Harbor Springs. Company CEO Dan Koffman said I-Trade simply grew to large for its Harbor Springs office, so it had to move into a larger office in Charlevoix.

And it doesn't look like the company's growth is going to stop there. Koffman said I-Trade is hiring new brokers and other employees now and is hoping to expand the size of its office further.

"There is a lot of potential to expand in several different ways of our business," he said.

Currently, the company has 11 employees in its Charlevoix office, four of them are licensed brokers.

Koffman said the company has been around since 1986, when it originally was a mutual fund company. He said it expanded out and got bigger when it was bought by Eric Arlt, the current owner.

To get closer to its clients, the company expanded its offices from Florida to Michigan, which eventually led it to Charlevoix. Koffman has been in Charlevoix for seven years and spent about six years working with Bank One as a broker.

He has been in the stock market business for about 13 years.

"We do a lot of things in the market that others don't, " he said.

With its wider scope on the market, Koffman said the company has been very successful, even when the market is dropping.

Its hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday and can be contacted by calling (231) 237-0600.

Help available for kids needing coats

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

As Charlevoix residents dig their winter coats out from off-season storage, some parents are facing the prospect of bitter cold, snowy weather without warm covering for their children and themselves.

Staff at the Charlevoix and Emmet Counties Family Independence Agency (FIA) have organized the bi-county agency's second annual Coats for Kids drive to make sure area residents can bundle their families up this winter.

"The population we deal with is in need and we would like to make sure they are taken care of as best we can. Also that they can sustain as good a life as possible when their circumstances won't allow them to provide it for themselves," Jennifer Vollmer, the community resource coordinator for the FIA, said.

Starting Nov. 3 the agency is accepting donations of clean, new and gently used coats, hats, scarves and mittens. The drive is primarily geared toward gathering children's outerwear, but adult gear will also be accepted and distributed.

Donations can be dropped off until Dec. 19 at drop boxes available at Kmart in Charlevoix and at Glen's and Carter's grocery stores in Boyne City and Petoskey.

Distribution of those donations will begin Nov. 10.

Those in need can pick up a coat or other cold weather wear from 10 a.m. to noon the first Monday of the month and from 5 to 7 p.m. the third Monday of the month at Trinity Fellowship Church, located at 401 State Street in Boyne City.

Or from 9:30 a.m. to noon on Thursdays at the Seventh Day Adventist Church, located at 326 Park Street, in Boyne City.

Or from 10 a.m. to noon on Mondays and Wednesdays, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Tuesdays and from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m. on Thursdays at the Friends and Neighbors Seventh Day Adventist Church, located at 1404 South Howard Street, in Petoskey. If those locations are inconvenient the FIA is willing to use its office at 2229 Summit Park Drive, in Petoskey, as a distribution site.

The FIA is looking for volunteers to help with the drive. For more information contact Vollmer at 348-1600.

Local students going to Washington D.C.

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Five Charlevoix students with a penchant for politics are headed to Washington D.C. today for the Second National Youth Summit.

Andrea Ruhlman, AnnaKate Trubilowicz, Libby Campbell, John Wilkinson and Matt Burtt, seniors in Charlevoix High School government teacher Annmarie Conway's advanced placement class, were selected by Conway to attend the summit.

The Charlevoix group signed on for the all-expense-paid experience, sponsored by the United States Department of Health and Human Services, after the opportunity recently fell in Conway's lap.

She received a call from 73rd District State Representative Doug Hart, representing Rockford, informing her that scholarship funded summit openings were available to her students.

Hart said, "I'm impressed with Annmarie and the testimony provided when I visited Charlevoix. We chose this particular, school, teacher and kids because were think they exemplify positive attributes."

In spite of the late notice, Conway jumped at the chance for the kids to participate.

"It was very hard to choose what students would go — these students are dedicated and they challenged themselves this year," she said.

The students leave this evening, Nov. 5, flying out of Traverse City, and switching planes in Detroit before heading to D.C.

Drew Buchholz, of the Civics Institute and the Michigan House and Civics Commission, will be the student advisor traveling with the group.

They said this trip will be a new and exciting political experience for them and for Burtt, the traveling itself will be one for the baby book as he journeys by plane for the first time.

While at the two-and-a-half day summit, they, along with about 1,000 other young people, youth service professionals, policy makers and community leaders, will attend, a town hall meeting and workshops to develop a "tool kit"

"This (the summit) has been specifically put together for kids to develop tool kits and to come back to the community to help with community service projects and community leadership," Conway said. "The goal is to build on the strengths of our youth.."

The Charlevoix team will return Nov. 8 with their tool kit in hand. It will include information as to how they plan to develop and implement a project to enhance "Positive Youth Development" in Charlevoix.

According to information given to the students, "Positive Youth Development is a policy perspective that emphasizes services and opportunities to support all young people in developing a sense of competence, usefulness, belonging and power."

Information from the summit will be a lot to digest and craft into a tool kit but those attending are excited to meet the challenge.

Burtt said, "Not a whole lot of people have the chance to go to D.C. and be involved."

Trubilowicz added that this is a wonderful opportunity for them to meet people from around the country and to learn from them.

What they learn and partake in could even lead to bigger things both for the community of Charlevoix and for the individual students.

Campbell said the summit will help her to decide whether politics is a career path she should take.

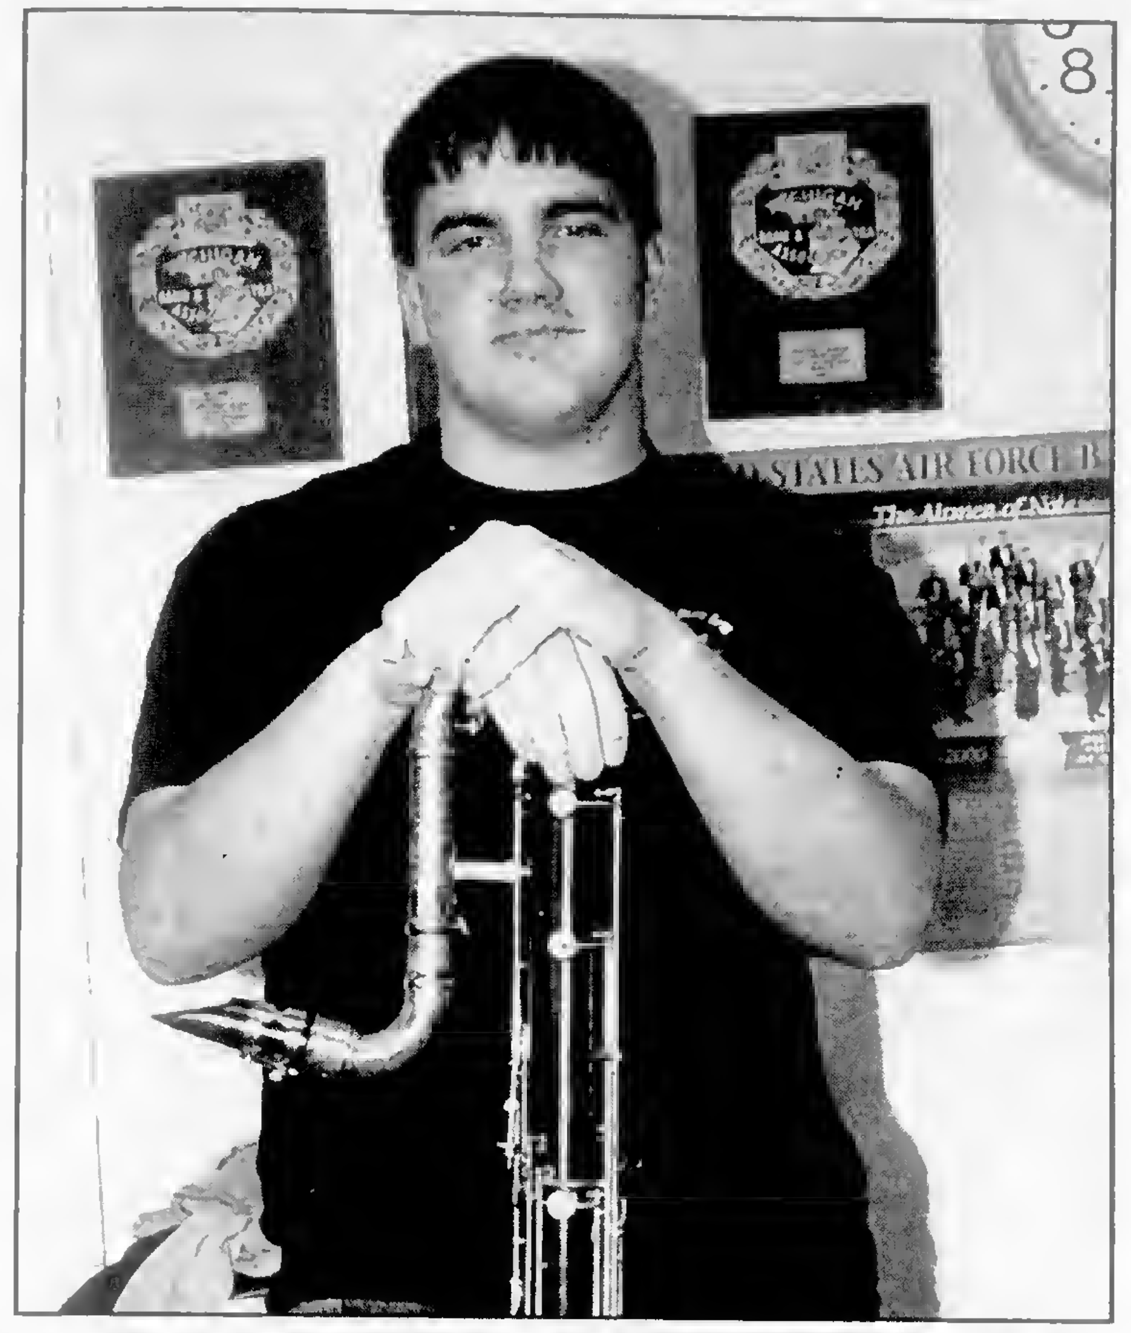
Academy brings students from around area



Ted Slough, contra bass clarinet player in the Northwest Academy Advanced Band recently transferred to the charter school from East Jordan High School because of its strong music program. (Photo by Julie Witthoeft)

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

During the week, Ted Slough climbs into the driver's seat of his red Camero at around 7:30 a.m., flips on his radio and starts his half hour commute from Ellsworth to Charlevoix.

Slough is a 17-year-old senior who transferred to Northwest Academy this year from East Jordan High School, because of the charter school's top notch music program.

"It has opened up doors for me," he said.

And he isn't the only Northwest student from out-of-town taking advantage of what the school has to offer. School administrator, Scott Cochran, said about half of the school's students are local and the rest commute anywhere from 30 minutes to an hour to get there.

"These programs are hard to find," he said.

The school recently added a daily strings class to their music course choices which include participation in four bands, an orchestra and two choirs.

The bands, individual musicians and director of music Gary Stutzman have been drenched with honors since the school opened in 1997.

Most recently, the advanced band was recognized by the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association.

Stutzman was notified in May that out of 31 musical ensembles, Northwest is one of 12 selected to play at the association's fifty-ninth annual conference to take place Jan. 23 at the esteemed Hill Auditorium in Northwest Academy begins fund-raiser

NORTHWEST

Ann Arbor.

To prepare for the event, the high quality, low budget band is in need of some assistance from the community. The marching band uniforms they currently have were donated in the fall of 1997 and are in disrepair. The school is looking to buy formal, concert uniforms for the student musicians.

Members of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce were sent letters requesting support. As of Oct. 30 the funds for five uniforms had been donated.

The cost is $100 per uniform and the goal is to outfit all 28 students in the advanced band. Stutzman said he is hoping the free concerts the students perform throughout the year at various community events will be incentive for those who benefit to support the school.

To donate, make checks payable to Northwest Academy and send them to 115 West Hurlbut Street, Charlevoix, MI 49720. For more information contact Stutzman at 547-9000.

Prescription drugs use may have caused crash

At around 3:30 p.m. Oct. 26 the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department investigated a single vehicle crash on M-66 near Villa Nuava subdivision.

A 1989 Ford Ranger pick-up truck driven by a 26-year-old East Jordan man ran off the roadway, hitting a fence, then striking a large tree head on.

The man was transported to Charlevoix Area Hospital where he was treated for a fractured wrist, a sprained ankle, a laceration to his leg, facial and head injuries and minor cuts and scrapes. He was treated and released.

It is believed that prescription medications may have been a factor in this accident. The accident remains under investigation by the sheriff's department.

Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater urges motorists taking prescription medications, especially multiple medications, to read the labels and precautions. And also consult with their physician before operating a motor vehicle on the highway.

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department was assisted at the scene by the Charlevoix City EMS and Fire and also the East Jordan EMS.

Local man wants to start own military museum

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

A military museum may have found a home in Charlevoix Township.

Charlie Butcher, commander of Charlevoix's American Legion Post 226 and senior vice commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 1153, entered a request last week to have the Charlevoix Township Zoning Board of Appeals grant him permission to operate a military museum out of his garage.

Butcher is semi-retired from his career as a products liability consulting engineer and thought this would be a fun thing to do.

"I thought I ought to put these things to good use — let someone else enjoy them, too. They can't if they can't see them," he said.

The site is located at 06362 Old US-31 South near Brumm Showroom and Wojan Plumbing Heating and Air Conditioning.

In September, he requested the township planning commission approve a special use permit for the museum. At that time his neighbors were informed of the plan and he said they "pretty much" all responded without objection.

But that public hearing was canceled when the planning commission found this use didn't fit neatly into the township zoning ordinance's permitted special uses for the agricultural district.

The planning commission passing the buck to the appeals board doesn't mean the request will be turned down.

Planning commission chair, Nancy Rajewski, said, "It shouldn't be a problem, we just need to make sure we've crossed all our T's."

The appeals board has not yet made a ruling on the request.

If he is given approval, Butcher said it would take a while to get the museum up and running.

The museum may eventually house artifacts Butcher collected while serving with the Army and Air Force from 1944 to 1951 and other uniforms, weapons and artifacts from the Civil War, World War I and World War II.

The array of memorabilia includes the crown jewel, Butcher's 2.5 ton 1941 GMC cargo and troop carrier that was used in the 1944 invasion of Normandy.

He bought the truck a year ago from a man in York, Penn. It spent this spring and summer in the shop getting a paint touch up and some mechanical and electrical work done.

Butcher plans to charge people to view these relics, but hasn't yet decided on an admission fee.

He said he'll make those detailed decisions if the appeals board grants his request. In general his plan is to start small and expand internally, he said all of the museum would be enclosed in the garage.

The site would be marked with a sign and parking would be in his driveway.

Charlevoix's airport issue still not resolved

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Charlevoix resident and pilot Dave Scott is "disgusted" with Charlevoix City Council.

"I don't understand what the delay is. I continue to ask for action at every meeting and you (council) take no action," Scott said at Monday night's council meeting.

He is fed up with the direction negotiations of the expired FBO agreement between Island Airways and the city have taken.

The five year agreement between the two entities, in which Island Airways agrees to perform maintenance functions at Charlevoix Municipal Airport as well as provide service to Beaver Island, expired earlier this year.

The city and Island Airways are currently operating under the old contract while City Manager Mike Wiesner re-negotiates a new agreement.

In August, Wiesner told council he would present a new contract to them for approval within a month. And now that November has rolled around, Scott wants to see a contract and doesn't feel it should necessarily be guaranteed to go to Island Airways.

"Should Mike Wiesner sit in an office with Paul Welke (owner of Island Airways) and decide what the future of the airport is," Scott said.

In the past Scott has brought maintenance concerns at the airport to council's attention. But at Monday night's meeting his concern was not only that the airline is not living up to its maintenance agreement but that the city isn't following the letter of the law.

He said the city ordinance requires the contract be bid out and that users of the airport, including passengers and private pilots in need of fuel, could get a better deal if the contract was bid out.

Third ward councilman Sherm Chamberlain said he doesn't feel the fares to Beaver Island would go down if the contract was bid out.

Scott's concerns, along with recent violations of the hanger leasing contract by Island Airways prompted mayor Gabe Campbell to recommend the formation of an Airport Commission. He suggested the commission be separate from city staff to look over operations at the airport and regularly report back to council.

"There is too much going on that we are not up on," Campbell said.

Wiesner disagreed with Campbell that the city is not in the know about airport operations. Scott even said that he doesn't know if an airport commission is the answer, but he does want answers and soon. He urged council to make a motion in favor of bidding out the contract.

"Eliminate the monopolistic opportunity one airline has at the airport," he said. "Tell Mike (Wiesner) to do what he hasn't done and put this thing out for bids."

Third ward council member Shirley Gibson made the motion to put the contract out for bids and was seconded by second ward council member Karen Campbell.

Before city clerk Liz Gooch could call for the final vote, city attorney Jim Young piped up and said Scott's allegation that the city ordinance requires the FBO Agreement be bid out is false.

Young said, "Act for the right reasons, not the wrong reasons. It is not required by the ordinance. You may put it out for bid, but do so because it is in the public interest, not because of an inaccurate lay opinion that you are violating the ordinance."

Under the agreement the city is giving Island Airways license to operate on city owned property. In return the city takes in some money for fees the airline collects and they operate various services. Wiesner said this relationship is a "win, win" for the city and Island Airways because the city could not operate the airport at a break even point.

Wiesner assured council that the amended contract would be in their hands by Dec. 1.

This assurance was good enough for Gibson and council member Campbell who withdrew their motion to bid out the agreement.

"I'm giving them one more chance," Gibson said.

Local Junior Achievement seeking donations

Junior Achievement volunteers are again raising money for the Charlevoix Schools Junior Achievement programs for fifth, sixth and seventh grades.

Junior Achievement has partnered with Charlevoix schools over the past several years to provide business and economics programs in conjunction with the schools' social studies curriculum.

The addition of seventh grade classes beginning last year has increased the financial support required. Many businesses and individuals have contributed generously over the years, but when seventh grade was added, the costs increased by about $2,700.

The Charlevoix Junior Achievement Advisory Board now needs to raise $5,243 to cover its annual costs. Because Junior Achievement teaching consultants are local volunteer business people, costs are limited to the materials required for the actual classes.

Junior Achievement and Charlevoix Schools deeply appreciate all their donors and are hopeful that many more businesses in our school community will sponsor at least one of our 13 classes this year. Each sponsor receives a certificate of appreciation, and their business is identified on all class materials used and taken home by the students.

The Junior Achievement programs cover business and economics principles from a national and global perspective.

Four fifth grade classes in "Our Nation" study how businesses operate in the United States, including types of business organizations, resource requirements, manufacturing processes and marketing and advertising approaches. Sixth graders in four classes of "Our World" study imports and exports, the role of foreign exchange and how countries are interdependent.

In studying the "International Marketplace," five seventh grade classes learn how people and cultures throughout the world are connected through trade.

Junior Achievement is a nonprofit organization serving the schools, businesses and community. Support from businesses, foundations, service clubs and individuals in Charlevoix has been excellent because these people understand the need for a well-educated workforce and appreciate the value in their investments.

Junior Achievement volunteers are continuing to make calls for additional funds, which are tax deductible.

If you wish to sponsor a class or make a contribution of any amount to the Charlevoix Schools JA program, please contact any of the Charlevoix JA Advisory Board members: Derek Chowen at 237-0643, Becky Scheelk at 348-6623 or Margo Johnson at 547-0866.

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The Charlevoix High School girls' varsity cross country team finished eleventh out of 27 teams at the state finals Nov. 1.

"It was a fantastic day to race. Six out of seven girls set personal records," coach Mary Plude said. "Our depth really helped us....We really had a fine season this year and this race capped it off so nicely."

Individual results were: Lindi Edger in twenty-fourth, with a time of 19 minutes, 47 seconds; Theresa Martin in one hundred and third, with a time of 21 minutes, 5 seconds; Brenna Bergmann in one hundred and thirteenth, with a time of 21 minutes, 20 seconds; Sonya Plude in one hundred and nineteenth, with a time of 21 minutes, 25 seconds; Emily Westenbroek in one hundred and fifty-first, with a time of 21 minutes, 51 seconds; Mia Matchett in one hundred and fifty-eighth, with a time of 21 minutes, 58 seconds and Anna Taylor in one hundred and sixty-fourth, with a time of 22 minutes, 3 seconds.

Plude commended Edger for her running in the race. She added her shoe was "spiked" off her foot about 800 meters into the run.

"She settled down and by half-way through the race was in great position to be All State," Plude said.

Edger is a freshmen. The only other Charlevoix runner that was named All State as a freshman was Liz Ulrich.

"It will be a pleasure to look forward to next season with 10 out of our top 12 returning and 22 of our 25 returning," Plude added.

Art center to have Wargin's photographs

The Crooked Tree Arts Center's Visual Arts Series upcoming exhibition, the Ed Wargin Voelker Collection opens with a reception from 7 to 9 p.m. on Monday, Nov. 10.

The photographs Ed Wargin made on his treks to the secret fishing pond of Judge John Voelker, alias Robert Traver will be exhibited through Dec. 5. The Voelker Collection is featured in "Voelker's Pond, A Robert Traver Legacy," published by the Huron River Press. (www.huronriverpress.com)

Wargin's photography is stunning as the mood, depth of color and natural subject matter takes the viewer to a somewhat familiar, yet mysterious setting. Included in photographs are actual artifacts used by Voelker, including flies, rods and personal memorabilia. Some of the items in the photographs will also be on display in the Edith Gilbert Gallery of the Crooked Tree Arts Center, on loan from a private collection.

Wargin's photographs of Voelker's Pond have been featured in several publications. One of the images from the Voelker Collection was recently purchased by the Orvis Company, to placed on the cover of an upcoming catalog cover.

Wargin began his photography career more than 20 years ago, photographing amidst the ever-changing and dramatic shores of Lake Superior. He went on to become a commercial photographer, traveling around the world to create advertisements for clients such as GMC Motors, Inc., Caterpillar Tractors, Arctic Cat, Anheuser-Busch, Inc., Johnson Motors, Monsanto, as well as editorial clients such as Newsweek, The Boston Globe, Natural History Magazine, Progressive Farmer, Traverse Magazine, HOUR Magazine, Rodale Press and more.

For more information, visit www.thewargincompany.com.

A special evening with Wargin and James McCullough, Voelker's Pond essayist, will be at 7 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 13. Wargin will also make comments on Saturday, Nov. 15 at the Opening Reception for the Crooked Tree Arts Center's Annual Photography Exhibition as he is serving as the juror for the 2003 show.

For more information, contact the Crooked Tree Arts Center at (231) 347-4337 or www.crookedtree.org. The arts center is located at 461 E. Mitchell Street in downtown Petoskey.

The Crooked Tree Arts Center is supported in part by the Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs.

Chamber orchestra to have Charlevoix concert

The Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra will begin the season "Three's a Charm" with concerts at 7:30 p.m. on Nov. 8, in the First Presbyterian Church of Harbor Springs, and at 4 p.m. Nov. 9, at the Congregational Church of Charlevoix.

The concert of "Mostly Mozart" begins the third season by the chamber orchestra in northern Michigan communities; each concert is given in two communities — following the orchestra's mission of bringing live orchestral music to the region.

Under the baton of Maestro Matthew Hazelwood, the orchestra will feature the Internationally recognized soprano, Young Sook Oh, performing Mozart's familiar motet "Exsultate, jubilate," and his concert aria "L'Amero" from the opera "Il re Pastore." The orchestra will also be joined by two Interlochen Arts Academy students, Elizabeth Koch and Pearl Kim, performing J. S. Bach's Concerto for oboe and violin.

Hazelwood and the orchestra will complete the program with Mozart's Symphony 29.

The Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra is made-up of more than 30 musicians from northern Michigan communities of Alanson, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Bellaire, Brutus, Gaylord, East Jordan, Harbor Springs, Mancelona, Newberry, Petoskey and Traverse City.

Margaret Beck, artistic director, and Hazelwood, music advisor provide the leadership and Robert Pattengale, executive Director, works with the volunteer board and staff to make the dream of a chamber orchestra in northern Michigan a reality.

Tickets for the performances are $12 for adults and $ 8 for students, available at the Horizon Book Store, Petoskey, Bridge Street Books, Charlevoix, By the Bay, Harbor Springs, and may be reserved by calling the Crooked Tree Arts Center at (231) 347-4337.

Deal means city owns school for now come up with the money to buy the property. Library representatives are currently hard at work with a capital campaign to start raising money for the project which will renovate and expand the school building. The total project cost is just over $7 million.

But if library representatives are unable to come up with the money, the city may have to unload the other 10 lots.

Mason said, "Now, the library has a year-and-a-half to come up with the funds and if they can't do that, the city will turn around and sell it."

Mayor Gabe Campbell said he supports the city's decision to buy the property because if the library plan falls through, the city has control of what goes there.

"I'll be happy when it's not in our hands, but I think it was a good move," he said.

If the library plan does fall through, the city shouldn't have trouble coming up with potential buyers. Since the property went on the market in August of 2001, private developers have circled it with plans of building condominiums and single family residences.

While this would be an easy sell for the city if push comes to shove, there is one more group that would have to buy the plan — the community. And the prospect of demolishing the old school has been met with serious resistance from residents.

Charlevoix Area Hospital recently hosted the Fourth Annual Baby Fair. The free afternoon event was full of fun and facts for new parents. Different booths offered childbirth preparation information, health and safety for baby, community resources, toys books and kids crafts, a Halloween costume contest and a complimentary photo session. Only 19 percent turn out for election city hall where renovations are taking place, said even though signs weren't put on the Mason Street side of the building, as far as he could tell, people were finding the location.

"We felt people are used to city hall and it would be more confusing to try to direct them to another site. It isn't the best conditions but under the circumstances it's the best we can do," he said.

City staff opted not to call off construction for a day because Wiesner said the site was well cordoned off.

While some wayward city voters took interesting routes to the polls, 19 percent of voters did find their way and successfully cast their vote.

The majority of voters came from the first and third wards where races were contested and Gooch said some came to vote on issues that weren't even on the ballot, like the Charlevoix Public Library millage and a city-funded conference center.

Of the 783 third ward voters, 190 cast a ballot. Of those, 64 percent voted in favor of reelecting Shirley Gibson to her third ward seat.

The final vote was 121 in favor of Gibson and 67 for her opponent, former councilman A.J. Witthoeft.

Gibson said she feels the outcome hinged on the opinion about the convention center project.

"Taxpayers don't want to waste money on a money pit like that. They want a say in how their money is spent," she said.

Witthoeft, who after a two-year break from council decided to make a run for the seat again said he may run in the future. He plans to continue serving the city on the zoning board of appeals.

"I wish Shirley the best of luck," he said

Gibson was first elected in 2001 when she beat out Tom Rankl for the seat by a vote of 98 to 78.

While Gibson enjoys her second two-year term, former first ward councilman Bob Timms will break in his old seat again. Timms beat out his competitor, interim first ward councilman Dave Novotny, by 36 votes. The final vote was 128 in favor of Timms and 92 for Novotny.

"I think they are looking for someone who will take hold and not spend money foolishly. I think my conservative views and the convention center had quite an effect," Timms said.

This was a long awaited victory. Timms ran in 1999 also but lost to Carlson by 21 votes.

Novotny did not return calls by press time.

Voters also voted on uncontested seats.

Second ward councilman Bill Bellows was reelected by 38 voters. The last time Bellows enjoyed an uncontested race was in 1999 when 44 voters came out. But in 2001 he had to fight D.J. Way off for the seat.

City clerk Liz Gooch will retain her post after 386 voters supported her. Gooch also ran uncontested in 2001 bringing in 334 votes.

The next council election in November of 2004 will see first ward councilman Bill Haggard, second ward council representative Karen Campbell and third ward councilman Sherm Chamberlain's seats open up for two year terms. Mayor Gabe Campbell's seat will also expire.

School funding could get cut

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

The Michigan Education Association (MEA) wants to see school districts like Charlevoix use their "rainy day funds" to save other districts from potential ruin, but this could set Charlevoix up for a fall.

Margaret Trimer-Hartley, director of communications for the MEA, said, "We are not asking school districts to go broke. We are simply saying, if you have in excess of what you need. Dip into your own money during this rainy day."

There is a $350 million shortfall in the state's school aid fund that needs to be covered. Last week Gov. Jennifer Granholm proposed making up this huge deficit by cutting per pupil funding by $196 each student in all of Michigan's 682 districts.

Wouldn't be an election without Miller

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

It may have cost 82-year-old Charlevoix native Edna Miller $5 in baby-sitting fees to help run this year's city election, but after over 40 years at the polls she couldn't back out now.

"Why quit now. That's going to keep me going," she said.

Miller was grinning ear to ear when she said with a joking tone that before resting her tired eyes for the night after working 13 hours at the polls, she had to pull out her pocketbook and hand a $5 bill to her sister, Marguerite McKay, who had spent the day watching her Siamese cat.

With another election under her belt she is already looking ahead to next November when she will have to remember to bring home two singles to go with that five, because it will be a presidential election and she'll be gone until after 11 p.m. — when McKay raises her rates.

Miller said she knows she has worked the polls for over four decades, but couldn't say for sure whether it was the late 1950s or early 60s that she first collected ballots.

Starting out way back, when she was a self-described "kid on the block" housewife with a 1-year-old at home. She eagerly joined a group of elderly women to collect and count ballots for nominal pay.

Then, the ballots were paper that had to be folded a certain way with a corner torn off that was placed on a spindle.

But she said unlike this year, when the voter turnout was 19 percent, those days were hopping.

"They all came out, it's not like this election when it's so easy to do and they don't even come out," she said.

While life with a simpler ballot hasn't brought voters out in droves, it along with the electronic vote counter, has made life a little easier for election workers. Miller is happy to avoid her vivid election nightmare when 15 ballots mysteriously disappeared

Court rules Shulick case must have resentencing

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The Michigan Court of Appeals remanded the sentencing of Thomas Shulick back to the Charlevoix District Court last week.

Shulick was convicted in 2002 of second degree murder in the April 2001 death of Elk Rapids resident Scott Cook at the Charlevoix Municipal Marina. He was sentenced to 30 to 50 years in jail by Charlevoix Circuit Court Judge Richard Pajtas.

The Court of Appeals affirmed the conviction of Shulick, but said the judge erred on the sentencing.

According to the Appeals Court, Pajtas erred on the point system used to determine the sentence for such a crime. The court said Pajtas included ten people in his scoring system — for each member of the boating party at the marina — when he should have included only four people, for each person on the boat that Shulick approached that night.

Furthermore, the court said Pajtas erred when he determined that Shulick had interfered with justice by hiding from the police when they came to look for him at his apartment on Antrim Street. The Appeals Court said Shulick did not try to obstruct justice by "doing things such as requesting witnesses to lie or destroy evidence."

The Appeals Court said it seemed that Shulick was trying to evade apprehension and the subsequent charges and not attempt to undermine the judicial process.

Pajtas said at the time he made that ruling, he did not have any appellate cases to go on.

The Appeals Court noted that Pajtas departed from the recommended guidelines of 162 months to 270 months or life when he sentenced Shulick. Pajtas instead sentenced Shulick to 360 months — 30 years — to 50 years.

This is a upward departure for a second degree murder conviction.

At Shulick's original sentencing, Pajtas explained this saying the sentencing guidelines do not take into account the fact that Cook did not die instantly and suffered for many hours. Pajtas said Cook knew he was going to die and was in great fear.

"I am sure there were many people in this county who went out last night and got drunk, were offended, but did not go out and kill somebody," Pajtas said at the hearing. "(Shulick's) only explanation is the demon liquor made him do it."

The Appeals Court did not find any error in this decision, but the court stated on the record, "....we are unable to discern from the record if the trial court would have rendered the same sentence under different scoring conditions and guidelines. While it is likely that the court (Pajtas) would nonetheless have departed from the recommended guidelines, we are unable to discern whether it would have departed to the same degree. Therefore, we find remand for resentencing is necessary to allow the trial court to sentence defendant (Shulick) under the correct guidelines."

As of last week, Pajtas did not have the file from the Appeals Court yet. He said he will probably wait until he gets that file and then set up a scheduling conference with Shulick's attorney and a new sentencing date.

Pajtas added Shulick will most likely be back in the Charlevoix courtroom for resentencing.

Tips for driving safe in the winter

EDITORIAL

You may have noticed, winter is quickly coming this way.

Sure, some of us try to ignore it, hoping it will go away. Others welcome the cold and snow with open arms. But, no matter what your feelings on the subject are, winter will be making another visit to northern Michigan soon.

In fact it has given us a little taste already, such as a few inches of snow on the ground last weekend.

As always, this winter when you are out trying to enjoy the weather or just trying to get from point A to point B in your vehicle, we urge residents to use caution when traveling on the roads.

To help, Charlevoix City Police Chief Dennis Halverson has offered a few safety tips for winter driving:

- The posted speed limit is only a guide for perfect weather conditions. You, as a driver, are still responsible for keeping your vehicle under control on the roads. Remember to drive according to the weather at the time.
- Give yourself some extra time. Halverson said people who are in a hurry run into trouble when the roads are icy.
- Increase the distance between your vehicle and the vehicle in front of you. It is not easy to stop on icy roads.
- Make sure the mechanics of your vehicle are in winter mode. Snow tires and new windshield wipers are a good idea.
- Remember to scrape the windows of your vehicle before leaving. Peering through a small hole you chipped in the ice on your windshield is not a safe move.
- Always wear your seatbelt.
- Lastly, do not drink and drive. While this would seem like common sense, far too many people have already been arrested for this stupid action this year.

Are trees dropping more leaves?

Roger Knutson

'Ear to the ground'

Each year the four sugar maple trees on our lot (and the two next door) turn out more leaves than they did the year before.

This year seemed an especially abundant one. Maybe the trees are getting larger. Maybe I am just getting old and have more difficulty each year clearing the leaves out to the street edge. Maybe it is a sort of tree and leaf related paranoia. Then again even paranoid people are sometimes persecuted. Are my trees persecuting me more this year than most years? I haven't measured the actual amount of leaves on my lawn each year, but I do know that the weight of leaves can vary impressively from year to year.

When I lived in Iowa (yes, there are trees in Iowa), about 350 students and I carefully measured the amount of leaves produced by a mature forest each year. We kept at it for eighteen years (twenty students per year). Over that time the average weight of leaves, twigs and discarded buds produced by all the trees in the forest was about 2.5 tons per acre each year. But it varied dramatically from year to year. The highest year produced almost twice the weight of leaves as did the lowest year. The total weight of leaves was not consistently related to amount of rainfall or to temperatures.

I have no reason to believe that the trees in Michigan are any less variable than those in Iowa. They may even vary more. As deciduous trees are subjected to shorter growing seasons, they generally produce more leaves. That is, northern trees make more leaves in one season than do southern trees of the same kind and size. To grow well in fewer days of useful sunlight, the best response is to make more leaves and trees have been adapting to those sorts of conditions for long enough to have solved the problem of how to grow best. A maple tree in Charlevoix will on average make more leaves and larger leaves than a similar tree in Detroit.

A drive down Michigan Avenue this fall seemed to confirm the abundant leaves theory. There was hardly room for traffic when the leaves were moved to the street. This year's compost from the city's leaf collecting should be especially abundant. Make a note to pick up some next year from the street department and spread it around your trees. That's what the trees would do for themselves if they were living out of town — recycling of the best kind.

Column response

Editor:

A 387 word response to your column on the Marion Township meeting last, in which residents of the township voiced their objections to the proposed new development and in defense of fair journalism.

I found your column very interesting. It seems your anger and frustration prevented you from hearing what was really being said and people are now responding to your inaccurate interpretation of what was really said. No one at that meeting objected to people that would buy and live in those houses; in fact most of the people that spoke are just those families that need affordable housing and are single parents, elderly, as I am, or just beyond poor and are struggling to make payments and keep our children and grandchildren in Charlevoix schools. I will refer you to my previous letter, which your paper printed, this is strictly an environmental issue that I am concerned about for section 11 of the proposed development.

I am a Charlevoix girl that ate oatmeal and depended on school lunches for the better part of two years while my mother worked her butt off to keep us clothed and fed and sheltered, so you are not the only one who grew up poor. I went to that school, raised seven children who went to Charlevoix schools and now have grandchildren attending.

Section 11 has steep slopes of greater than 18 percent with my water well just 50 feet. On top of that slope are trees that will be clear cut for the development and the soil is hydric and wet. Four of the proposed homes of the new development are planned in the swamp along the old railway line. The developers have not lived up to the promises of another development they did previously, so what makes us believe they will do the right thing here? Believe me, there are many issues involved here and who will or will not live there is not the issue.

How dare you print inaccurate information as a journalist, but I understand how you might be so angered by your interpretation that you would get carried away if that was indeed the issue. I would be angered as well.

Julie Heddle
Charlevoix

(Editor's response: Thank you for your letter, but let me refer you directly to that column from last week when I wrote: "I am against a housing development when it harms the environment around it through polluting the water, causing flooding to neighboring properties or other direct assaults on neighboring land. If the Loeb project has these problems, then it is a bad project." Furthermore, the column was not about one housing meeting itself (Loeb project), but a conglomeration of arguments I have heard at a number of meetings of this type. The Loeb meeting caused me to ponder all of these arguments. I have no opinion at this time on the Loeb project, as was stated in the column. To be fair, every one of the arguments I listed, except the "don't want them near us" one, were stated at the Loeb meeting. That argument, sadly, has been heard at a number of other meetings.)

Column response II

Editor:

I agree with a point in your editorial, that residents attending planning commission meetings often stretch logic beyond the elastic limit to make their point. But as an editor, you should not do the same in criticizing them. Examples:

- High housing costs mean fewer young families and fewer pupils in school, resulting in less (state) money for schools, causing loss of quality in the education system.

First, the state aid is per-pupil, based upon the entirely reasonable idea that it costs less to educate fewer students.

Second, if poorer education leads to reduced housing values, then the problem is self-correcting. With your predicted decline in the quality of the school system leading to lower housing values, more young families will be able to afford to live here, resulting in more pupils, and qualifying for more state support of the schools. But then, of course, housing costs will rise again.

- This leads to the larger point. The cost of living in this area is higher than in many other areas. The reason for this is that property values are higher here. This is a fundamental condition we would hope we always have to deal with. Property values are high because this is a very nice area to live. People like to come here and live here, and are willing to pay above average costs to do so. This has been true for well over 100 years. Will it be true in the future? Probably.

Could we, through government action such as providing inadequate schools or making bad land use and zoning decisions, make the area less desirable and thereby reduce property values and the cost of living? We probably could, if we all worked together to achieve that goal. Should that be public policy? I know what my opinion is. What's yours?

- Last, many poor people, as you suggest, can be good and noble neighbors. And rich people can be snobby jerks. But are these fair characterizations? I am neither rich nor poor, but I know many of both types. There are lots of economically distressed irresponsible jerks in the world, and many fine upstanding wealthy people. I think as editor, you should avoid "economic conditionism" in your writing, and judge people for what they are.

Bill Briggs
Charlevoix

(Editor's response: Thank you for your letter, however I never wrote all rich people are "snobby" or "jerks." My argument was just because a person is rich does not make them a desirable neighbor and just because a person is poor does not make them a less desirable person. The way they treat others is a better way of determining the quality of a person than their economic status.)

Ethics, morals

Editor:

There seems to be a problem with the ethics and morals of Charlevoix. On one side you have people fighting the Wal-Mart issue and on the other side, people fighting the low income housing issue.

Charlevoix needs to have things that appeal to a wide array of income levels, not just one. This in return would bring more families to the area. There are some people that say there is all kinds of affordable housing here. Could you please tell me where? $100,000 to $150,000 is not affordable housing. That gets you a fixer-upper house here.

As far as the Wal-Mart issue goes, I am in favor of it. This in return will bring more jobs to the area, which are greatly needed. But yet the city is putting $10.66 million into the marina. Will that create jobs year-round? What about upsetting the ecosysyem? This was the same question that was raised with the building of Wal-Mart near Stover Creek.

Charlevoix needs a wakeup call to start being a part of the real world. This town offers nothing for young struggling families. Charlevoix can blame itself for the high number of vacancies and people relocating out of the area. One has to ask, can you blame them? You want business and people here, then you need to open your eyes, and give a little in return.

Enough said.

Skateboard parks

Editor:

After a recent visit to some of the surrounding area's skateboard parks (Traverse City, Harbor Springs, Gaylord) we would like to investigate the possibility of building one here in Charlevoix. We are looking for interested boarders/bladers, parents, relatives, friends, anyone you may possibly know, who would be willing to help start up this project.

We would welcome any information, legal council, and of course financial assistance. We would also be interested in speaking to those people who may be opposed to this type of park.

If you are interested in helping to get this started, or would like to voice your concerns, please call 547-8063.

Thank you

Editor:

I want to express my deepest thanks to the Charlevoix K-Kids. This group of wonderful young people spent hours raking my yard, removing the tremendous accumulation of leaves.

I can no longer do this work myself, but the K-Kids, aided by a group of parents, cheerfully solved my problem. They were organized and supervised by Kristen Clark, the elementary school counselor.

These young people perform a valuable service and demonstrate a dedication to the ideals of good citizenship.

Thank you again K-Kids.

Paul had confidence in his faith and his God

By PASTOR DAN GILMORE
Charlevoix Church of the Nazarene

Beacons of Blessing

A story is told of an elderly milkman, who, in attempting to convince an indifferent housewife to begin receiving morning cream delivers, simply poured his fresh cream over a bowl of blueberries and offered her the gift.

Only one taste of the delicious gift secured the milkman another daily delivery. By his actions, the milkman demonstrated a firm confidence in his product.

While under capital sentence, Paul the Apostle displayed a similar type of confidence. Confidence, not in the quality of a product, but in the quality and faithfulness of a person. Facing imminent martyrdom, Paul gave this incredulous command: "Be not thou therefore ashamed of the testimony of our Lord, nor of me his prisoner: but be thou partaker of the afflictions of the gospel according to the power of God." (2 Tim. 1:8)

Isn't that amazing? He charged the church to dauntlessly follow him in these life threatening afflictions.

Did this directive proceed from temerity or assurance? I am certain it was assurance! Assurance like that which sent David forth against Goliath and caused Daniel to sleep peacefully in the midst of a lion's den. Do you long to have this kind of inner peace and fortitude in the midst of life's turmoil? Does the example of these courageous saints stir in you a holy desire to have a relationship with Jesus Christ which will hold you strong in the valley of the shadow of death? By the grace of God, may it excite just such desire.

Paul said, "I am not ashamed: for I know whom I have believed, and am persuaded that he is able to keep that which I have committed unto him against that day." (2 Tim. 1:12) There are three great themes in his song of confidence. First, Paul was confident of his relationship with the Savior ("I know whom I have believed.")

The Lord Jesus Christ afforded Paul this strength of spirit. Paul wasn't confident in his situation. He wasn't confident that he would get out of his troubles. He was confident in his relationship with Jesus Christ. Isaiah 26:3 states, "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee: because he trusteth in thee." This confidence of Paul is a testament to the "peace-keeping" power of God.

Second, Paul was confident in the ability of his Savior ("I am persuaded that he is able.") Paul had perfect peace because Jesus was the Lord of His circumstances. Jesus was able to keep him, what need he fear from the world or the grave? "What shall we then say to these things? If God be for us, who can be against us?" (Romans 8:31)

Third, Paul's confidence was based in the certain knowledge that he had committed his life in faith unto Jesus ("He is able to keep that which I have committed unto him.") In the final analysis, it doesn't do us any good to believe in the power and faithfulness of Christ if we haven't repented and entrusted our lives to Him. Paul's security was vested in personal redemption. By purposed action his estate and future were in the hand of He who holds the worlds in His hand.

Therefore, no scheme of evil men or devils was sufficient to wrest God's peace from Paul's heart.

The same God reigns today. The same confident peace is ours to have, in Christ. Do you know this peace today? Come to Jesus! For He has promised, "(All) that cometh to me I will in no wise cast out." (John 6:37)

Charlevoix prosecutor Kur re-elected to board

Mary Beth Kur, Charlevoix County Prosecutor since 1995, was reelected to the Board of Directors of the Prosecuting Attorneys Association of Michigan (PAAM), the association announced today.

She will serve a one-year term through July 2004.

Kur was recognized for her commitment to the citizens of Charlevoix County and her expertise and integrity in prosecution.

"Our government's primary responsibility is to keep our communities safe. Prosecuting Attorney Mary Beth Kur leads this fight at the local level as chief law enforcement officer of Charlevoix county," PAAM President Chuck Sherman said.

"Her peers have chosen her to use that experience to help our association in its statewide effort to make Michigan a safe place to live and raise our families."

"I'm honored to receive this vote of confidence from my peers," Kur said. "I'll make sure that I represent the best interests of the citizens of Charlevoix County."

The Prosecuting Attorneys Association of Michigan was established in 1929. It is voluntary association of all 83 of the state's Prosecuting Attorneys, the Attorney General, and the U.S. Attorneys serving in Michigan.

Its primary purposes are to promote fair, swift and equal justice in enforcing the state's criminal laws, and the continuing education of Prosecuting Attorneys and other law enforcement officials..

Child Support Division helps children in need

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

> "It is very fullfilling to help custodial parents and to get support on behalf of their children."
> Kerry Zahner, Charlevoix assistant prosecutor

When Peggy Himebauch, of East Jordan, started taking care of her two nieces and a nephew, getting help from their parents was easier thanks to the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's office.

Himebauch has custody of her two nieces and a nephew. She said the prosecutor's Child Support Division contacted her when she needed help finding and getting money for the children from their parents, who both live in separate states.

"I don't feel like I am out here all alone," she said. "They have walked me right through it."

Prosecutor's offices across the state offer the service of a child support division to women and men seeking support for children in their care from one or both of the parents. Usually, the prosecutor's office contacts the custodial parent through a referral from the Family Independence Agency or other government organization.

But, what makes Charlevoix County's program unique from other small counties is that it is headed up by experienced attorney Kerry Zahner. Zahner strictly works these cases and no others for the Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney Mary Beth Kur.

"I represent the best interests of the children of parents who have or are currently eligible for public assistance," Zahner said of her job.

As an assistant prosecutor for the Child Support Division, Zahner files court briefs on behalf of these children and their custodial parents and takes the cases before a judge. Zahner sees the case though to the end so the Friend of the Court can track down parents, even if they live in other states, to collect child support payments.

She can also require paternity tests for people to legitimize children born out of wedlock. And she can even go back to the date of the child's birth to get retroactive child support payments from a non-custodial parent.

The cost to custodial parents living in Charlevoix County for this service is nothing. Plus, county prosecutor Kur said the cost to the county is minimal as 66 percent of the division is funded by the federal government.

"It is a great program for those will less money because (Zahner) can see cases from beginning to end," Kur said.

Zahner came to the prosecutor's office in May 1999. She graduated from Charlevoix High School an has a degree from Michigan State University and Capital University Law School.

While in the prosecutor's office, Zahner began working with the Child Support Division.

"I was just interested in it. I have a family law background," she said.

After working with the prosecutor's office for a few years, Zahner started a family of her own and took some time off. But, when she wanted to come back part-time last April, she told Kur she would like to head up the division when its previous head, Carol Quinn, retired.

"It was just a very natural thing. I jumped at the opportunity because she already knew it," Kur said.

At this time, Zahner works with the prosecutor's office three days a week. But, she has been busy.

Since April, she has handled 64 cases, 44 of which she entered orders.

Kur added Zahner's numbers have been impressive. Charlevoix County has a higher performance average with this program than the state average and is the highest of all the small counties in the state.

Plus, very few of the cases that Zahner takes to court or are referred by the Family Independence Agency are dismissed.

"It is very fulfilling to help custodial parents and to get support orders on behalf of their children," Zahner said. "If I can't help them, I point them in the right direction."

For more information on the Child Support Division of the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's Office, contact Zahner at 547-7241 or the Officer of Child Support in Lansing at (800) 540-0008.

McDonald takes ownership of Acorn Cafe

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Scott McDonald's dream of owning his own restaurant has come true.

On Oct. 18, McDonald took ownership of the Acorn Cafe, located on Park Avenue in downtown Charlevoix.

"It was always something I have wanted since I was a kid," McDonald said about owning a restaurant.

But, McDonald is not new to the business. He has a degree in culinary arts from Oakland Community College and he worked for a coupe of country clubs downstate. He also worked for the Omni in Detroit and opened and designed restaurants in North Carolina for two years.

Now, he is bringing his experience to Charlevoix after being told about the availability of the Acorn Cafe by its previous owner Richard O'Leary — who knew McDonald from culinary school.

"I like the small town atmosphere and the friendliness of the people," McDonald said.

McDonald, who does not have any family in Charlevoix, said he has moved to the city and walks to work every day.

As for the business, he said the transition has been very smooth as O'Leary and his wife, Linda, have gone over all the books with him and what to expect each month.

"It is a little nerve-racking, but O'Leary really prepped me on it," he said.

McDonald said he will not make many changes at the Acorn Cafe during his first year. In the future he is planning on a few physical changes, such as outdoor seating, and trying to stay open for dinner, as well as more catering.

However, the big change McDonald will make this year will be simply keeping the restaurant open throughout the winter.

Currently, the Acorn Cafe is open from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m., every day except Tuesday. During the summer, the restaurant will be open from 7 a.m. to 3 p.m., every day.

The Acorn Cafe can be contacted by calling 547-1835.

During the summer, the restaurant will be open from 7 a.m. to 3 p.m., every day. The restaurant may even stay open for dinner in the future and do more catering. (Photo by Jeremy McBain)

Sheriff Deputies to crack down on seatbelt use

"If you won't buckle up to save your life, then buckle up to save yourself a ticket" is the message young drivers across the state will be hearing loud and clear during the "Buckle Up or Pay Up: Click It or Ticket" mobilization Nov. 17-30.

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office is joining more than 500 Michigan law enforcement agencies in a crackdown on unbuckled motorists as part of the national Click It or Ticket mobilization.

The two-week safety belt enforcement wave will be supported by state and national advertising targeted at young drivers in addition to highly visible enforcement. The message to teens and young adults will be seen and heard in television and radio ads watched and listened to by young drivers, over public high school address systems, and through enforcement on major roads throughout Charlevoix County and the state.

"The only proven way to get significant increases in safety belt use among young people and ultimately save lives, is through high visibility enforcement, including targeting advertising to alert people to the enforcement," said Sheriff George Lasater. "Teens and young adults are killed at far higher rates in crashes because they are caught in a lethal intersection of inexperience, risk taking and low safety belt use. These tragedies are predictable and therefore preventable, using proven techniques like high visibility enforcement mobilizations."

According to the Michigan Office of Highway Safety Planning, 346 Michigan teens and young adults, ages 11 to 24, died and 33,746 were injured in traffic crashes in 2002. Fatality rates for teens are twice that of older drivers and the risk of crashes for teens is four times that of older drivers. Two out of five deaths among teens are the result of a traffic crash.

"While Michigan is a national leader in safety belt use at 83.9 percent, we know the remaining drivers who do not wear their safety belts every time are disproportionately teens and young men," said Sheriff Lasater. "Enforcement gets people to buckle up, and safety belt use saves lives. That's what this effort is all about, saving lives."

There are four enforcement mobilizations each year — two for safety belts and two for drunk driving — organized in Michigan by the Office of Highway Safety Planning and nationally by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration and National Safety Council.

Charlevoix students show their pirating side

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Students with the Charlevoix High School Performing Arts Program will transform into true Rayders for the upcoming fall show, "The Pirates of Penzance."

Performing Arts director Connie Ford selected the operetta after doing some preliminary exercises with her students. After gauging their talent and flexibility she knew the group was up for this challenge.

Those who attend this weekend's shows will be treated to one-and-a-half hours of pure entertainment.

"It's a spoof, which makes it a lot of fun," she said. "I think the audience will enjoy the action and the music and the silliness of it."

Performances are scheduled to take place at 7 p.m., Nov. 15 and at 2 p.m., Nov. 16 in the Charlevoix High School Auditorium located at 05200 Marion Center Road. Tickets are available at the performing arts office at the high school and at the door at the time of the performance. They are $5 for adults and $3 for students.

Ford said she is looking forward to the upcoming shows and is happy to escape the more serious tone the group's winter show takes.

She described "The Pirates of Penzance" as a classic, light hearted look at the social issues of the late 1800s.

The over 60-student cast is divided into three primary groups, the daughters, the keystone cops and the pirates.

The daughters Ford said are the straight-laced, protected, English nobility that the "fraidy cat" cops are there to protect. The pirates on the other hand, she said, are fun loving individuals who have shunned society while at the same time looked for ways to be part of it. The story line revolves around a character named Frederick who is grappling with whether or not he's a pirate or if he is free to do what he wants.

"The whole thing is a parody," Ford said.

The cast has been working on perfecting their performance for over a month including time spent practicing song and dance routines and creating the set and costumes.

Ford said their greatest challenge so far has been fine tuning the music — the vocals are rather difficult. The group is hoping to have a live, student band accompany the performance.

City to continue its Christmas light tradition

Some cities stay black due to budget problems

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Dark news about budgets in cities across the state have some communities turning out Christmas lights but the city of Charlevoix plans to keep the downtown twinkling this holiday season.

"The downtown is the focal point of the community — a place where all our community members pass through. The decorations are for the whole community to enjoy and get into the holiday spirit," Jacqueline Merta, director of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, said.

In Livonia, Berkley, St. Clair Shores and Harrison Township, decorating for this holiday season has been scaled back and in some cases phased out altogether to save money.

But Charlevoix residents who are worried that the budget Grinch could also claim local decorations, can rest assured that the downtown will be festive. City treasurer Rick Brandi said that in spite of some revenue losses, $16,000 has been budgeted for decorations this year.

Merta and Mary Adams with Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, took the lead on the decorating project this year.

The two worked closely with electric department superintendent Ed Whitley and city manager Mike Wiesner to come up with a plan that Merta said will be better than in the past without spending more money.

The plan is to light fewer trees with more lights. Trees north of the bridge and some in Veteran's Park that were lit last year, won't be lit this year. She said the plan is to concentrate on the central business district — lighting the trees in a pattern with more strands secured to the branches.

Holiday Lighting Service, Inc., of Manchester, was in town this week hanging lights. This company also decorates Ann Arbor, Jackson and Adrian.

Merta said by having a company that specializes in this type of work do the project, community members can anticipate a bright, beautiful downtown.

"I think it will make a big difference," she said.

The first major lighting event for the community will take place at 6 p.m., Nov. 28 when the large evergreen at the corner of Clinton and Bridge streets in East Park is lit.

While lighting expenses are safe in Charlevoix this year, soon the city council will also have to look at where they can make cuts.

The city's revenues took a 3 percent hit for the current budget when state revenue sharing dollars were cut which Brandi said amounted to about a $10,000 loss. To make up for the loss the city increased its tax millage.

For the coming budget year, Brandi is anticipating more cuts being handed down by the state. The city currently receives around $300,000 in state revenue sharing. He said any cut won't be a major hit to the $2 million in revenue the city brings in annually but the city will have to look at what it can cut.

City council will have its annual budget work session in January with the 2003-2004 budget ready for a public hearing in February.

MEAP results even with last year's

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Test scores recently released by the Michigan Department of Treasury, show Charlevoix High School's graduated class of 2003 stacks up pretty evenly with the class of 2002.

High school guidance counselor, John Prescott, said, "Overall we are pleased with the results from that class (2003). They are really close to the class of 2002 and maintained the high percentage standard that we are used to at Charlevoix High School."

The final Michigan Educational Assessment Program (MEAP) scores for the class of 2003 were released last week. The scores showed students improved over 2002 grades in most testing subjects including science, social studies and writing. But the they lagged behind in math.

Prescott said the district is doing some curriculum "mapping" work to raise science and math scores. In mapping, teachers in the district evaluate the curriculum and try to build where the students have shown weakness.

While more 2003 graduates met or exceeded the state standard in social studies than had the year before, scores were still low with 64 percent having scored below the state standard.

Prescott said the test itself is currently being refined to address this issue.

According to the Michigan Department of Treasury website, the social studies test continues to be the most challenging for students.

It tests a student's knowledge of history, geography, economics and civics.

Only 26 percent of students across the state met or exceeded the state standard for the social studies test.

The number of MERIT scholarship award winners from the class of 2003 has not yet been determined. Prescott said the state is behind and he is anticipating those results to be in soon.

Results from testing of last year's juniors who are currently on the road to becoming 2004 graduates are also behind. The school has requested the state reread seven students' writing scores that came in at level three, "endorsed at the basic level," below the state standard.

Prescott said these students are strong academic performers and have done well with the school's writing curriculum. Because of this, he said the low scores came as a surprise and school officials opted to contest the scoring.

"There have been more major glitches in this (testing) cycle than there have been in the past and that makes us question it even more," Prescott said.

He did not estimate when those scores would be ready but did say that the tests are in a huge pile waiting to be re-evaluated.

Charlevoix sheriff offers winter safety tips

It's right around the corner and most everyone lives it — being warm inside the house as lofty, white snowflakes fall from the sky, creating a winter wonderland, a blanket of white in our communities.

It's hard to think that this season of beauty can be harmless, but as the seasons change, we too must alter the patterns in our daily lives.

Sheriff George T. Lasater advises to know the following tips:

- Know the terms — Blizzard warnings, travel advisories, winter storm watches and warnings, freezing rain and drizzle, sleet. Each of these conditions can make even the simplest task difficult. Be cautious when walking, driving, traveling and others.
- Drive prepared — When traveling during the winter months, make sure your vehicle is properly serviced, maintain a full tank of gas and carry an emergency winter storm kit, including salt, a shovel, flashlight, blanket, battery operated radio, maps, tool kit, extra weather gear and non-perishable foods, such as granola bars. Carry your cell phone with you at all times. Remember to always wear your safety belt, and know how to respond to the conditions. Your speed should depend on road conditions and visibility.
- Don't panic — If your vehicle breaks down, or if you are unable to continue because of winter conditions, pull off the highway, stay calm and remain in your car - don't try to walk through a blizzard to safety. Set your lights to flashing, raise the hood of your car and wait for help to arrive. Don't waste gas by running the heater continuously, and periodically clear snow away from the exhaust pipe.
- Avoid overexertion — Cold weather by itself, without any physical exertion, can put an extra strain on your heart. Activities such as shoveling, walking, or carrying heavy items can cause damage to your body. The combination of both winter weather and physical exertion can be deadly. Use caution, and avoid exerting yourself beyond your capabilities.
- Prepare your home — Power outages are not uncommon in winter storms. Be sure to have candles and matches on hand, as well as extra blankets - enough for the whole family. If you intend to use and emergency heating source such as a fireplace, wood stove or space heater, be aware of potential fire and carbon monoxide hazards. To save heat, close off any unneeded rooms, cover windows at night and stuff towels in cracks under doors. Maintain adequate food and water intake - food provides the body energy for producing it's own heat. While traveling to a hotel or relative's home may seem like the best alternative, consider the outdoor conditions. More times than not, it is safer to stay put than travel in wintry conditions.

"By observing winter storm watches and warnings, along with planning and preparing, you can lessen the impact of winter snowstorms and keep you and your family safe," Lasater said.

I can do that.
Just Ask!

I can do that!
I can do that!

It's a pretty bold statement, considering we don't even know the question yet.. Northwestern Bank is locally owned and each office is locally staffed and managed. Decisions are made right here by people with the answers, who are empowered to do what needs to be done. The person you ask is the person who'll make sure it happens.

You'll never get answers like, "That's not my department." Or, "You'll have to call this 800 number." When you ask anyone at Northwestern Bank, big things happen right away.

If your bank "can't do that," maybe it's time you found one that can.

Middle school auction adds money to district

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

In a time when school budgets are taking a beating, Charlevoix Public Schools has come into a little extra cash.

Two weeks ago the school finalized the sale of the former Charlevoix Middle School with the city of Charlevoix.

The city paid the district $635,000 for the 13 lots the property includes. But what will become of the money the district made in the deal has yet to be set in stone.

Superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools, Dr. John Sturock, said, "Right now, looking at the economic outlook in the state of Michigan, we're probably going to sit on it."

At a school board retreat last week, Sturock said its members said they don't want to see the money spent on the district's operational expenses.

Instead, they would prefer to see it cover capital improvements.

Sturock said to meet the board's aim, this money may be tied into the district's sinking fund to help the district reach its long-range objectives. These include finding a new central office, working on bus garage renovations, constructing tennis courts and making improvements at the elementary school.

However, he said the money has not been formally marked for capital improvements and if state funding continues to nosedive, the final outcome could direct that money to saving programs.

On Saturday the district also made some extra cash at the old school before the doors were closed for the last time, hosting an auction there to sell off loose equipment including desks, chairs and machinery. Proceeds from the sale went to the general fund.

With the school district free of the school and the building itself empty, planning for the site continues.

The plan is for the city to sell 10 lots to the Charlevoix Public Library for $488,460 by February of 2005. Library representatives are currently hard at work with a capital campaign to raise money for the over $7 million project which will renovate and expand the school building.

Over 130 people bid on items at the Charlevoix Middle School auction that took place Nov. 8. At the sale, loose equipment items from the school that the district recently sold to the city were auctioned. (Photo by Julie Witthoeft)

Arrest made in home invasion

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office has arrested a 21-year old Charlevoix Township resident for home invasion, possession of a firearm by a convicted felon, drug possession and habitual offender.

Dustin James Hicks, formerly of Petoskey, was arrested during the investigation of the theft of a loaded .44 magnum revolver from a residence in Hudson Township on Oct. 18. Another 25-year old Charlevoix Township man was also arrested on Department of Corrections parole violations stemming from the same incident.

Hicks has appeared in Nintieth District Court and is lodged in lieu of $50,000 bond. He remains in custody.

The stolen revolver was recovered on Oct. 24 when deputies executed a search warrant in Antrim County's Banks Township.

The Charlevoix County Sheriffs Office was assisted during the intensive week-long investigation by the Michigan State Police in Petoskey, Charlevoix City Police, SANE and the Antrim County Sheriff's Office.

Additional charges are expected on these as well as other suspects.

For Wal-Mart

Editor:

After reading successive letters to the editor on the subject, I decided to weigh in on the issue of whether a Wal-Mart in Charlevoix will destroy civilization as we know it.

If I were to have a reason for not wanting a Wal-Mart in town it would be that I would miss the drive to Petoskey to visit the Wal-Mart there, but then again, I would always have Home Depot to visit.

On the plus side of the equation, I would tend to believe that a Wal-Mart in town would tend to lower food prices across the board. One letter lamented the fate of Glen's, Oleson's and others, if Wal-Mart came to town.

In case you haven't noticed, our food costs are a lot more expensive "up north," than what they are down state. A Wal-Mart would tend to make our "local" food markets more competitive.

In the same vein, if Wal-Mart does come to town I wish they would open a gasoline station. Once again, in case you haven't been out of town or the county for a while, the four gasoline stations in town might as well be operated by the same company.

There is absolutely no competition between these stations. Truth is, there is no reason to be competitive. Since I get around the state on business, I can tell you that currently there is a 17 cent difference between gasoline in Charlevoix and similar gasoline stations down state. If the local stations are going to keep their prices artificially high, at least they could give us a share of their stock with every fill up.

There is no doubt that if Wal-Mart comes to town it will have an impact on certain businesses. Yet, I just wonder if the customer base for Wal-Mart is the same for those that shop our downtown. For example, is the Koucky Gallery and the North Seas Gallery now going to lose out to Wal-Mart? Will the food establishments lose out to the lunch counter at Wal-Mart? Will the resorters abandon the downtown and redirect their buying to the "trinkets and trash" at Wal-Mart? Those who object to Wal-Mart coming to town are acting like the resorters and tourists who have never seen a Wal-Mart. Did people in this town go this nuts when Kmart opened their doors?

Some businesses may be affected with a Wal-Mart in town. Businesses that are on the bubble have to find a niche. Merchants in Petoskey have survived with a Wal-Mart in town, and Charlevoix will survive as well.

Finally, as to those good folks who oppose a Wal-Mart coming to town, I certainly have no objection to their stand. Yet, it may be too little, too late. To keep a Wal-Mart out of your town or township requires some advance thinking on the part of the governmental officials relative to land usage controls, zoning, and the like. I doubt if anyone in the township even thought this was a possibility.

So, if all zoning is appropriate it becomes the story of the 800 pound gorilla. Where does he sit? Answer: Anywhere he wants to, and in this case he wants to sit in the township. Just a few thoughts for your consideration.

For Wal-Mart

Editor:

I have read all the articles on the coming of Wal-Mart to our fine city and how it will destroy its distinct quality. Most of the business owners blame all their problems on Wal-Mart's impending arrival. Who or what would they blame if Wal-Mart wasn't an issue?

The most ridiculous comment I have read was by Vicki McWatters, co-owner of Family Affair Arts and Crafts, that she has decided to close down her business because Wal-Mart wants to come to Charlevoix. Wal-Mart won't be here for two years. Successful businesses do not close down because a competitor is coming to town.

A community never grows or improves if all it can do is place blame. Local businesses should start by cleaning their stores and training their employees to treat customers as a welcome presence not a nuisance. This would go a long way to competing successfully.

Yes, I do shop at Wal-Mart and will do so when they come to Charlevoix.

Keep Charlevoix special

Editor:

Charlevoix is a special place because of its natural beauty. When that beauty is quickly destroyed through the building of megastores (and other large complexes such as the one recently announced for the north side of town) the allure of Charlevoix will be gone forever.

Supports planning commission

Editor:

The Wednesday, Oct. 1, 2003 Charlevoix Courier banner headline read: "Ways sue Eveline Township." Dawson and Mark "Barney" Way are attempting to acquire by lawsuit a change in zoning that they were denied by local authority.

We stand in full support of the Eveline Township Planning Commission's recommendation to not rezone the property in question from farm/forest to R-4, a residential zone that accommodates mobile homes.

The Eveline Township Planning Commission members spent much time thoroughly studying this request before recommending a denial. The findings of fact allowed no other conclusion. The rezone request was then forwarded to the Charlevoix County Planning Commission. They concurred with the Eveline Township Planning Commission that the property should remain farm/forest.

The rezone request was next sent to the Eveline Township Board for the final decision. Once again, after much discussion, the request was denied by unanimous vote.

We appreciate the efforts made by all to carefully consider the Ways' request, but it was determined that this zoning change would not follow the Eveline Township Master Plan nor be in the best interest of the township.

We support the Eveline Township Planning Commission and the Eveline Township Board in their decisions and want them to stand by them.

No effort should be made to settle this matter out of court. The correct decision has already been reached.

If the Ways insist on pursuing this matter in court, let the matter be settled by the court! A few lawyers in closed session, who may only wish to save face or money, should not be determining the direction of this township.

No township should grant a property rezone merely to avoid legal fees and/or court costs. This would set a dangerous precedent by providing a legal means to skirt the regulations of the local government.

This is worth fighting in court.

Sturock doesn't agree with MEA funding plan

FUNDING

Dr. John Sturock

teachers union, later proposed a short-term fix that they say will likely save many school districts that are already broke and couldn't handle this kind of cut, from having to close their doors.

Trimer-Hartley explained the plan is to ask the 337 districts with fund equity over 15 percent of their total operating budget, to spend those dollars for daily operations.

She said, "If you have the means to get through this year with less state aid, do that for the short term."

The MEA claims that if the state legislature adopts this plan, it will save 345 districts from feeling the crunch of a state aid cut.

"This plan protects the school districts that educate 61 percent of Michigan's students," Trimer-Hartley said.

While it may protect those districts from layoffs, cuts in programs and the potential of closing their doors, Superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools, Dr. John Sturock, said it opens the door for this to happen in Charlevoix down the road.

"In two years, with no fund equity, we may have to look at serious cuts," he said.

"We happen to be in a good situation today, but it could change in a year's time. We don't know."

Sturock said Granholm's proposed $196 cut in the per pupil state aid would reduce the foundation allowance for each student to $7,687 costing the district about $270,000 this year. And projections for the future aren't bright. He is anticipating the possibility of another $300 cut per student next year bringing the two-year total to a $500 loss per student.

While these cuts in state aid are coming down the pipe so are hikes in utility costs, insurance rates, teacher contracts and fringe benefit packages, coupled with a loss from declining enrollment.

To keep the current programs Charlevoix schools offer, Sturock said the district's fund equity would be tapped in about two years and that's without the MEA's proposal.

The MEA has calculated Charlevoix Public Schools' fund equity at 36.9 percent of their operating budget. And if the union's plan becomes the state's policy, over half of the local fund equity would be spent.

But Sturock said the MEA has miscalculated, basing its numbers on the 2001-2002 school year. He said the district's current fund equity is around 12 percent or $1,535,344.

While Trimer-Hartley likened districts with beefy fund equity accounts to savings and loan institutions, Sturock said in Charlevoix, the account is a reflection of good planning.

"We were looking ahead and were frugal and now we are able to protect our community and our kids. Should we be penalized because other school districts didn't do that? I don't think so," he said.

But Trimer-Hartley said this short term fix will be for the greater good of all the students in the state.

She said, "Why would you harm 1.7 million students in the state of Michigan when there is a plan on the table that would save 61 percent of those students from any harm at all?"

She said this doesn't have to mean these dollars are lost for good and that if the state opts to go this route, they could also agree to pay the money back down the road.

Granholm said she would consider the proposal, but Sturock doesn't see it going anywhere.

"I would be very surprised if our legislature would buy into something like that. Why should local school districts be penalized for being good budgeters," he said.

The state's final decision on how to handle the deficit will be announced in early December.

The school board met Monday, Nov. 11 and discussed how they plan to react to the probable $270,000 loss. It was decided that the board would draw from its fund equity and make cuts that won't affect school programs.

School board president Dennis Halverson said, "On one side there's the board's financial responsibility to maintain an adequate fund balance. On the other side there the board's circling of the wagon to keep programs safe. We should split some fund balance and some reductions."

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

League leader Traverse City St. Francis defeated Charlevoix, 48-38, last Tuesday in Lake Michigan Conference girls' basketball action last week.

The Gladiators All-State transfer from Flint, Erin Carney, was held to only 16 points, but the Rayders couldn't take advantage.

St. Francis led 16-6 after the first quarter, 27-12 at the half and 39-19 after three periods of play.

Alyssia McDonough led the Rayders with 10 points and seven rebounds. Sarah Cross scored nine points and grabbed nine rebounds.

Kari Way had an excellent all-around game with seven points, six rebounds and seven steals. Shayna Drost scored six points.

Charlevoix coach Jim Parrish praised the defensive play of Brooke Blanchard, who had the unenviable task of guarding Carney, as well as the play of McDonough and Way.

The results will appear in next week's Courier.

Charlevoix opens district play the week of Nov. 17-21 at East Jordan against the host Red Devils.

Charlevoix company to expand its business

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

City council's approval is the final review Charlevoix Manufacturing will have to pass, before the company's plans for a major expansion at its site will have the green light.

Council will make its ruling at the meeting Nov. 17.

Monday night, Nov. 10, the city planning commission and zoning board of appeals gave the long-time local manufacturer the go ahead to move forward with a project that will add 17,500 square feet of space and about 40 jobs.

Jim Hater, general manager of Charlevoix Manufacturing, said, "It will allow us to expand operations significantly. We will essentially double the size of the building and the number of employees."

The zoning board approved a 10-foot side yard setback and the planning commission voted unanimously to recommend that council approve the company's development plan amendment.

If council follows that recommendation, construction is expected to start later this fall at the site which is located off Martin Road, adjacent to the city's industrial park. Hater said the company plans to start operating in the expanded area in late spring or early summer of 2004.

"I'm excited about it. I'm excited for our company, our employees and the city. It should be good all around," he said.

The extra space is needed as the local manufacturer consolidates its operations with those of its parent company, Trison Company, out of Cincinnati, Ohio.

The consolidation process has been happening gradually for about a year. When all is said and done Hater said the combined operation will bring in about 30 or 40 jobs. This will bring the total number of employees at the plant to about 80.

Not only will the added space make room for more workers, but it will also make working conditions better, creating more work space and improved air circulation.

Charlevoix Manufacturing plans to break ground soon on a 17,500 square foot expansion that will bring more jobs to town. The factory is located off Martin Road. (Photo by Julie Witthoeft)

Charlevoix Manufacturing is an aluminum foundry machine shop where part of the cylinder piston in a car's brake system is made. They also do aluminum casting work for automobile companies like General Motors and Delphi and local customers including CPI Products.

Charlevoix woman enjoys volunteering at elections only to be found later kept warm under a worker's hind end.

MILLER

She believes a change in habits has brought on the lower voter turnout with people being busier these days. She also thinks reapportionment that changed the ward boundaries confused some people and has made voting more difficult.

"I lived in the third ward all my life until two years ago," she said.

And during this election season, life in the second ward where she now lives, was enough to put Miller to sleep. Just over 30 voters came out to support Bill Bellows who ran uncontested for city council.

She said in spite of few voters coming her way there wasn't any napping on the job — the police garage where the election took place was cold enough to keep her eyes open.

Even though she characterized this year as cold and boring, there is something that will keep her coming back.

"I think it's interesting to see the people coming in and going to each ward, wondering if their man will win or lose. You can tell it on their face," she said.

SCRAPBOOK

Beaver Island, Charlevoix's boating connection

Marilyn Boss

'Days gone by'

One thing that is very unique to Charlevoix, is the fact that through the years, we have had a tie to Beaver Island through the many ferries that have linked America's Emerald Isle with the mainland.

To the residents of the mainland, these boats have entered and left our local harbor throughout the navigation season, carrying mail, passengers and freight to the island located northwest of Charlevoix in northern Lake Michigan.

The boats have served the residents of the island through the years, bringing letters from loved ones, supplies of reading material, as well as being a supply ship that keeps the island residents in food, fuel, and all other needs. Of course, one of the main benefits is the fact that they have served as passenger vessels. They not only have brought residents to the mainland when the need arises, but families coming home for a visit, or the summer residents, who became close friends.

The arrival and departure of the boat still highlights the day for those living on the quiet 17 mile long island, which has become a sportsman's paradise and a haven for many from their busy city life. The island has changed from being isolated as it once was, for now, in a few minutes, one may charter a plane for a hurried trip to or from the island.

The island's history dates back to the days when the area was known as the Michigan territory and the island itself was a fueling station for the sailing vessels and later, steamboats, which plied Lake Michigan between Chicago and the Straits of Mackinac. In those days passengers and mainland supplies were carried to the island by these vessels which picked up logs for fuel and transported tanbark, salted fish and other supplies at ports along the lake.

Then came the days of King Strang, who "assumed" possession of the island as a home for his followers, who had become estranged from the original Mormon group in Illinois. This original group later went to Utah. Following the assassination of King Strang in 1856, the island was taken over by the Irish immigrants who flocked to it, some say, because it reminded them of the "auld sod."

Because Charlevoix was the country seat, there had always been traffic between the two points. It wasn't until 1895 that the mail route between them was established.

The first boat to operate as a ferry was a 60 foot passenger called "The Nellie." The engineering officer was a man named Harry Sherman, and he talked Capt. Peter D. Campbell into purchasing the 100 foot wooden hull vessel, "Eric L. Hackley" and using it to haul mail, which was a must for the run to be successful.

Capt. Campbell then sold the Hackley in 1906 or 1907 and purchased the "Oval Agitator," which was being used in Lake Superior at the time by Booth Fisheries. He renamed it the "Beaver," and used it as a ferry until 1915, when it burned at the dock.

During the last two years the boat operated, his son, P.D. Campbell, who owned Campbell's Boot Shop, served as skipper of the vessel. The Roc Brothers of Harbor Springs then operated a small boat out of there. Later, Capt. James Sanford returned the mainland terminal to Charlevoix, when he purchased the "Agontz," renamed it for himself, and operated it out of Charlevoix.

There were many boats which continued to operate out of Charlevoix for the next 86 years. There is no history of the exact dates which these boats operated

SCRAPBOOK

Many ferries have served the island

out of here, but among them was the "Bruce" which was owned and operated by Harry L. Oldham. Then came the 150 foot "Bainbridge," which was only on the run one year because it proved too costly to operate.

It was later operated in the Straits of Mackinac under another name. The ill-fated Marold, a 140 foot yacht was converted for use as a passenger and freight vessel by its owners, Capt. L.L. Hill and his son, Leon. This boat was being used to salvage gasoline from a tanker that had gone aground on a reef in the Straits of Mackinac, during a November storm.

The vessel blew up on New Year's Day, 1937, with the loss of five lives. Among them were the owners, the Cole brothers, Everett and Raymond, and Bruce McDonough. The latter three were residents of St. James.

The next ferry was the "Mary Margaret," operated by Capt. Leroy Allers, with Lawrence Feindt as engineering officer. Next was the "North Shore" owned and operated by Jack and Richard Lyons, who later sold it to the Beaver Island Transit Co.

In 1955, the Beaver Island Boat Co. was formed by a group of island and mainland residents who foresaw the potential of the island as a summer resort and sportsman's paradise. This company, then headed by Henry Allen of Ann Arbor and St. James, purchased the "Emerald Isle," the first craft ever built especially for the run.

It was constructed at the cost of $100,000 by the Christie Corporation of Sturgeon Bay, Wis., and placed in operation in April 1955. It was 72 feet long, and was powered by a 310 hp. engine and carried 115 passengers and 8 vehicles.

The island was growing, and the boat began making two trips daily on weekends for several years during the summer months, but demand for more trips resulted in the boat company officials placing an order for the new boat, "Beaver Islander."

The "Emerald Isle" was taken for service in Straits of Mackinac by its new owners, the Arnold Transit Company, in 1962.

The "Beaver Islander," was built in 1962, especially for the ferry run, and was the largest boat ever built for them at that time. The Sturgeon Bay Shipbuilding and Drydock Co., built and equipped the vessel at a cost of $208,000. It was ninety six and 1-and-a-half feet in length, and was powered by twin screw 675 horsepower engines. It carried 200 passengers and 10 vehicles. The vessel made the run from Charlevoix to the island in two hours and six minutes, approximately 34 minutes less than the former boat. Capt. Lawrence McDonough, Capt. Russell Green and Capt. Kevin McDonough piloted the boat for many years.

It served until the new "Emerald Isle" was built in 1998. It has a length of 130 feet and a beam of 39 feet. It is powered by twin Caterpillar diesel main engines with a hp. of 1500 each or a total of 3000 horsepower. It also has a 200 horsepower Caterpillar bow thruster. This vessel carries 14 cars plus it is able to carry two 46 foot long semi-trailers or motor-homes. It carries 300 passengers. The new boat has four captains, Kevin McDonough, Mike Green, Joe McDonough, and Bryan Antkoviak.

The city and the island have had a long and amicable relationship through the years. Linking the two entities together and making lasting friendships as well as providing very important services to both.

CHARLEVOIX HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS... THANKS FOR THE HELP.

The Chamber extends a big thank you to Mary Lieberman's class for putting up the cornstalks in downtown. A big thank you to the National Honor Society for taking the corn stalks down. We appreciate all the help in making our town beautiful.

SUZIE MARVIN SELECTED AS PEOPLE TO PEOPLE STUDENT AMBASSADOR

Suzie Marvin, daughter of Gary and Heather Marvin, has been selected to be a student ambassador to Australia next summer with the People to People Student Ambassador Program. President Eisenhower started this program and every President since then has served as its Chairman. Its purpose is to bridge the cultural gap between people of different nations. In Australia, Suzie will be meeting with government officials, attending school, staying in a family's home, and touring sights such as the Great Barrier Reef, the outback, and Sydney. This is a great honor, and costs a lot of money. Suzie's raffle of a beautiful quilt was a success and was won by Sally Koerber of Charlevoix. Suzie thanks all of you who purchased a raffle ticket and would appreciate any donations to help make her trip possible. Suzie asures us that she will do her best to represent the United States in Australia the summer of 2004. Gary Marvin is the owner of Marvin's Gardens.

CONGRATULATIONS SHELLY!

It is the two year anniversary for Shelly Barneveld serving as the Finance Manager of the Chamber. Shelly is married to John, who is employed at Marvin's Gardens and has one son, Vladi, who is in Kindergarten at Charlevoix Elementary School. Shelly is in charge of accounts payable and receivable, which includes membership dues, and event income and expenses. Shelly understands the Chamber and its programs inside and out. She is a great asset to Chamber members and the community. She is also the events manager for our craft shows. She posesses quiet confidence and is a wonderful colleague. The Chamber feels very blessed to have Shelly.

Wild windy weather

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

The first forecasted blizzard of the season didn't bring much snow to town, but it did blow in extremely high, damaging winds.

After 9 p.m., last Wednesday night, Nov. 12, residents were jolted from bed by howling winds and the sounds of tree limbs crashing and electrical transformers exploding.

"I woke up and thought to myself, 'God what's happening?'" Marge Warner, a city of Charlevoix resident, said. "I have a windmill in the front yard that was turning so fast, I thought it would blow away."

Earlier that morning, the National Weather Service out of Gaylord had issued a blizzard warning.

In spite of the fact that few snowflakes fell, there was no doubt a severe storm hit Charlevoix.

Jon Jelsema, a meteorologist with the weather service, said at 10:15 p.m. that night the station received a report that winds in Charlevoix had reached 61 mph.

For many area residents the effects of those high winds included downtrees and the loss of power and cable services.

City resident Martha Morgan said she didn't even sleep in her bedroom after hearing the high winds because she feared a tree would fall on that area of her house. A large cedar tree in her yard did come down missing the Council nixes assisted living plan

An assisted living community won't be locating to the city of Charlevoix's single family residential district.

The city planning commission hosted a public hearing Monday night, Nov. 17 and made the recommendation that council approve assisted living facilities in the R-1 and R-2 districts as a special use subject to specific development rules.

But later that night city mayor Gabe Campbell broke a tie, when city council voted against setting a public hearing in this matter. This decision means the proposed zoning amendment won't go into effect.

Campbell said there was no need for council to set a public hearing in this matter because the recommended change didn't have the council votes it needs to pass.

Third ward councilman Sherm Chamberlain said, "This is a slap in the face to the planning commission who spent that

Keep children out of leaves in street

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

City street department workers were busy last week sucking up piles of the leaves on the street side. These leaves have been a dangerous attraction for children.

Last week Jim Zeitler was taking his early evening cruise through town when he noticed something peculiar rustling under the leaves.

As he passed, a pint sized girl and her puppy emerged from the depths of the colorful, crinkly cast-offs of trees. Her little brother squealed in delight watching as the two romped around.

But Zeitler gasped in fear as he remembered what he had seen just a block earlier.

During Zeitler's nightly fall walks he said he frequently sees drivers cruise the streets of Charlevoix speeding up to run through huge leaf piles residents have raked to the street side for city workers to pick up.

The leaf piles explode sending the fruits of property owners labor into the air.

City police chief Dennis Halverson said he has received reports about drivers doing this.

But Zeitler said there is more of a problem than just the mess. He said that during his evening walk last week, he had seen a driver hit the gas and go through four different leaf piles.

Luckily, he said the driver turned one block before the children's fall fun turned deadly.

"I see it just about every night. The problem is someone is going to get killed," Zeitler said.

He wants to warn parents to tell their children not to play in leaves in the streets.

City street department superintendent John Martin said workers have been putting in 10 hour days since early last week trying to get the piles picked up. But in the meantime, city police chief Dennis Halverson suggests parents warn their kids of the danger lurking behind seemingly harmless fall fun.

"Parents should be aware of where their kids are playing at any time and should reinforce that streets are not an appropriate playground," he said.

MEA plan is unfair for Charlevoix kids

EDITORIAL

While it is admirable that the Michigan Education Association (MEA) thinks that it has a plan to help school funding in the state of Michigan, the plan just doesn't seem to be fair for Charlevoix and school districts like it.

The MEA, a union for teachers, thinks that school districts across the state should give up parts of their "rainy-day" funds for the good of districts in the state who are facing budget trouble.

Because Charlevoix's school board was fiscally responsible and built up a "rainy day fund" that will benefit our students in times of budgetary need, this means the MEA's plan would take that money from our district to give to other districts that are hurting for cash.

This is in response to a possible plan to cut some of the school funding in the state to help pay for a massive budget deficit in Michigan. Recently Governor Jennifer Granholm proposed a $196 cut in the per pupil state aid, that would cost the Charlevoix district about $270,000 this year.

And according to Charlevoix schools superintendent Dr. John Sturock, he is anticipating another $300 cut per student next year.

With this loss of funding on the horizon, Charlevoix school students and parents can feel a little secure knowing that the district has this "rainy day fund" to help us get through these times of need. But, under the MEA plan, this fund would be in jeopardy.

It does not seem fair to punish Charlevoix and school districts like it for being fiscally responsible in the past and building up surpluses of money to use in tough times. And it does not seem fair to award school districts which have not been fiscally responsible by giving them our money.

What happens if more money needs to be cut from the state school fund as Sturock expects and Charlevoix doesn't have that "rainy day fund" anymore because of the MEA plan? The answer is, our students will suffer.

The money that is saved by our local school officials for our students should stay in our district.

Book gives insight into what makes a city 'cool' to live in

Edith Gilbert

'Behind the news'

The growth and decline of cities has been a subject that has always interested me.

When I read that Gov. Jennifer Granholm hoped to promote "cool" cities in Michigan, I knew that she had read Richard Florida's book, "The Rise of the Creative Class."

Florida admits that class is a dirty word in America, but that for society as a whole, a little more class awareness would be a healthy thing — it would help cities plan for their future more systematically — and I suggest that includes small towns like Charlevoix! We are on the verge of having to make major decisions on redoing our marina our park and our library.

Florida tells us that the new creative class comprises 30 percent of our nation's "cool" cities and heading the list are Seattle, Austin, Boston, Raleigh-Durham and San Francisco. Here is where the creative class chooses to live and enjoy their new flexible schedules, rules and dress codes. Access to talented and creative people is to modern business what access to coal and iron ore was to steelmaking. Creative people make things happen.

Defining the creative class, Florida includes people in science and engineering, architecture and design, education, arts, music and entertainment, whose economic function is to create new ideas, new technology and/or new creative content.

He also includes a broader group of creative professionals in business and finance, law, health care and related fields. It is larger than the traditional working class, (Grand Rapids) who do physical labor in manufacturing, construction and transportation industries. Finally Florida points to Las Vegas as a city that is host to a large service class, which includes fields such as personal care, food service and clerical work. This is the largest class today in terms of sheer numbers with some 55 million members.

Florida laments the fact that states and regional governments continue to pour countless sums into sports stadiums, convention centers, tourism and entertainment centers and other projects of dubious economic value. He claims the payback would be far greater if just a fraction of these funds were channeled to the arts and cultural related fields — to help promote the hurly-burly of city streets lined with coffee shops, outdoor seating for restaurants, shops, bars, art galleries, fairs, bookstores and movies that show foreign films, live music and with plenty of passerby at all hours of the day and night.

Doesn't this sound like our own Bridge Street for at least six months of the year?

There are those among us who have deeply committed themselves to our community. In the near future, with Castle Farms hosting weddings and conventions year-round, all local lodgings, restaurants and shops will reap the benefits. Add to this the projected, beautiful marina, park and bandshell, an expanded library that offers computers, programs and meeting rooms and we could have a rosy economic future and Charlevoix might lead the state as a "cool" small town!

All we need is our citizens' support with their millage vote to make this happen. What worked in the 1960's is very different from what works today. Florida ends his book by saying "the task of building a truly creative society is not a game of solitaire. This game, we play as a team."

Letters to the editor

Wal-Mart idea

Editor:

I humbly forward this perspective.

There are many people with fixed incomes. Most local jobs provide modest incomes that keep the local economy going and make Charlevoix a beautiful place. All of us would benefit from the economical prices of a Wal-Mart. Is that reason enough to build one?

I'm nostalgic for the Charlevoix I knew over 23 years ago when my wife and I dreamed of living up here. But coming from downstate, we're very cognizant of how things change.

One must also appreciate that every dollar we save in the bank or invest in our retirement funds relies on growth of the economy. We're all responsible for the growth that earns the interest on our investments. Growth also facilitates low prices. What we've invested in is now at our doorstep. An affordable shopping alternative is most welcome. Ironically, even if we don't want a Wal-Mart here, we may be invested in resources needed to build one.

Everything has a cost. If the Super Wal-Mart is built it can't help but have an effect on our area's atmosphere. Time and time again, it has been borne out, when these types of shopping options are built, the character of the area changes. Expecting other business to compete is unreasonable. Inevitably, we'll have another very large and sprawling shopping center in one area, and in another part of town we will have many huge empty buildings.

If Wal-Mart (and other big box companies) came into a new location with a plan that considered the community — not just the bottom line — then more communities might positively receive them. Initially, there might be a longer horizon for recuperation of capital, but that might be off-set by being welcomed into a community, rather than scorned.

How to build a Wal-Mart?

I would challenge Wal-Mart to not just meet the minimum requirements, but to celebrate its coming by looking at a broad range of options:

- Reclaim areas that are declining in retail vitality (the Kmart/Quality shopping center) and adapt their stores to fit into existing spaces.
- Build structures that fit the community, instead of having a barbaric one-size fits all mentality.
- Seek alternate ways to build a parking lot so that water doesn't just run off the black top full of oil, sludge and dirt/trash from vehicles, which pollutes our water, streams and lakes.
- Don't just undercut other business with buying power. Work to integrate goods and services already in the community into what Wal-Mart has to offer (celebrating locally made products, local growers, craftsmen/women and others.)
- For those that are unable to travel to Petoskey where there is a Wal-Mart already, perhaps there should be municipal investigation in a better public transportation link between Charlevoix and Petoskey. Must we duplicate everything in each city? (A public transportation link might even have an effect on summer congestion on Bridge Street as a bonus).

In short, don't just bulldoze a new parking lot and build a big box. Look at the people and community. The challenge: Go from big business to being a big asset. It's "Charlevoix the Beautiful," something none of us would like to see changed.

Also, thank you to everyone for your perspectives. We understand ourselves and our perspectives better by listening.

Peace.

No convention center

Editor:

I do not know where the convention center plans stand as of now, but I feel we do not need something downtown when we have those gorgeous Loeb farm buildings and grounds so near and available to us.

Instead of spending untold amount of dollars on a facility downtown where parking is already a big problem, how about the city buying one or two trolley-type buses (or whatever) to take visitors out to the farm?

We are fast losing the "charm" of Charlevoix.

People like to come to get away from the hustle and bustle — and big buildings in the large cities.

I pray the powers that control our small city will sit back and really contemplate where we are headed!

Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the many local citizens who attended this year's Veteran's Day observance in the park on Tuesday morning. We as veterans appreciate this brief moment of recognition for our service to the nation. Whether it be many memories ago, or in the very real present, the support of the local community is a very gratifying experience.

Apparently there was also a Veteran's Day observance at the Charlevoix High School. Hopefully next year this event will be better announced so that more veterans would be able to attend. It appears that there were only a handful of vets in attendance, but a full crowd to greet them. Thank you as well for your support.

Snowmobiles allowed for students at school

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

> "It sounds like a fun way to come to school in the morning."
> Barney Way, School board member

Snowmobiles were just added to the list of approved vehicles students at Charlevoix High School can take to and from campus.

The school board approved the pilot program allowing students to ride snowmobiles to and from the high school on designated school grounds at its meeting Nov. 10.

A snowmobile trail off Veenstra Road will connect with a path on school grounds that leads to a parking coral.

Private property owners in that area and the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department have been notified with no major objections having been raised.

This is the same program that was approved last year that never got off the ground because planning started too late to get the Charlevoix Snowmobile Club's help marking trails.

But high school principal Gary Grundman said this year's seniors approached him and the club in plenty of time and he's supporter of the plan.

"It's a kid initiative, it's been done correctly and it's not our typical student leaders leading," he said of his support.

While the plan was met with smiles from students and Grundman, school board president and Charlevoix City Police Chief Dennis Halverson, voted against it.

He said just because there is a possible snowmobile route to the school doesn't mean it's a good idea.

Halverson foresees issues with the school staff monitoring snowmobiles and possible damage to grassy areas.

Grundman said students have agreed to travel 15 miles per hour to and from the marked coral that will be located adjacent to the parking lot. He said staff will easily be able to determine if students are traveling too fast and also assured the board that he will announce when students could begin to travel by snowmobile to protect the grass.

But while Halverson is strongly opposed to the new pilot policy Grundman told the board he is comfortable with its rules and if problems arise the pilot will be discontinued.

Requirements for use include: operators having a valid driver's license, snow machines being legally registered, possession of a valid trail permit and adherence to rules like the 15 mph speed limit on school property.

A $5 school issued parking permit will be required. Permit proceeds will go to pay for gates and flags to mark the route.

Grundman anticipates about 15 students participating and hasn't determined whether to allow after hours use of the pilot program like during sporting events.

Board treasurer Barney Way was excited to see students taking advantage of the school's country setting.

"It sounds like a fun way to come to school in the morning," he said.

Way is also the co-owner of Dry Harbour Motor Sports — a local business the sells snowmobiles. The other co-owner is Scott Boss, also a school board trustee. Way made a motion to vote on the proposal, which was seconded by Boss.

If the pilot program is successful Grundman will return in May to request it become official board policy.

A time to be thankful for the gifts that are around us daily

By FATHER TOM NEIS
St. Mary's Catholic Church

Beacons of Blessing

"And now, bless the God of all who has done wondrous things on earth..." (Sirach 50:22)

May this time of year help us recognize that we have personal things to be thankful for in the privacy of our hearts; we have family things to be thankful for around the table: We have communal things, national things and world-wide things to be thankful for at tables of peace. And Sirach helps us get started.

For the beauty of the earth, for its majestic mountains, rolling plains and sparkling streams of water. For its brilliant leaves, glistening snowfalls, green grass. For stars and planets and galaxies. For dandelions and roses and ivy and lilies. For the sun that gives life and the moon that makes night bearable. For cats and dogs and turtles and hamsters and frogs.

"Who fosters people's growth from their mother's womb, and fashions them according to his will." (Sirach 50:22)

For human life from embryo to old age. For families to nurture us in our growing up years. For friends to share good times and bad. For spouses to help us learn how to love. For children to teach us how to serve. For challenging work to occupy us and help us pay the bills. For neighbors who help us see beyond our own fences. For youth whose vibrant energy can stir us out of our lethargy. For senior citizens who's stories of days gone by can teach us the importance of having a set of values to live by. For a country to keep us safe and a culture to civilize our passions. For a political system that secures our freedom and a judicial system that keeps our life from chaos.

We thank you, Lord.

"May he grant you joy of heart and may peace abide among you." (Sirach 50:23)

For language that enables us to talk with each other and prose and poetry that inspires us even more. For music that gives rhythm and beat to our lives and dance that gives grace to our movements. For drawing and painting and sculpture and architecture that beautifies and gives contour to our environment. For photographs and movies and television and camcorders and computers and all that enlarge, enhance, expand our lives. For the technology that eases the burdens of life through medicine, health-care, hospitals and nursing homes that are truly a "home" for those grown weary of caring for their home.

We thank you, Lord.

"May his goodness toward us endure in Israel to deliver us in our days." (Sirach 50:24)

For theology that gives us insight into God. For the scripture that narrates God's dealing with us. For the gospels that make Jesus a living presence among us. For worship that helps us acknowledge God's presence in our communities. For prayer that we use in speaking with the Almighty. For meditation and reflection that alerts us to God's speaking with us. For sermons and homilies that inspire without tearing us down. For the gift of tears in seeking reconciliation and the joy of being cleansed in baptism. For the gift of health and the lessons of suffering as Jesus did. For the indwelling of the Holy Spirit in confirmation and bread of Christ's life in the Eucharist. For the chance to serve God in this world and live with eternal joy in the life to come.

We thank you, Lord.

Township hires consultants to look at Loeb Road project

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Who: Marion Township Planning Commission
What it is: A meeting on a housing project proposed for Loeb Road
When: 7:30 p.m., Nov. 24
Where: Marion Township Hall on Marion Center Road

The Marion Township Board approved hiring of consultants to help the township work through the kinks of a controversial rezoning request.

Wayne Boss and his family members, who are partners in Legacy Development Group, LLC, have filed a request with the township to rezone land they own from agricultural to R-1, single family residential, to make way for a development.

The request applies to two parcels totaling 53 acres, both fronting on Loeb Road around where it intersects with Veenstra Road.

The Marion Township Planning Commission hosted a public hearing to consider the request on Oct. 27. At that meeting they tabled the issue to do more fact finding about ground water and density issues in that area and also made a recommendation that the township board hire a consultant to look at those issues.

The development plan presented by the Legacy group at the commission's public hearing included 85 "affordable" home sites on lots that would be a minimum of 20,000 square feet. Boss said he is aiming to keep prices under $120,000.

Residents at the hearing voiced concerns about the property's ability to maintain a good septic system and to handle this type of development in lieu of wet areas.

Boss said he doesn't plan to develop this wet part of the property, which is about 5 to 7 percent of the whole piece.

However, the opinions of residents and those of Boss weren't enough for the commission to make its decision. So, they recommended that the board hire consultants.

The commission's next meeting is at 7:30 p.m., Nov. 24. Chairman Tim Matchett said at that meeting they may discuss the request, but no action will likely be taken because data from the consultants probably won't be back yet.

The commission is not planning to host a second public hearing in this matter unless Boss changes his request or new information is added to the plan.

Once the consultants information is back in the hands of the township's planning commissioners they will make a recommendation to the township board as to whether or not they feel the rezoning request should be approved.

The Charlevoix County Planning Commission will then review the request and make its recommendation.

Then the township board will review it and make the final decision.

Boss retires after 30 years with district

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

> "The school is the heartbeat of the community. It's a great place to work."
> Judy Boss,
> Retiring Charlevoix Schools business manager

Charlevoix resident Judy Boss has retired from her first and last "real job."

This fall, after over 30 years with Charlevoix Public Schools, Boss, the district's business manager, said goodbye.

Shawn Biddle

"The school is the heartbeat of the community. It's a great place to work," she said.

While Boss enjoyed her co-workers and her work, at 50 she said she had met her goal of working 30 years with the district and was ready to move on.

In 1973, she started as a bookkeeper — she said she was fresh out of college and had no idea her first "real job" would be also be her last.

Over the years her position evolved into business manager and up until early September, she oversaw all the financial happenings for the entire school district.

She said retirement hasn't made her miss the busy life of balancing the school budget but she does miss the people she worked and interacted with. In retirement she hasn't abandoned her taste for numbers and is doing the accounting for her Marion Township family business, Boss Dairy Farms.

When she isn't busy working with her husband, Bud, on the farm, she is traveling to see her son Rob play football with Northern Michigan University or is spending time with her daughter Amanda who is a senior at Charlevoix High School.

As Boss soaks in the freedom of retirement, a new face has slid into her seat.

Charlevoix resident Shawn Biddle moved to town this year to take over the business reigns.

Before moving to Charlevoix with her husband Andrew and 2-year-old daughter Delaney, Biddle, 36, was the accounting supervisor at Monroe Public Schools.

She is a 1990 graduate of the University of Toledo in Ohio from where she earned her bachelor's of business degree in accounting.

In Monroe her job was a little less broad than her new position, but she said she is enjoying the added responsibility.

So far, she said the biggest challenge that has been thrown her way has been the state's poor budget situation. Biddle is in charge of helping to scale back the school district's budget to meet cuts that will likely be handed down by the state in early December.

"I'm working with the (school) board to get a direction on how to handle the cuts — I'm not a fan of making cuts. Hopefully we can weather it," she said.

City in need of more shade tree commission volunteers

Charlevoix city mayor Gabe Campbell is looking for a potential shade tree commissioner.

Current commissioner Roger Knutson's term will expire Dec. 31. At that time Campbell will appoint a city resident to a three-year term.

The three-member shade tree commission works to plant trees in and around the city of Charlevoix.

Campbell has asked those who are interested to contact him at 547-9739.

A seat on the board of review will open up on Dec. 31. Current board member Bob Timms has to resign his seat due to his recent election win that landed him in a first ward city council seat.

City council will appoint an interested board member to a term that will run through December of 2005. Those interested should contact the city manager's office at 547-3270.

Anti-Wal-Mart group gearing for a fight

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

A citizen's group that formed to fight a Wal-Mart coming to Charlevoix is getting ready for battle.

With its official new name — "This is Our Town" — and a recent request for non-profit status, indications are that Wal-Mart may find quite of bit of resistance before it can build a supercenter in Charlevoix on US-31 south of town, near Marion Center Road. .

According to spokesperson and Charlevoix resident Bob Hoffman, the purpose of the group is to "preserve, protect and enhance the small town character of Charlevoix."

To the group, the biggest threat to the character of Charlevoix is a Wal-Mart and its biggest job will be convincing others that the mega-retailer is a bad idea for Charlevoix.

"I think a lot of people didn't really consider all the ramifications of what it means," Hoffman said.

Right now, the group is busy collecting data and making sure all of its facts are correct and then its members are going to start actively contacting Charlevoix Township officials and Wal-Mart officials.

"We will hopefully have an open exchange of facts and concerns," Hoffman said.

The group is also planning a public meeting for 7 p.m., Thursday, Nov. 20 at the Edgewater Conference Center in the Edgewater Hotel on Michigan Avenue. At that meeting a board of directors will be selected, fund-raising activities will be coordinated and members will start seeking help on notifying the public what a Wal-Mart means to Charlevoix.

Hoffman stressed that any plans for a Wal-Mart in Charlevoix are not final.

"They have only submitted a conceptual site plan. There are a lot of different steps Wal-Mart has to go through to get a store," he said.

At a Charlevoix Township planning commission meeting in September, Wal-Mart officials presented a conceptual plan for a supercenter to be located on US-31 South, near Marion Center and Stover roads.

It would have 40,000 square feet of grocery space on the left side of the store and over 100,000 square feet of retail space on the right side. The store would be a total of 157,400 square feet.

There is also room for seasonal sales, such as Christmas trees and garden supplies, as well as an automotive department for tire, oil and lube changing.

The supercenter will have two main entrances, not including a truck entrance on US-31. One entrance will be on US-31 and the other will be on Marion Center Road.

Plans also show the addition of a lighted signal at the US-31 entrance and the addition of deceleration and acceleration lanes and turn lanes on US-31.

These road plans are subject to approval by the Michigan Department of Transportation. A traffic study is currently being worked on.

Wal-Mart officials said they hoped to have the store open in 2005.

The company is pursuing a Wal-Mart in Charlevoix based on figures from its Petoskey Supercenter that show a high number of shoppers from the Charlevoix area.
